Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

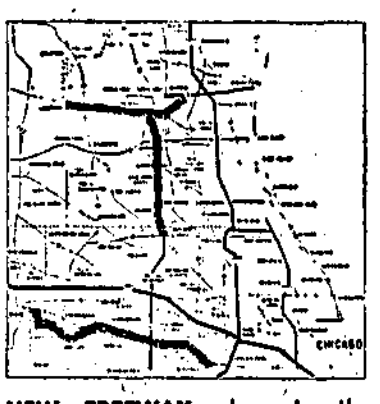
State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,560 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,616 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, according to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.



NEW FREEWAY. plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

- A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.
- An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o fthe existing interchange.

and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,865 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later on," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

Wilke Rd. work high priority to finance panel

High priority for the widening of Wilke Road from Northwest Highway south to Central Road was urged Wednesday by the finance committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board during a review of the village's capital improvements plan.

Widening and other improvements are expected to cost about $3.3 million with the village's share estimated at $180,000.

The village hopes to get partial financing from Cook County, state and federal agencies for the section of Wilke Road between Kirchoff Road and Northwest Highway and full financing from Cook County for the segment between Kirchoff and Central roads. The City of Rolling Meadows is expected to pay 5 per cent, about $105,000, of the cost of improving the Kirchoff Road to Euclid Avenue section.

THE WILKE ROAD project has been discussed for many years, but was not given high priority in the first draft of the updated capital improvements plan completed by the village administration this week. Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the project was given a low placement on the updated list because he wanted to get the improvements of North Arlington Heights Road and the Arlington Heights Road underpass projects under contract before asking for additional grants from the county, state and federal governments.

"We're already getting two-thirds of the funds available for a 16-community area for those two projects. I wanted to get them under contract before I went back for another bite," Hanson said. He predicted an allocation for the Wilke Road project would not be possible before 1978. "But it bears working on in 1977 because of all the time it takes," he said.

Proposed improvements along Wilke Road include new storm sewers, street lighting between Kirchoff Road and Northwest Highway, and traffic signals at the Central Road, Kirchoff Road, Campbell Street and Euclid Avenue intersections.

THE UPDATED, five-year capital improvements plan does call for temporary traffic signals to be installed at the Wilke Road-Euclid Avenue intersection next year. The intersection also will be widened.

The high priority for the Wilke Road improvements was urged in hopes that work may be completed before a portion of Fernandez Avenue, now a private roadway east of Northwest Community Hospital is realigned with Ridge Avenue.

Several Ridge Avenue residents Wednesday night opposed the village administration's proposal to link Ridge Avenue to Central Road by realigning the hospital's private roadway. Ridge now stops at Kirchoff Road.

The homeowners complained that heavy traffic would be encouraged by the change, making the area unsafe. Village Engineer Allen Sander estimated that traffic on Ridge Avenue will double if that project is completed before the Wilke Road improvements.

"I think we then should explore the possibility of expediting the Wilke Road project," Frank Palmatier, chairman of the finance committee, said.

A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long.

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

Decision set on park board plan

Arlington Heights park commissioners will decide next month whether to increase the park board from five to seven members and decrease terms of office from six to four years.

A Herald poll of board members indicates they will vote against the seven-member board but for four-year terms.

In 1974 the Illinois General Assembly amended the park district code giving park districts the ability to change to seven-member commissions with four-year terms.

BOARD MEMBERS can, by resolution, increase the number of commissioners, and decrease the length of terms, Charles K. Bobinette, park district attorney, said in a letter dated last year.

Parks Director Thomas Thornton was unsure whether the board can legally split on the question — decide to

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 35 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $6 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

by DAVE IBATA

An informal survey shows Mount Prospect police are the highest paid in the Northwest suburbs, earning more than Chicago patrolmen with less than 10 years of experience.

Mount Prospect patrol officers after 3½ years on the force, now have a base pay of $18,705 a year, while a Chicago officer will earn $18,312 a year after six years of experience under Mayor Richard J. Daley's proposed 1977 budget.

Chicago police do not surpass the pay of Mount Prospect officers until after nearly 10 years of service, reaching a pay level of $18,864.

CHICAGO POLICE now have starting pay of $12,696, earning $16,764 after five years.

Following Mount Prospect in pay levels are Arlington Heights, which has a starting salary of $11,736 and a base salary of $17,330 after 3 years; and Palatine, which pays beginning patrol officers $13,394, with a raise to $16,860 after five years.

Des Plaines patrol officers soon may take home more pay than Chicago patrol officers under Chicago's 1976 budget.

Des Plaines rookies will start at $12,958, and will earn $16,801 after three years under a proposed pay scale expected to be approved by the city council in December. The new salary schedule will be retroactive to May 1, 1976.

Des Plaines Police Chief Arthur Hintz, however, said, "When it comes to salaries, anyone can pitch a figure out at you. Every community has its own package deal for policemen. One community may have a high salary and few fringe benefits, and another may have a low salary but quite a number of fringe benefits. Our men get time and a half over 40 hours."

The lowest paid police in the Northwest suburbs are Rolling Meadows officers, who earn $12,106 to start and get $16,224 after five years.

Two lions bagged in concrete theft

Unknown poachers bagged two lions in Elk Grove Village Tuesday without firing a shot. The 350-pound lions are of the cement variety and were last seen in front of the Grove Memorial Chapel, 1199 S. Arlington Heights Rd., where they were being used as exterior decorations. "I can't understand why anyone would steal anything from a funeral home," said Anthony J. Maiorielle, funeral home owner. "It's like stealing a rosary." Elk Grove Village police said they are investigating the theft and a report that Maiorielle's mother saw a light green van leaving the funeral home parking lot between 10 and 10:30 p.m. Tuesday. "I don't think it was a prank," Maiorielle said. "Somebody probably always wanted one and couldn't afford it."

Votes in 10th may not be counted

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper Jr. said Wednesday the uncounted absentee ballots in the 10th Congressional District race may not get included in final election totals. Kusper's comment came after Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne refused to rule on a motion to allow Kusper to begin tabulating the 4,947 disputed ballots. Kusper told reporters it will take four days to tabulate and prepare official reports on the election. He must file his report with the State Board of Elections Monday. The motion came during the second day of a hearing into a suit by U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, which seeks a count of the ballots. Kusper said he wants to count the ballots, but Samuel H. Young, Mikva's opponent, objects. Mikva leads Young by 201 votes in the unofficial totals. The hearing will resume at 10:30 a.m. today.

Troops abort hotel raid; 7 left dead

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Four Palestinian "Black June" guerrillas seized the Intercontinental Hotel Wednesday and killed two hotel employes before commandos stormed the building aboard helicopters and killed three of the terrorists in a four-hour gun battle.

Two Jordanian soldiers also died in the shootout to bring the death toll to seven. The fourth gunman was seriously wounded.

An American staying at the hotel, which is opposite the U.S. embassy, and two other persons were wounded.

The government said the guerrillas were members of the "Black June" terror organization, the same radical splinter group that took 90 hostages at the Semiramis Hotel in Damascus Sept. 26. Police killed one of those guerrillas and the three others were hanged in a public square.

THE GOVERNMENT said the terrorists gave hotel guests pamphlets protesting Arab summit endorsements of Syria's intervention to end the Lebanese civil war. But the commandos stormed the hotel before the message could be relayed to Jordanian authorities.

The guerrillas burst into the lobby at 9:50 a.m. (1:50 a.m. CST), a government official said.

"The terrorists entered the hotel and killed the receptionist with a grenade," said Michael Burton, first secretary of the British embassy. "Then they occupied rooms on the upper floors of the hotel and attempted to take hostages."

Cpl. James Copeland of Fort Worth, Tex., a Marine guard at the American embassy, said, "Police from the station just down the road were on the scene quickly. Then the Jordanian commandos arrived."

The commandos exchanged fire with the guerrillas, who smashed windows and fired machine guns from balconies.

"There was a lot more shooting and some of the commandos dropped onto the roof from helicopters," Copeland said.

COMMANDOS WORKING their way down floor by floor from the roof and troops firing from the lobby finally managed to kill all but one of the terrorists and free the trapped guests.

Later King Hussein visited the hotel, its driveway entrance littered with glass from the smashed windows and blocked by burned-out cars.

"The sixth and seventh floors were firebombed, the rooms destroyed," said Mrs. Lova Zeigler, a tourist from Rotunda West, Fla. "There was a big pool of blood in front of the cashier's window and another before the reception desk."

Civil Defense couldn't handle a nuclear attack

If nuclear war broke out tomorrow, Moscow's suburbanites would have a far better chance of surviving than Northwest suburban residents, because the suburbs are ill-prepared to protect persons in the event of nuclear attack, said local Civil Defense officials.

"We can take care of small disasters perhaps, but we would be faced with a terrible catastrophe if there was a nuclear attack," said Frank J. Cambora, director of Wheeling's Civil Defense unit.

"There is a disaster plan, but there are no shelters in Hoffman Estates basically because the buildings have no basements," said Richard E. Monoghen, Hoffman Estates Civil Defense director.

PART OF THE REASON for a lack of shelters and emergency plans throughout the area, officials said, is the low priority the federal government has put on funding Civil Defense projects.

"We are lacking seriously in this country with Civil Defense preparations. The amount spent per capita in this country on Civil Defense is so low it's pathetic," said Edwin Tazelaar, Civil Defense director in Palatine. "Russia and other communist countries are spending much more for this type of defense. We just have not made any major plans in this country."

"There have been a lot of Civil Defense cutbacks and the priorities just don't seem to be there as they once were," said Robert Ciner, Schaumburg Civil Defense director.

Another part of the problem is the lack of concern area residents have about possible nuclear attack, officials said.

"I DON'T THINK people would even know what you're talking about," said Dave Mills, head of Arlington Heights' Civil Defense unit. "If there were some type of 30-day program to explain to people what was going on, they might understand."

"People kind of scoff it off. They really don't think of building a bomb shelter," said Monoghen.

Local homeowners who want to take some precautions should select a sheltered portion of their house and stock it with canned foods and fresh water, officials said. But no matter how much preparation is taken, "There is nothing that is 100 per cent safe," said Monoghen.

98% of Soviets would survive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Boeing Aerospace Corp. expert said Wednesday that 98 per cent of Russia's population could survive an all-out U.S. nuclear attack because of superior civil defense and evacuation planning.

In testimony before Congress' Joint Committee on Defense Production, expert T. K. Jones said: "These defensive preparations, combined with the increasing power of Soviet strategic offensive forces, have in fact destabilized the strategic relationship between the two nations.

"The so-called balance of terror tilts significantly in favor of the Soviet Union. The most probable outcome, then, is not nuclear war; it is more likely to involve increasingly costly concessions by the United States in order to avoid nuclear war."

IF THE RUSSIANS evacuated, he said, "they would survive from a full-scale, total, large-scale response — including targeting of the evacuation areas.

"Ninety-eight per cent of the Soviets would be saved."

Jones said Soviet industry would be back in operation in two to four years after a nuclear war because of protective measures at vital industrial plants — relatively simple ones like sandbags and hastily thrown up earth cover — which could lessen the shock of an atomic blast.

On the basis of Boeing studies, Jones estimated it would cost the United States $2.5 billion to $3 billion to stockpile shovels, wheelbarrows and sandbags. He said Boeing blast experiments found machinery could be effectively protected from shocks of up to 300 pounds per square inch this way.

He further estimated a cost of $100 million to $200 million for plans to evacuate the civilian population around the United States to nontarget areas.

Carter, Democratic chiefs pledge full cooperation

LOVEJOY, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter and some of the most powerful Democratic leaders of Congress met for three hours Wednesday and later pledged full cooperation in reorganizing the government and revitalizing the economy.

The meeting was th antebellum farm home of Sen. Herman Talmadge, 30 miles south of Atlanta.

Carter, Vice President-tlect Walter F. Mondale, Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss and 16 members of Congress had lunch together before their first get-acquainted session since the election.

NO FIRM DECISIONS were made on any legislation, but Carter said he asked the lawmakers to give him authority to reorganize the federal government, subject to a veto from Congress. Such authority was in effect for 20 years under other presidents but expired during President Ford's term.

Retiring Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and the expected new House Speaker, Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, had praise for Carter.

If the three-hour session is an indication of what is to come, "the omens are all good," said Mansfield.

"He will have 100 per cent cooperation from me," O'Neill said.

CARTER SAID he, too, was pleased with the meeting.

"It was a very fruitful exchange of ideas," he said.

The president-elect said they discussed his transition, the economy, foreign affairs and the best way to restore a "working arrangement" between Congress and the White House.

Carter, who never has served in Washington, was asked if he still felt like an outsider. He replied, "I'm beginning to feel more like a Washington insider."

Those meeting with Carter included Representatives Jack Flynt, D-Ga., in whose district the meeting was held; O'Neill; new Rules Committee Chairman James Delaney, D-N.Y.; Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore.; outgoing Budget Chairman Brock Adams, D-Wash.; Appropriations Chairman George Mahon, D-Tex.; and Andrew Young, D-Ga., a black and one of Carter's early supporters.

The senators included Mansfield and three men vying to succeed him: Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Budget Chairman Edmund Muskie, D-Maine. Also attending were Sens. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., Finance Chairman Russell Long, D-La.; and Talmadge.

IN WASHINGTON, meantime, Carter's transitional operation opened for business at the foot of Capitol Hill.

The office occupies about 25,000 square feet of empty office space in what used to be the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare's quarters.

Sitting in one of the nearly bare offices, Barbara Blum, the transition's operations director, told reporters the goal was to find officials for the incoming administration and provide them with information "to hit the ground running" on Jan. 21.

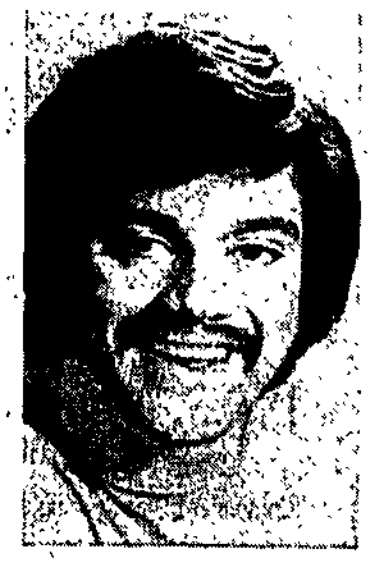
Mrs. Carter plans active role as policy adviser

• Rosalynn Carter plans to be an active policy adviser in her husband's administration, according to her press secretary Mary Hoyt. She also plans to hold frequent news conferences and to pursue her interest in problems of older people and the mentally retarded. Mrs. Hoyt said next Monday, when President-elect Jimmy Carter and President Ford meet to discuss the transfer of power, Mrs. Carter will tour the White House family quarters with Betty Ford. Will the new first lady hold news conferences? "I assume she will be meeting with the press and she'll have a lot of communicating to do," Mrs. Hoyt said. Mrs. Carter will make her first trip out of the country Dec. 1 when she attends the inauguration of Mexican President-elect Jose Lopez Portillo.

• There's new hope for millions of men who fantasize a romance with Raquel Welch, America's reigning sex queen. The shapely beauty has broken off her romance with Brazilian Paulo Pilla and once again is unattached in affairs of the heart. Raquel will appear Dec. 15 on NBC-TV's "Mac Davis Christmas Special . . . When I Grow Up."



FREDDIE PRINZE

• Freddie Prinze, who co-stars in the Television series "Chico and the Man" as a Puerto Rican mechanic, has been charged with driving under the influence of a drug. Prinze, 22, was stopped on the San Diego Freeway by police Nov. 5. The officer confiscated a bottle containing two ounces of a liquid, later identified as methaqualone, a prescription tranquilizer. Police said a test showed Prinze's blood contained a quantity of the drug.

• Smokey, the nation's most famous bear, was eulogized in word and song Wednesday in brief memorial services near the spot in Capitan, N. M., where he was found as a cub — singed and frightened — clinging to a tree 25 years ago. About 250 persons, including many children, attended the ceremonies at Smokey Bear Historical State Park. Smokey died Nov. 9.

People

• Oscar and Tony award-winning acress Ellen Burstyn, 44, will star in a dramatic play "Miss Margarida," by new Brazilian playright, Roberto Athayde. Scheduled to open on Broadway in January, the play was banned in the author's native country because, according to Ms. Burstyn, "it speaks of totalitarianism." She says the play "is about power . . . how to get it and what to do with it."

• President Ford's youngest son says he is encouraging his father to slow down when he leaves the White House. "He's the kind of person that has to keep going," Steve Ford, 20, said. Steve confirmed his father is considering moving to Palm Springs, the desert resort Ford visited last week.

ELLEN BURSTYN

• Thaddeus Garrett Jr., was appointed Wednesday by President Ford to a seat on the Consumer Product Safety commission. The appointment was a surprise to some consumer leaders who consider Garrett "totally unqualified." Ford lacks authority, however, to make anything more than an interim appointment at this time.

• Laurence Silberman, who earlier this year drew criticism from Yugoslavia's President Tito, has submitted his resignation as ambassador to Belgrade, the White House announced Wednesday.

A LEGEND IN his own time, Warner Groebli, 62, billed as "Mr. Frick" zips through his gravity-defying cantilever back bend on Chicago Stadium ice Wednesday. He's been doing his inventive comedy act for 37 years with the Ice Follies and Nov. 23 will have appeared in 15,000 Ice Follies performances. Mr. Frick joined the Follies in 1939 with the Swiss comedy team of "Frick and Frack." His partner Hans Mauch, who was "Frack," retired in 1953.

12 nurses charged in order violation

Twelve striking nurses at Cook County and Oak Forest hospitals Wednesday were charged in Cook County Circuit Court with violating a back-to-work order. Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl scheduled a hearing Dec. 9 to determine if the nurses would be held in contempt of court and what penalties would be levied against them if they are cited for contempt. In explaining his decision to delay the hearing, Dahl said, "It (the hearing) should not be conducted in a charged-up atmosphere."

Named in the contempt petition were Jean Handler, head of the Oak Forest unit of the Illinois Nurses Assn.; Margaret Morris, head of the Cook County unit, and Norma Singer, Clara Rice, Linda Vandercook, Constance Daniels, Victoria Fulton, Peggy Jean Robinson, Margaret Williams, Patricia O'Donnell, Kathan Zerzan and Dorothy Jones. Some 800 nurses at Cook County Hospital and 200 at Oak Forest have been on strike since Nov. 3 in a dispute over pay scales and sick pay.

HUD allots rent subsidies

The federal government Wednesday allotted $18 million to 19 northern Illinois counties for use as rent subsidies for low income families. Cook County will receive $14 million, or 77 per cent of the total allotment. The rent subsidy program, run by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, is designed to help low income families obtain decent housing.

Under the program, a family qualifying for assistance chooses its own apartment, then applies to a local housing authority for help with rent. Local housing authorities then pay a portion of the rent. A HUD spokesman said low income families are expected to pay 25 per cent of their net monthly income for rent and HUD pays the rest. Lake County received $735,410.

Illinois briefs

Walker, Thompson support budget cuts

Illinois lawmakers returning to the capital Wednesday for the veto override session were urged by both Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker and his successor, GOP Governor-elect James Thompson, to restore none of the money Walker chopped from the fiscal 1977 state budget. Walker called all legislative leaders to his office. "I told them it's essential the legislature not override spending vetoes because the $100 million we expect to have at the end of the year should be used as a cushion," he said. "If we open the dikes for just one interest, we're liable to let them all go," Walker said. He was referring to intense campaigns by higher education and mental health lobbies to have some of their funds restored.

Earlier, Thompson said he realizes a "compelling case" can be made for overriding some appropriation vetoes, "but approval of even one measure, no matter how worthy, will enormously increase the premise for approval of appropriations beyond the level that we can now afford."

As Walker and Thompson urged restraint, the legislature's budget arm said sales tax receipts this year are coming in slower than expected. Instead of a growth in sales tax revenue of 14 per cent, said a representative for the Economic and Fiscal Commission, the figure will be closed to 12 per cent — meaning the increase would be about $9 million less than originally forecast. However, increases in other areas more than offset the sales tax drop.

Cronin flight costs high: probe

State school chief Joseph M. Cronin has been taking on-the-job charter flights at a cost greater than if he had used state aircraft because he is virtually denied access to the government's fleet of planes, an investigation by two newspapers has discovered. A story in the Quad Cities Times and the Rockford Morning Star shows Cronin's charter flights are costing taxpayers about $100 per flight more than if he were using state planes. However, the reporters quoted Cronin as saying he had little choice because the Division of Aeronautics placed him near the bottom of the priority list for use of state aircraft.

The reporters also compared Cronin's flight records with those of Michael J. Bakalis, the last elected state school superintendent who was recently elected comptroller. The investigation showed that Cronin spent nearly $21,000 from December, 1975 through September on 79 charter flights at an average cost of $264. Bakalis, from December, 1973 through September, 1974, spent $19,300 on 121 flights on state planes for an average cost of $159.67.

Retired widower wins $1 million

A retired Chicago resident became the Illinois Lottery's 19th millionaire Wednesday night in a special drawing. John Adornaytis, 72, a widower, was asleep at home when news came of his winning. He has missed the drawing to stay home with his 42-year-old son, who has a broken ankle and a sick pet. Adornaytis said the first thing he would do after winning was open a bottle of blackberry brandy. Then he plans to take a trip to Florida.

A Milwaukee man won the $50,000 second prize. Walter Anderson, 45, a father of eight, said he will take a vacation to Disneyland and buy Christmas presents with his winnings. Miguel Ferraren, Evanston, was in his sixth and last millionaire drawing as the result of winning in the lottery's Spring Stampede in July, 1975. He failed to win the big prize each time.

Advice from 'spanking judge'

Parents have got to get into the act

by JOHN LAMPINEN

He saw the teen-ager in a Whiting, Ind., restaurant, Judge William E. Obermiller recalled.

He went up to shake hands with Dennis, and as he did, he raised the boy's arm to examine it for needle marks.

"Hey, don't embarrass me," Dennis said.

"I WANT YOU clean," Obermiller replied.

It was an example of what "The Spanking Judge" means by caring.

"You've got to know what your kids are doing, and where they are and what they've done," Obermiller said. "You've got to check their purses for marijuana seeds. You've got to check their arms."

Obermiller talked about juvenile problems to a group of about 50 Northwest suburban residents Wednesday night at Hoffman Estates High School.

HE CALLED FOR "a grassroots court," for strong families, a return to moral principles and most of all, for parents to take the time to care.

"We have time for everything, but when it involves our kids, we don't have time," he said.

Youngsters want strong leadership from their parents, Obermiller said. They want a sense of direction.

"They're constantly testing you all the time. They're crying for discipline," he said. We've got to have faith in our kids. We've got to give it to them early in life. We've got to give them moral guidelines."

HOWEVER SOCIETY is not providing those guidelines, he said, criticizing television as one of the chronic purveyors of immorality.

"The moral atmosphere today in America is unbelievable," Obermiller said. "And we're going to pay the price for it."

He attacked the courts for being out-of-touch and removed from local problems. Local, community courts that can act quickly and follow up on the problems are required, he said.

"I think your judiciary has taken such a high and mighty position on what they're doing," the judge said. "Some of these judges should get off the bench and get out on the streets and find out what's going on."

HE ENDORSED a proposal that would hold parents financially responsible for the vandalism of their children. But that shouldn't be limited to having the parents pay the youngster's fine, he said.

The parent should then be required to sign an affidavit showing that the youngster worked off the fine at home. If the parent commits perjury on the affidavit, he could be held in contempt of court, Obermiller said.

Parents must get into the act, he added.

"Take the time to care," he said. "It's not because you're checking to find anything. It's that you're praying to God when you check that you won't find anything."

Empty seats 'judge' lecturer

There was no need for the side sections in the spacious auditorium.

The center section provided the crowd with more than enough seats.

The crowd that gathered to hear "The Spanking Judge" inside Hoffman Estates High School Wednesday night was less than had been anticipated.

At 7:30 p.m., when the lecture was scheduled to begin, a count of the attendance totaled 28.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Trustee Melvin E. Timmons handed out biographical literature on Judge William E. Obermiller and recalled how village officials had figured they would need the spacious auditorium.

"We thought it would be good for community involvement," Timmons said. "He (Obermiller) is a classy guy."

A few more people filed in, raising the number to about 50, and Obermiller got up and began talking about how he'd rather be home and about how you've got to "take the time to care" and about apathy.

"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he told the audience.

Looking out to the audience, he nodded.

"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he said.

THE CROWD WAS politely silent throughout most of the evening.

It cheered twice — once when Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter said parents cannot pass the buck for what their children do and when Obermiller said judges ought to get on the streets and find out what's going on.

They had come in search of answers. Patricia Austin of Buffalo Grove came because she has known about delinquent youngsters as a school nurse. Peggy Tully of Hoffman Estates came because she is concerned about her children. Clarice Rech of Buffalo Grove came because her post as village trustee had exposed her to the problems.

"What he said about caring is very important," Ms. Austin said.

Cement lions can't escape from pedestal poachers

Unknown poachers bagged two lions in Elk Grove Village Tuesday.

The lions, made of cement and weighing 350 pounds each, were taken from in front of the Grove Memorial Chapel, 1199 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

"I can't understand why anyone would steal anything from a funeral home," said owner Anthony J. Maloriello. "It's like stealing a rosary."

Elk Grove Village police said they are investigating the theft and the report that Maloriello's mother saw a light green van leaving the funeral home parking lot between 10 and 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Maloriello said the lions added a touch of class to the funeral home's exterior.

"They were real nice until somebody took them," he said. "I don't think it was a prank. Somebody probably always wanted one and couldn't afford it."

The 3-foot-high lions, which cost $150 each, were made by Tuscany Studio Inc., Chicago. A spokesman said they sell "a lot" of the lions — in three sizes — using their own original design and molds for construction.

Maloriello said he will replace the lions, but will secure them to their pedestals this time.

"We relied too much on the honesty of people by just placing them out there," he said.

Free, lower-price lunches available

Free and reduced-price meals are available to children enrolled in the Elk Grove Township Community Day Care Center, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

A child's qualification is based on the size and income of their family. A child in a family of four with a family income of less than $7,130, for example, would qualify for free meals and for reduced-price meals with a family income of less than $11,110.

DON'T WORRY, NO ACCIDENT — A 64-ton tank of the West German Bundeswehr (Armed Forces) demonstrates what easily can happen when a tank drives on an ordinary road in normal Munich traffic. The Bundeswehr said there have been a lot of deadly accidents, and asks drivers for utmost alertness if they spot a tank on the road.

China detonates 4-megaton H-bomb

China detonated a 4-megaton hydrogen bomb in the atmosphere Wednesday, its fourth nuclear explosion this year and the largest ever detected in the Communist country by U.S. monitors. It was China's 21st nuclear blast since testing began in 1964. Radio Peking said the device was detonated to celebrate the new Chinese leadership of Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and last month's purge of the "gang of four" — Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow and three associates accused of trying to take over the country's leadership. The New China News Agency said the explosion was carried out "with complete success, thereby raising the level of our country's nuclear weapons to a new height and . . . strengthening our country's national defense capability."

Syrian factions clash

Clashes broke out Wednesday between rival pro-Syrian and anti-Syrian Palestinians, the first major outbreak of violence since Syrian-dominated Arab peacekeeping forces occupied Beirut. Members of the pro-Syrian Saiqa group exchanged rocket and machine-gun fire with guerrillas of the leftist, anti-Syrian Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, with an unknown number of casualties. The Palestinian leadership reacted quickly to contain the incident and both sides were eventually persuaded to stop shooting, Palestinian sources said.

Soviets OK Yugoslavia path

The Soviet Communist party and government promised Wednesday to respect the right of Yugoslavia to follow its own Communist path rather than that prescribed by the Kremlin to Soviet bloc countries. The important concession appeared in a joint communique signed at the conclusion of three days of talks between Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Tito. It was sealed with champagne toasts and broad smiles.

31 blacks die in Rhodesia

Rhodesia Wednesday reported 31 black guerrillas killed during a 14-hour battle in what the government called the heaviest insurgent casualty toll of the escalating 4-year-old civil war. A communique said two members of the security forces died in the same battle Monday on a mountain in the Honde Valley of southeastern Rhodesia. It brought guerrilla losses to 173 killed in Rhodesia so far in this month of escalating warfare —more than in all of 1975.

Death spankings 'discipline'

Daily spankings given a three-year-old boy were "no big deal," Carolyn Cunningham told a Yakima, Wash. jury Thursday at the trial of five persons accused of causing the boy's death in exorcism rites. Miss Cunningham, 27, is one of the cultists charged with causing the death of David Weilbacher by beating him. She testified that the spankings were merely to discipline the child. "It was no big deal," Miss Cunningham said. "It wasn't a ritual — David was not the center of attraction in the household — it was just an everyday thing."

$34.9 million wins presidency

Jimmy Carter spent $34.9 million to win the presidency — about 80 cents per vote — with the biggest chunk financing media advertising, according to records released Wednesday by his campaign staff. They showed it cost Carter $13,164,200 to win the Democratic nomination, with his fellow Georgians kicking in more than 20 per cent. The general election campaign was financed by $21.8 million in federal funds, as was President Ford's. The arter spending report showed a low level of donations from special interest groups during the primary and a high number of contributions of $250 or less. Federal matching funds amounting to $3.4 million represented a fourth of total receipts. The largest item during the general election campaign was $10.5 million for media ads, while $2.7 million went for such efforts during the primaries.

Holiday traffic may kill 450

The National Safety Council in Chicago Wednesday estimated that between 450 and 550 persons will die on the nation's highways during this year's four-day Thanksgiving holiday weekend. The NSC also said between 20,000 and 24,000 persons would suffer disabling injuries during the holiday. However, the council said about 530 deaths and 23,100 disabling injuries could be expected to occur during a comparable non-holiday period at this time of year. Last year's weekend fatality toll reached 394 and 17,200 persons suffered disabling injuries.

Carter assurances to NATO

President-elect Jimmy Carter sent assurances to the North Atlantic Assembly Wednesday that he wants to strengthen U.S. ties with NATO allies. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., told assembly members Carter had "asked that I convey to you his deep dedication to strengthening our ties with our North Atlantic allies and working together to solve our mutual problems." Brooks said Carter authorized him to convey the message during a phone conservation the two men had Sunday night. Although assembly committees have been meeting since Sunday, the official opening of the plenary session was not held until late Wednesday afternoon. Brooks chose to relay Carter's statement at that time.

Conservation seen as energy key

by LYNN ASINOF

Four prominent American scientists Wednesday said conservation instead of technology is the long-range answer to this country's energy problem.

Speaking at the Building and Construction Exposition and Conference at McCormick Place, the four said, they do not expect people to take energy conservation seriously until the price of gas and oil goes much higher.

"Since the Arab oil embargo, we have demonstrated an absolutely lousy track record," said William M. Graves of the Brookhaven National Laboratory in New York. "Our oil imports are way up."

DR. DAVID DORN of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in California agreed, saying energy conservation in this country has failed miserably.

"The only conservation program still in effect is the 55 mile per hour speed limit, and that is only marginal," he said.

Dorn said people do not like increasing their attic insulation or turning down their thermostats because "they cost money and they cost comfort."

Although some energy conservation products are on the market, the four scientists said there is not enough incentive for widespread use.

MARTIN KYLE of Argonne National Laboratory said tax incentives are one way to get energy conservation into the home. Currently, such an improvement probably would increase the tax bill for a house.

Graves said changes in building codes are another way to get builders to conserve energy when they build a house. He said savings of 30 to 40 per cent can be realized by changes in building codes.

New energy sources currently are under study in laboratories. Solar energy and nuclear power are already in use, and conversion of waste materials, synthetic fuels, geothermal energy and magnetic and laser fusion all are being developed.

All of the scientists said solar energy is not going to be a cure-all for the nation's energy problems. Kyle said the country will not have the luxury of choosing between energy sources.

AN ART LESSON is conducted by Barbara Ayers-Best, who teaches fifth and sixth graders at Field School, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling. Mrs. Ayers-Best is a Dist. 21 teacher who was hired after working in the district as a substitute.

Unit proposal may harm Dist. 214, consultant says

High School Dist. 214 would face "serious planning and morale problems" if the unit school district proposed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area is formed, Fremd Raubinger, professor of educational administration at the University of Illinois, said Wednesday.

The loss of more than one-fourth of Dist. 214 students and some 40 per cent of its assessed valuation, along with declining enrollment projections, would force a readjustment and a reappraisal of programs offered by Dist. 214, Raubinger testified at a unit district proposal hearing.

"If this policy of piecemeal destruction of the district was to spread, some parts of the remaining district would indeed be in trouble," said Raubinger, a consultant hired by Dist. 214.

THE UNIT DISTRICT proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove High schools under one school board and administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

Breaking two schools out of Dist. 214 to make them part of another district would damage the district's identity and its uniqueness, said Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert.

Dist. 214 is recognized statewide and nationwide for the scope and quality of its educational and extracurricular progams, its administrative and financial stability, its ability to meet the demands of growth, its internal harmony and its size, he said.

Dist. 21 'farm club' pays off in jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally get the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a classroom. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant superintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

Now that most of the dismissed teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 35 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Renee Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver. She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Observers in operating room

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The students had never seen a doctor operate before, but they weren't the slightest bit squeamish as they watched the 10-year-old dog prepped for hip surgery at the Animal Care Hospital in Arlington Heights.

An anesthetic was injected into the dog's foreleg as a nurse held him steady on a metal operating table.

Gas was then piped down the dog's trachea and as it took effect he was stretched out on a heating pad so his body temperature wouldn't drop during surgery. As precautionary measures, an intravenous feeding and a heart monitor were connected to the dog.

"BASICALLY, THERE'S not a lot of difference between what happens here and what happens in a human hospital," Dr. Philip Hinko told the zoology students observing him. "There are advantages and disadvantages in both."

As he spoke, his nurse shaved the area around the dog's hip and sterilized it with iodine. Cloths were draped over the rest of the dog's body and the students craned their necks to get a better view as the doctor made his first incision.

Teacher winces.

Every other Friday morning, three Hersey High School zoology students watch Hinko perform surgery and learn firsthand about operating procedures and equipment. They have observed him do everything from spaying and liver biopsies to bone and hip surgery.

With most of the juniors and seniors in the class aiming toward health-related careers, zoology teacher Donna Bahadur wants the students to see what it's like when a live organism receives surgery.

"THEY HAVE TO SEE the flow of blood so they know if their stomachs can take it," she said. "It's a waste for a student to spend four years in pre-med and then discover he can't stand the sight of blood."

So far, none of her students have been sickened by the surgery they have viewed and most have expressed a desire to see more operations performed, Mrs. Bahadur said.

The visit to the animal hospital, however, is only part of the semester-long zoology course which deals with the evolutionary development of animal species, embryology, animal behavior and animal structure.

Students spend several weeks dissecting a variety of dead organisms, ranging from fetal pigs and sharks to squids and sponges, and labeling the parts of the organisms' brains, hearts and reproductive and excretory systems.

"THE KIDS KNOW where the different parts are and what they do so they understand what Dr. Hinko is doing when they watch him in surgery," Mrs. Bahadur said.

Experience with live animals gained through the care and observation of the doves, hamsters, guinea pigs, fish and parakeets which live in Hersey's zoology classroom.

From these animals, students have learned how doves make different sounds depending on their sex, how parakeets become tender with one another when the lights are turned off and how guinea pigs, much like humans, go through a period of depression following the death of a friend, Mrs. Bahadur said.

Some lessons are learned the hard way. One student forgot to tape down the lid to the hamster cage and the hamster escaped, had its babies in the classroom sink and subsequently ate them when she found herself without food.

"These things happen, but not more than once," Mrs. Bahadur said. "The students are made aware that animals have to be cared for properly and have to be shown kindness and consideration."

A word to calm the patient.

Decision set on park board plan

decrease the length of terms and not increase the number of commissioners.

Parks Atty. Charles K. Bobinette was unavailable for comment on the issue.

Three of the current five board members said they probably will vote to keep the number of commissioners at five, one was for the increase and one declined to comment.

Of the four who responded, all approved decreasing length of terms of office.

"From what I've seen in a little over a year on the board, the addition of two board commissioners would not be any great advantage," said Comr. Robert P. Rohleder.

"The principle benefits would be to spread the workload and time demands so commissioners would not be overworked," he said, "but I don't think meetings have been excessive in terms of affect on personal time."

ROHLEDER WAS appointed to fill the unexpired term of Robert Smith, who was transferred to Tulsa, Okla.

Board Pres. Lloyd W. Meyer, said he is "leaning toward voting against the increase," although his decision is not conclusive.

"I don't think we're overburdened with work now," he said, "but we have good board members now. Possibly in a year from now we could be overburdened. We could end up holding off a vote until we get to that point where we need seven members."

Comr. Robert J. Throckmorton also said board members are not overloaded with work, although he has not decided for sure how to vote about the increase.

Comr. Kathryn Graham is the only member for the increase. "It would spread out committee work, bring in more creativity and be more representative," she said.

"Seven people might have thought through some of the things this board has decided better than five did. Some of us serve on three committees and don't serve effectively," she said.

"The park district has worked very hard in the past to get this concept accepted by the legislature," Mrs. Graham said. "But it will take some reeducation of the present board to be accepted."

Comr. Jacqueline J. Gruenewald declined comment on the issue, saying, "I have a very definite opinion but saying what it is would be defying an order by the president (Meyer) not to discuss it until we meet and talk about it as a board."

Killer yanks IV tubes from arm

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Condemned killer Gary Gilmore yanked out intravenous medicine tubes Wednesday in an apparent effort to prevent his recovery from an overdose of sleeping pills.

Gilmore, who swallowed a handful of pills in his prison cell after the state refused to execute him when he wanted, told his doctors he was "unhappy" because they had saved his life.

The suicide attempt forced the Utah Board of Pardons to extend Gilmore's stay of execution until Dec. 6, when it will hold a special hearing to decide if he should be shot by a firing squad or sentenced to life imprisonment.

DR. GRANT CHRISTIAN said the 35-year-old slayer was recovering despite his refusal to cooperate and probably would be ready for transfer to the infirmary at Utah State Prison sometime Thursday. His fiancee, Nicole Barrett, remained in a deep coma and critical condition from the pills she swallowed in their attempted suicide pact, but doctors said she had improved slightly.

"He (Gilmore) doesn't desire to be treated," Dr. Cristian told a news briefing at University of Utah Medical Center. "He pulled out his I.V. (intravenous medicine tube). He is unhappy that we did what we did."

The physician said Gilmore would be "force-treated" — held down and given shots — if he refused to take medication through the I.V. tube.

After regaining consciousness Wednesday morning, Gilmore asked about Mrs. Barrett's condition. "He seemed quite relieved at the news we gave him that she was still alive."

Pardon, U.S. citizenship asked by Tokyo Rose

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tokyo Rose, an American-born woman convicted of treason for Japanese propaganda broadcasts to United States servicemen in World War II, Wednesday filed a petition asking for a presidential pardon.

In her first press conference since her release from prison 20 years ago, Iva Toguri D'Aquino, dubbed Tokyo Rose by GIs in the Pacific, said she was not seeking exoneration, but merely a pardon, to regain her citizenship so she would not be a woman without a country as old age approaches.

"Age is creeping up on me and I can't wait forever," said the small, bespectacled woman, 60, who was born on July 4, 1916, and has continually maintained her innocence.

"AMERICA IS my home. It will always be my home. American citizenship is a deep, valuable thing. You don't recognize the value of it until you don't have it."

Mrs. D'Aquino, reared in Los Angeles, graduated from UCLA and runs an import-export business in Chicago, said she hoped President Ford acts quickly on the matter.

Accompanied by her lawyer, Wayne Collins, and a crowd of supporters and newsmen, Mrs. D'Aquino went to the old federal courthouse, where she was convicted, and handed the petition to San Francisco Postmaster Lim P. Lee.

The petition was mailed to U.S. Pardon Atty. Lawrence Traylor, and if it clears the FBI and attorney general, it goes to the President.

COLLINS, SON of the lawyer who defended Mrs. D'Aquino at her 1949 trial, said he spoke with Traylor and "we are confident the petition will be reviewed favorably."

Pressures to pardon Mrs. D'Aquino increased when the California legislature supporter her and the foreman of ture supported her and the foreman of were inflamed by anti-Japanese feelings at the time.

Collins said the petition argued that Mrs. D'Aquino broadcast only musical and other entertainment and not news. The petition also argues that under the Freedom of Information Act, it was learned the government knowingly used perjured testimony before the grand jury that indicted her.

Mrs. D'Aquino went to Japan in 1940 to visit relatives and was trapped there by the war. She served 6½ years of a 10-year sentence in West Virginia and was fined $10,000.

Carter's problems

He must satisy power blocs . . .

by RAY CROMLEY

A commentary

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — For President-elect Jimmy Carter the worst is yet to come.

He is now going to have to pay his political debts — to George Meany and the AFL-CIO, the National Education Association and its politically conscious teachers, big city and rural blacks, Hispano-Americans, the over-65s, and a list of other special interest groups.

Carter says he comes to office with no obligations. He received heavy campaign assistance and voting support from all groups mentioned above. Some gave hefty indirect financial assistance, though in compliance with the election laws, these funds were spent without direction or control from the Carter organization.

The vote studies to date suggest, indeed, that the work of these groups did put Carter over. But whether they did or not, the leaders and members are firmly convinced that had it not been for their efforts, the election would have gone to President Ford. And what men believe determines their actions and their demands, as we all know full well.

It is now clear, therefore, that the organized teachers, the auto workers, the machinists, the blacks, the Hispano-Americans, the Italo-Americans, the aging will now present their itemized bills. If Carter, as president, does not pay off in special-interest legislation and in offices, he may face a backlash of major proportions among his most ardent election supporters.

THIS WILL not be easy. President Franklin Roosevelt came into office with the same heavy debts. It took all his considerable ingenuity and a most imaginative series of gestures, maneuvers and public relations stunts, year after year, to cement his grip on this variety of special interests.

Carter's problem is complicated, as it is for all presidents, by the fact that — in order to govern — he must also satisfy the interest of those who voted against him, and those cohorts who have interests vitally different from his though they were on his side in the election.

Carter must satisfy businessmen, large and small, members of the middle class, and the small investor as well as the big, that he is economically sound and not a wild man, or these citizens will in caution hold back on investing, buying and employing — causing the economy gradually to drift into a new recession or worse.

BUT MOST things Carter must do as president to reassure this business-middle class group will anger the more militant of his supporters.

Then there's the bureaucracy, which can, in the end, make or break him by backing, or smothering, whatever executive orders he issues. Because Carter campaigned so heavily, and with such vehemence against the Washington establishment, and because of the example he set in Georgia as governor, there are many in the civil service here who most certainly will look with mistrust on every reorganization step he takes. The militant organizations of government employes will be making strong demands and pushing him to soften his positions. They will demand he show sincerity by giving way.

Some presidents have managed this tightrope walk with dexterity. Others have managed through the sheer strength of their personalities. Most have not managed well, and have succumbed to special power blocs in the Congress or to the subtle strength of the entrenched bureaucracy.

It remains to see how the novice Carter will do.

The way we see it

Vetoes must be upheld

Before the members of the Illinois General Assembly begin poring over Gov. Daniel Walker's veto messages, they would do well to heed the warnings of two state fiscal experts.

Both Leonard Schaeffer, Walker's budget director, and Robert Mandeville, the man who will replace him in the Thompson administration, have warned that any spending increases approved by the lawmakers could upset the precarious balance in the state's fiscal condition.

In his continuing fight to ward off a tax increase, Walker trimmed funds from many state programs. That means a number of worthy programs — including special education, mental health and university faculty salaries — are short of funding. Legislators will feel pressure from those involved in each of those areas to override Walker's vetoes.

Advisors for both Walker and Thompson have urged against veto overrides, and at this point we see no single matter of such great importance that it merits override.

Lawmakers also will be confronted with spending requests of a slightly different character. State water resource officials and House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, will present new legislation to restore about $8 million in bond authorizations for flood control projects.

The projects included in the bond program would involve continuation of current state flood control projects, and rapid action could relieve additional flooding next spring.

The legislature would be wise to give serious consideration to these proposals. While they do involve some new spending, the amounts needed for debt service on the bonds easily are outweighed by potential savings in flood prevention. This bonding will not seriously upset the state's financial condition.

Legislators also will be asked to act on requests for new bills not related to either budgetary vetoes or bond authorization. They should resist temptation to do so. A new legislature goes to work in two months; and that is the time for action on substantive legislation.

Efforts to override the vetoes or act on new substantive legislation will only confuse the process and damage the opportunity for a new administration and a new legislature to go about the work of getting this state back on a more sound basis in January.

. . .and even worry about crowns

A Commentary

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — For nearly two years Jimmy Carter has promised that as president he would do what was right rather than what was expedient. He has pledged leadership that is good and honest and fair and filled with love. Presumably he was elected because enough voters in America believed his campaign guarantees.

Soon now the time will come for action rather than vows. And both Carter and his constituents may be disappointed. No doubt the new chief executive will try to be guided by decency, but political reality can be unkind toward men with good intentions. By necessity the formation of public policy is not always a moral activity.

Consider one small, obscure and comparatively unimporant illustration: the international dilemma of the Crown of St. Stephen. The crown has been a source of friction between Hungary and the United States for three decades. Each American president has dealt with it to no final resolve. Now comes President Carter's turn.

THE CROWN is an impressive relic, with chains of gold and dangles of rubies. But its significance is not in its intrinsic value. Pope Sylvester II gave the crown to Hungary's King Stephen in 1000 A.D., apparently because of the latter's efforts to convert his countrymen to Christianity. Since then the crown has assumed an emotional and political character that is singular in the world.

It is said that Hungary has never possessed the crown so much as the crown has possessed Hungary. It is in fact the mark of government. When Ferdinand of Hapsburg became king in the 14th century he refused to wear the crown and was therefore not recognized by much of the population. Hence the crown has a constitutional suggestion that is not only of patriotic but of hard legal importance as well.

And so here is the problem. In the last days of World War II, as Europe was being gutted, Hungary's Crown Guard removed the relic to Austria and there gave it to U.S. officials for safekeeping. Thirty years later it still remains in U.S. custody, probably at Fort Knox. Hungary has repeatedly asked for its return, but every president since the war has steadfastly refused to send it home.

VERY CLEARLY the U.S. policy for all this time has been incorrect. The crown belongs to Hungary, its people deserve to have what is theirs. When Jimmy Carter gets around to the matter, therefore, his moral course is simple, and yet his decision will not be a clear-cut one because there are considerations other than propriety.

Hungary since the war has been a communist nation. The present regime was installed 20 years ago by Soviet tanks. There are 700,000 Hungarians in America, and millions in other free nations, who believe that the return of the crown would be a legitimization of detested, oppressive, anti-democratic and bastardized Hungarian rule.

Hence this problem, a tiny minute in the years of decisions facing President Carter, is almost ugly in its alternatives. Hungary is not an enemy, it is in fact a cooperative trading ally that pays its debts and strives for ever warmer U.S. relations. And yet it is Communist, and we wished that it weren't. Keeping its crown is a selfish but altogether effective way of underlining our wish.

In short, sadly, we hold this relic as blackmail.

So what will President Carter do? He has said he wants to study the crown circumstances more thoroughly, and has requested opinions from leaders of the Hungarian-American community. This may of course mean he wants all the facts before doing what's right; then again, perhaps he is already looking for expediencies.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Court ruling shouldn't stop case

The Illinois Supreme Court's ruling that the Democratic majority of the Cook County Board acted legally in depriving suburban commissioners of their veto power on budget matters leaves suburban residents frustrated and powerless.

We hope suburban commissioners will find ways to continue to challenge the board's action despite the adverse state court ruling.

The court ruled the county board had a right to change from two-thirds to a simple majority the number of votes required to approve the county's budget and expenditures. Prior to the change, the board's six suburban Republicans held the balance of power on those votes.

The rule change was approved last October by the board's 10 Chicago members, all Democrats, after the six suburbanites seemed likely to hold up a county donation to the Regional Transportation authority during a dispute over that agency's role in the suburbs.

The change stripped the suburban commissioners of the only real authority they exercised on the county board; the Chicago bloc can, and has, pushed financial measures through over unanimous suburban opposition.

Some of the suburban commissioners involved in the supreme court suit said Tuesday they will study the possibility of taking the case to a federal court, where they would argue the suburbs have been deprived of equal protection of the law.

Such an appeal should be undertaken if legal advice indicates it has any reasonable chance for success. The issue of suburban representation on the county board is an important one which should not be allowed to die.

Other alternatives available to suburban residents include: efforts to persuade the county board to reverse its action or to try to get the Illinois General Assembly with a Democratic majority to restore the suburban veto.

Those alternatives hold much less promise of success than a continued court challenge. The Democrats on the county board and in the legislature have little to gain at this point by listening to suburban pleas.

"Lame duck!"

Press 'biased' on abortion

I am very distressed. We are living in America, which has just celebrated 200 years of freedom, but are we free? Is freedom of the press something that is possible, when the press is extremely biased on issues such as abortion and E.R.A.?

True, there is the Fencepost, but does the Fence post balance out all the large editorials and columns and columns of print that promote abortion, favor pro-abortion candidates, and constantly harp on women's rights? (What did the newsmen ever have to write about before the women's rights movement started?)

The press criticizes voters who would not vote for a candidate because he is for abortion, but a few days ago The Herald stated that they would not endorse Penny Pullen, even though they admitted she was clearly the better qualified of the two newcomers because she was against abortion and the E.R.A., which is connected indirectly.

Consider also the furor of the American people over Earl Butz telling a joke that made him appear to be a bigot. This single issue "disqualified" him. People who believe in human rights feel that any candidate who does not respect human life is also "disqualified."

Although many Fencepost letters are printed that are for or against abortion, The Herald manages to:

Ignore letters that would prove abortion is not a Catholic issue.

Shorten letters or print them too late to benefit those opposing abortion. For example, Judette Tummillo wrote a letter criticizing the media for constantly leading the public to believe that the Supreme Court's decision allows abortion for only the first three months, but in reality it's for the full nine months . . . This was printed the day after the election!

Please try to focus on pro-life "articles" in the future, so that freedom of the press is for everyone.

Crane needs 'stronger challenge'

In response to Lois Brask's letter re: your lack of endorsement of Rep. Crane, I would like her to reconsider the outcome of his election from my point of view. I was part of the minority vote for Frank or should I say, against Crane, who does not represent me or my views in any way.

Consider this: Frank was a weak candidate who ran a poor campaign. Most of my acquaintances knew little, if anything, about Frank. He had very little publicity and the people who did know who he was were unenthusiastic about the man. If, in two years, a candidate of substance, intelligence and the means for running a high power, efficient campaign were to oppose Crane, and if such a candidate were beaten soundly, then Ms. Brask's assumption of a clear mandate for Crane and his right-wing conservative stance might hold water. I for one would like to see a strong candidate run in the 12th District in 1978. It seems apparent to me that Democrats and moderate Republicans alike have written off this district as a conservative stronghold and only token candidates have challenged Phillip Crane.

It has been my experience that the extreme right-wing of opinion consists of a very vocal minority. I simply can't believe that 70 per cent of the voters of the 12th District are as conservative as Crane, Reagan and others of that ilk. Surely the majority vote could be won by a moderate, "middle-of-the-road" candidate if a strong one should emerge in time. Are you listening, potential candidates? There's a constituency here that needs you. Now is the time to start!!

'Articles on X-rated film were out of place'

We were shocked Nov. 12 to open The Herald and find the front page of Sec. 2 filled with articles on pornographic (X-rated) movies. Until now we have enjoyed receiving The Herald and felt it to be informative and of high standards. Those articles, however, seemed very much out of place and we were disappointed to find The Herald condoning the degrading practice of pornographic "entertainment."

Fortunately, our children aren't old enough to read for we would fear the detrimental influence it would have on them.

Panel suggests management homework

Entrepreneurs warned of risks

by LEA TONKIN

Some people scrimp and save for years, biding their time as they plan a small business of their own.

But entrepreneurs may meet serious problems the first six months of their new venture if they fail to do their business management homework, says John L. Smith, Chicago district director of the federal Small Business Administration.

Smith and a panel of experts in finance business records, legal organization, taxes and marketing discussed starting a business at a conference Wednesday in Palatine.

More than 100 women and men participated in the conference for prospective business owners at the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge. The meeting was sponsored by SBA, the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), Paddock Publications and the Northwest Assn. of Chambers of Commerce.

FINANCIAL AND OTHER rewards await some small business owners, although being your own boss can mean "working twice as hard for half as much," Smith said. "For the first three years, it's not all roses. In some cases, it's the first five years."

Smith said 50 to 60 per cent of all new businesses "go down the tube" during their first year.

People who want to be their own boss first should ask themselves questions about management psychology, said Ian Ferguson, a service corps representative. Ferguson said service corps counselors are retired managers who counsel prospective business owners on a voluntary basis.

Longer hours, financial insecurity, bookkeeping and other headaches often hound the fledgling business manager, Ferguson said.

He said market research is another consideration. "You must be able to prove a need for the service," he said. "If you're in the wishy-washy area, then you'd better come and see us."

FERGUSON ADVISED potential franchisees to check any contracts with a finance expert before signing on the dotted line.

Interviews with several franchisees and an investigation of financial records will yield useful information about prospects for success. Ferguson said an existing business's records also should be checked when a purchase is planned.

A banker, an accountant and an attorney can offer sound advice to a would-be business owner, said Randall Wolf of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights. He outlined financial basics including cash flow, the importance of research and the need for capital.

Look for an attorney who charges reasonable fees for personal service, advised Matthew Salita, an attorney and chairman of the speakers bureau of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. He said bar association referral services will provide the names of area lawyers.

Doug Cannon, a Standard Oil attorney, discussed the importance of compliance with government regulations. "An attorney, when properly used, can end up making money for you," he said.

Late selling reduces gains, Dow closes up 2.74 points

NEW YORK (UPI) — Surprising news concerning oil talks, prospects for a tax cut and a rise in personal income helped drive prices higher Wednesday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange, although late selling pared the gains.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than two points at the outset, gained 2.74 to 938.08. It had been ahead nearly five points. The blue-chip average lost 0.08 points Tuesday after being ahead nearly eight points.

The NYSE common stock index added 0.33 to 53.85 and the average price of a common share increased 19 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, rose 0.57 to 100.61.

ADVANCES TOPPED declines, 955 to 461, among the 1,854 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 19,900,000 shares compared with 21,020,000 traded Tuesday, the busiest day in nearly two weeks.

Analysts said buying was sparked by news members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, under pressure from a number of areas, may temporarily delay their Qatar meeting, originally scheduled for Dec. 15, to raise crude oil prices.

Some poorer nations have urged a delay to see if they could get more concessions from Jimmy Carter when he takes office. One report said their chances would be hurt by the damage higher oil prices would cause to the already slumping Western economies.

UAW approves pact with Chrysler

United Auto Workers members approved a new three-year contract covering 116,000 Chrysler Corp. workers despite a near veto by skilled tradesmen, the union announced late Wednesday. The margin of victory — 622 votes — was only slightly larger than the 480-vote margin last month, when skilled tradesmen almost scuttled the industry's pattern setting agreement with Ford Motor Co.

Approval of the new pact cleared the way for the union to concentrate on General Motors Corp., where 390,000 workers at 117 plants in 21 states are poised to strike at 11:01 p.m. Friday. Bargaining teams met into the late evening Wednesday with the UAW claiming minor progress.

Deere employes urged to work

Regional officials of the United Auto Workers urged UAW members to return to work Wednesday at the Deere and Co. harvester plant in E. Moline, Ill., where 100 machinists have set up picket lines. The strikers, members of Local 1191 of the International Assn. of Machinists, walked out Tuesday after voting to reject a new contract. A Deere spokesman said the machinists' picket lines kept all but 45 of the 2,200 day shift employes away from work Wednesday. In Chicago, Ray Sprouse, a UAW regional executive, said UAW members had a valid contract and should return to work. His statement was in conflict with one by Wes Hardin, recording secretary of Local 865 at the plant, who directed union members Tuesday to observe picket lines. At Milan, Ill., betwetn 1,500 and 2,000 persons showed up Wednesday to apply for 60 openings in the Deere and Co. parts warehouse. A spokesman said Deere, a major farm implement maker, had not advertised the jobs, but word of their availability had spread in the Quad Cities area of Illinois and Iowa.

U.S. personal income up .7%

Personal income rose by an average .7 per cent nationwide in October, with pay raises for federal employes helping to offset cuts in factory payrolls, the Commerce Dept. reported Wednesday. Commerce estimated that personal income from salaries, investments, transfer payments and self-employment rose $10.2 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.4 trillion. Federal government wages and salaries accounted for nearly one-third of the overall increase rising $3 billion from September.

Beef prices to rise 10c a pound

Beef will rise 10 cents a pound to a new record annual average in 1977, but pork will drop 5 cents a pound and dairy foods will edge up only slightly after this year's sharp gain, Agriculture Dept. economists predicted Wednesday. The forecasts delivered at the department's annual Outlook Conference indicate a reversal of many 1976 price trends for individual foods — but little change in over-all price average trends. Beef helped hold down living costs this year by dropping nearly 5 per cent from a record $1.48 a pound in 1975 to an estimated $1.39 for 1976. But economist Richard Crom predicted that retail beef prices will turn upward soon and reach a record annual average of about $1.49 in 1977, largely because farmers are cutting producton following heavy losses this year.

Oil price hike to be postponed

Western diplomatic sources said Wednesday the oil-producing countries are likely to postpone their decision on an oil price increase to see whether the Third World gains benefits in a final round of economic talks with the industrial nations. The last session of North-South talks between the world's "have" and "have-not" nations, who are demanding economic concessions to help them fight inflation, meets in Paris Dec. 15. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Counties' oil ministers are scheduled to convene in Qatar the same day to decide on an oil price increase expected to run from 10 to 25 per cent.

Food Safety Council formed

A group of scientists, professors, consumers and food industry representatives was formed at a Chicago meeting Wednesday to help develop new ways of making foods safe. The group will be named the Food Safety Council and its chairman will be A. S. Clausi, vice president of technical research for General Foods Corp. Included in the council will be a panel of scientists who will try within the next two years to develop new safety criteria for food. The panel will be led by Dr. Virgil O. Wodicka, former director of the Bureau of Foods in the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

5 tourney vets on Herald's All-Area golf team

by KEITH REINHARD

Has an all-area team ever been unveiled with 100 per cent state tournament representation? Perhaps not before today.

The Herald all-star golf team for 1976 can claim this distinction at any rate. Led for the second year in a row by Palatine standout Nick Zambole, it is probably one of the most competitive groups ever honored locally in any sport.

In addition to Zambole, who was the third best individual golfer at the state finals, there are three members of the state championship team from Prospect and the leader of a Buffalo Grove contingent that placed fifth at the Champaign showdown.

Nick Zambole

Mike Marshall

Scott Spielmann

Dave Fatina

ON THE TOTAL 15-man area squad are no less than ten who advance to the state finals. Nine of the 15 are repeaters.

Making appearances on the elite five-man first team for the second year in a row are Knights Scott Spielmann and Paul Moats. Bison Mike Marshall and Prospect's Dave Fatina round out the top team.

Five members of the outfit which brought the state championship hardware back to Prospect have been selected for all-area honors with Mike Dee making the second team and Steve Kurka the third team.

Others on the Herald all-star list who advanced thru district and sectional competition to play for all the marbles at Savoy were Bob Hoffman and Dan Krolack of Buffalo Grove and Forest View's Joe Carcerano.

SENIOR ZAMBOLE was an obvious choice for captain again. After posting a 38.6 conference average, he went on to forge a sizzling

Black Hawks lose without Bobby, 3-2

NEW YORK — Two first-period goals by Phil Esposito helped the New York Rangers break a club-record seven-game home losing streak Wednesday night with a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks.

The Hawks, once again, were minus defenseman Bobby Orr.

Both of Esqosito's goals came against his brother, Chicago goalie Tony Esposito. The first came on a shot from the right faceoff circle after a pass from Ken Hodge at 5:59 of the first period. Then, at 10:19, Esposito scored his ninth goal of the season on a rising slapshot from the left side.

Hodge and Esposito teamed again after Chicago's first goal in the second period, with Hodge scoring on a breakaway after a feed at the Chicago blue line from Esposito.

J. P. Bordeleau scored on a rebound and Pit Martin got a goal on a power-play for Chicago, both in the second period.

THE RANGERS pounded Tony Esposito in the third period, but the Chicago goalie made a number of spectacular saves.

Orr, whose damaged left knee has kept him out since Oct. 27, was with the Black Hawks but did not dress for the game.

BIG ROOKIE Willie Plett, adding muscle to the Atlanta attack, scored two goals and assisted on a third to ignite the Flames to a 6-3 win over the Colorado Rockies.

Atlanta's Dave Shand scored the first goal of his career to get the Flames into the lead in the first period but the Rockies came back to take a 2-1 lead when Gary Croteau and Chuck Arnason connected.

Lysiak tied the game at the 36-second mark of the second period with an off-balance wrist shot from 15 feet. Four minutes later Guy Cholnard slapped in a 15-foot shot from in front of the Colorado net to put the Flames back into the lead.

Plett then scored two in a row, a rebound at 5:03 and a backhand on a faceoff just two seconds after the start of an Atlanta power play at 12:54. The two goals gave the newcomer four in four games since being called up from Tulsa.

ROOKIE GOALTENDER Mike Palnateer turned aside 39 shots to earn his second consecutive shutout as the Toronto Maple Leafs blanked the Montreal Canadiens 1-0 behind Lanny McDonald's first period goal.

Palnateer has recoreded six wins, two losses and a tie in nine games with a 2.25 goals against average.

After McDonald's 14th goal of the season at 8:26 on a slot which jumped out of Montreal goalie Ken Dryden's glove, both netminders displayed perfection. Dryden was tested repeatedly but allowed only the goal by McDonald among 30 shots.

RICK LaPOINTE'S first goal of the season for the Detroit Red Wings provided a 5-5 tie with the St. Louis Blues.

The Detroit defenseman unleashed a 90-foot drive from close to center ice at 12:20 of the final period to beat St. Louis goalie Ed Staniowski cleanly and snap a two game losing streak for the Red Wings.

Saxons to open in Niles tourney

The Schaumburg Saxons are coming off their first winning basketball season in the school's seven-year history, but head coach Joe Breault doesn't figure to win any games on tradition alone.

As a matter of fact, when the Saxons open the new campaign tonight at 6:30 against DuSable in the Niles East Invitational Tourney, Breault and his team will be practically starting from scratch.

THAT'S BECAUSE four-fifths of last year's 20-6 squad is gone. The only remaining starter is 6-foot-7 junior center John Chmiel, who led the Saxons in scoring (16.5) and rebounding (7.9 per game) last season.

Chmiel, already the object of interest for several big-time college scouts, will be the nucleus of a Schaumburg team that will boast good size but little varsity experience.

"It's going to take us a while to find out just what we've got," said Breault, who indicated that he wasn't exactly expecting to waltz through the tough competition at Niles East.

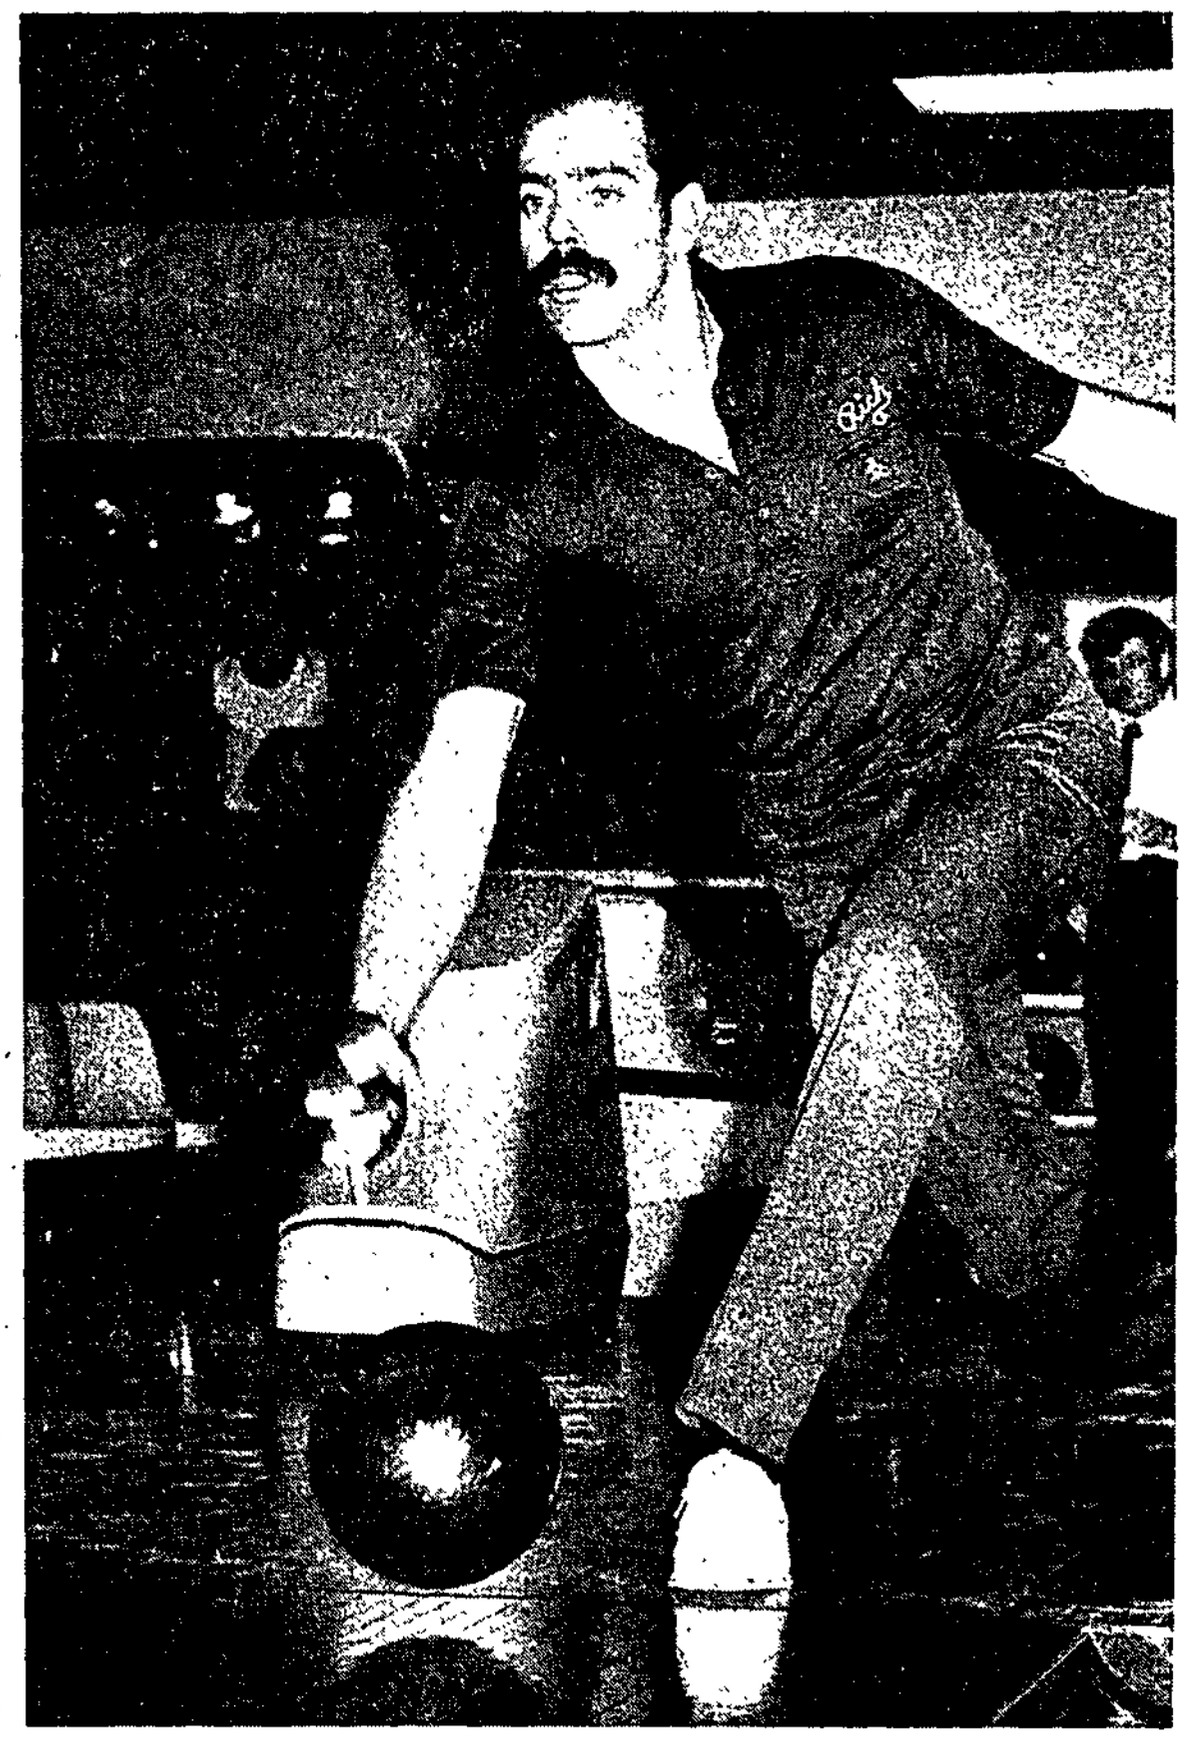
The coach knows what he doesn't have — three all-conference players who graduated with the Class of '76 and one fiery point-guard, Bill Solik, who moved to Indiana before his senior year. Solik was to be the Saxons' team captain this season.

Breault said he may start three juniors and a sophomore tonight. The only senior among the first five will be 6-3 forward Jim Jatis, who saw very little varsity action in 1975-76 when the Saxons were second in the Mid-Suburban South.

Aside from the high-scoring Chmiel, the Saxon juniors in the starting lineup will be 6-4 forward John Moran and 6-3 Jack Breen, who is making the transition to guard. The other guard will probably be 5-9 sophomore Jeff Wright.

ANOTHER SOPH, 6-4 forward George Tuzil, is pushing hard for a starting slot, according to the coach. Tuzil was a first-string tackle on the varsity football team and he showed he is capable of playing with "the big boys."

Should Schaumburg beat DuSable, they will play again Friday at 8 p.m. A loss tonight would put the Saxons in the losers' bracket with a 5 p.m. game Friday.



SOLID AT THE LINE and solid in the pocket were the two weapons Brunswick World Open Tournament leader Rich Carrubba parlayed into a 100-pin cushion after three rounds Wednesday.

Professional tour bowlers match concentration, stamina

by JIM COOK

GLENDALE HEIGHTS — Weight problems are for jockeys, not professional bowlers. And unlike the get-rich-overnight sports of tennis or golf, a victory on the Pro Bowlers Tour does not automatically put steak on the table three times a day.

"If you start thinking about anything but bowling, you're not going to cash in a tournament of this caliber," Rich Carrubba, second-round leader in the $100,000 Brunswick World Open said.

"At this point, the key is not to let down ever — from ball No. 1 to the end," he continued. "You have to control any nervousness that may enter in. You have to let your thoughts rule your body."

CARRUBBA, HIS upper torso a mass of well-distributed muscle, did more than think about bowling Wednesday morning. While some professionals were still on their way to work, the 6-foot, 200-pounder from Hayward, Calif., was already peppering the 1-3 pocket of pins in quest of the $16,000 first-place prize.

"I felt I had a mental edge when the conditions seemed to suit my ball," he said. "You learn to use whatever advantage you can — whatever it takes to win.

"In a tournament with this much prestige, you know guys like Earl (Anthony) and Dick (Weber) are throwing each ball with hate from the pit of their stomachs.

"The competition is so intense that little things like someone talking in the background, or the rack on the next lane going up when you're preparing to deliver the ball upsets your train of thought and rhythm. You might never get it back."

DURING THE opening three days of the tournament, the bowlers are shooting for total pinfall. The field is cut to the top one-third after three days and trimmed to only the highest-scoring 24 keglers for head-to-head matches on the fifth day.

The finals are televised on CBS-TV Saturday from 3:30-5 p.m. when the five survivors battle in a ladder-like progression to the top.

The atmosphere during the preliminary 56 games is generally subdued. Most bowlers never facially express a strike or split. Occasionally, there will be a very discreet hand slap, but only after a thunderous strike or a rare split conversion.

Otherwise, the four hours are spent silently studying the menacing cluster of three-pound, four-ounce pins 60 feet away.

CARRUBBA WAS the most consistent kegler in Wednesday's eye-opening 9 a.m. session. He methodically buried his bowling ball into the pocket to record single-game scores of 188, 202, 195, 244, 187, 209, 229 and 216 and now holds a 100-pin lead over Mike Durbin.

Others weren't as fortunate. Like a dubbed grounder by a pro golfer, or a wood shot by a tennis star, an occasional erratic ball by the lane wizards reminded the 200 spectators that these "machines" are still human.

Gary Dickinson, his near-flawless delivery and exaggerated extension at the foul line putting him among the leaders, dizzied to a 139 game.

Hall of Famer Dick Weber, his two sons competing on other lanes during the same session, signed his name to a 158 game.

AND EVEN Don Johnson, Bowler of the Year in 1971-72, faced the prospect of packing his classic form when the cut was announced.

At the other end of the scoring spectrum, Curt Schmidt, one of the most conservative and serious bowlers on the tour, ran 10 strikes together before nosing an eight count and cherrying the 6-10 spare for a 287.

Throwing on the pair of lanes next door and in the same game, curly-haired Larry Laub opened with a split and nine before snowballing nine strikes in succession for a 278. Tommy Hudson and Jim Plessinger had scored perfect 300 games on Monday.

Carrubba's cushion,should it stand up through the finals on Saturday, would be especially important to the 30-year-old since it would serve as his invitation to the richest competition of them all — the $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions.

"I THINK I'M ready for that," the very articulate kegler said. "My highest finish is second and I've been in this position (leading a tourney at the midway point) before. I've put my time in. It's nice to be sitting on top of the world now, but I'd like to still be here Saturday night."

So would the almost 200 other pros who entered the tournament. But the majority of them will be eating "Hamburger Helper" instad of a juicy steak and not worrying about a diet.

Are Angels buying 1977 AL pennant?

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — The California Angels acquired their second free agent All-Star outfielder in 24 hours Wednesday when they signed a multi-year-contract with Joe Rudi as the nucleus of Charlie Finley's former Oakland powerhouse continued to disintegrate.

One hour after agent Jerry Kapstein announced Rudi's move down the road to Anaheim, Calif., other multi-year agreements were signed by former Philadelphia Phillies' second baseman Dave Cash with the Montreal Expos, and ex-Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris with the Texas Rangers.

Another free agent, outfielder Gary Matthews, was expected to sign with the Atlanta Braves Thursday. A Braves' spokesman said a verbal agreement had been reached by Atlanta owner, Ted Turner, and Matthews, who last season played for the San Francisco Giants.

With the departure of Rudi and Campaneris, Oakland owner Charles O. Finley has now lost four players from last year's A's squad. On Tuesday, the Angels acquired outfielder Don Baylor and the San Diego Padres took first baseman-catcher Gene Tenace. Two other Oakland stars — third baseman Sal Bando and relief pitcher Rollie Fingers — also were taken in the re-entry draft and are negotiating with other clubs.

Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton was ecstatic over his successful negotiations with Kapstein, who had 10 of baseball's 22 free agents in his stable.

"We see so many bright days ahead for California that, if I have a smile on my face, I hope you'll forgive me," Dalton told a Providence news conference ending 11 days of negotiations with Kapstein.

"We are in search of a championship ballclub in Anaheim. We think we are extremely fortunate to be in a position to go into the free agent market and sign players like Don Baylor and Joe Rudi," Dalton said.

The agreements give the Angels an all-star outfield of Bobby Bonds, Baylor and Rudi, one of the best clutch hitters in the game. The 30-year-old Rudi batted .270 for Oakland last season with 13 homers and 94 runs batted in.

"We're pleased to be going to Anaheim," Rudi said. "They are a progressive organization and we are going to win."

He avoided comment on Finley when asked about his feelings toward Oakland.

"I had a lot of great moments there. There were a lot of great guys, but that's behind me now," Rudi said. "I'm looking to the future."

Sox big losers in baseball lottery . . .

NEW YORK — The California Angels have surfaced as the big winner thus far in the baseball free agent lottery but the big loser has been the Chicago White Sox.

The White Sox drafted all six of the players who have reached agreemnt thus far but failed to sign any of them, including cheerished power-hitting outfielders Joe Rudi and Don Baylor, who both signed with the Angels. The White Sox are the only team to go 0-6 thus far.

Philadelphia and Baltimore have lost five players without signing any while Kansas City and Milwaukee have each come up empty on four selections.

Only one team has not been burned yet — Atlanta — and the Braves have called a news conference for Thursday morning reportedly to announce the signing of their top pick in the draft, outfielder Gary Matthews.

The Angels signed their maximum two players allotment, having missed out on Bert Campaneris, Gene Tenace and Bill Campbell. Boston has signed one player (Campbell) and missed out on three; San Diego has signed one (Tenace) and missed out on one (Rudi); Texas is one for two with Campaneris in the fold and Baylor out; and Montreal is hitting .333 with Cash and without Campbell and Campaneris.

. . . And the Cubs have some problems

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs plodded on today, their longtime president talking of finally stepping down, their general manager unsure of his status and their field manager no longer with a valid contract. The Cubs also have lost three of their four free agent choices (Don Baylor, Gene Tenace and Bill Campbell) to other clubs and officials admit they have little hope in landing the fourth (pitcher Wayne Garland). The Cubs lost the first three by forfeit, without making an offer.

Cub President P. K. Wrigley has confirmed his intention to pass on his presidential title to an "outside" businessman although one has yet to be picked. "I've been trying to do it for the last three years," said Wrigley, 81.

The new man will determine the futures of general manager Salty Saltwell and Jim Marshall, the field manager whose contract ran out Monday night.

Marshall thus became a managerial free agent but no one is exactly beating a path to his home in Scottsdale, Ariz., according to Saltwell.

"He no longer is obligated to the Cubs," Saltwell said. "He can make his own deal. I can say that no other club has inquired as to his availability." Wrigley said the nine-member Cub board of directors would have to announce a new president. So far, no meeting has been scheduled.

Ten Hawks honored for play in fine 7-2 year

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Had they played with a little less of the spirit and tenacity that marked their season, the Harper football team of 1976 could have finished with a 2-7 record rather than the 7-2 mark that made this the finest football team in Hawk history.

"We won five games by a total of 14 points," said head coach John Eliasik. "I think that shows the type of kids we had playing on this team."

Harper's competition thought enough of those kids to honor 10 of them with spots on various post-season all-star teams.

MAKING FIRST team All-Region IV and All-N4C were DuWayne Mill, Kevin Kristick and Jerry Parker.

Mill, who was voted the teams' Most Valuable Player, made the squad as a wide receiver and punter. He led the Hawks in receptions with 28 catches for 564 yards, in scoring with 33 points and punted 42 times for a 39.4 yard average.

Parker made the select list as an offensive lineman and Kristick, who set football fashion back 10 years with his turquoise shoes, caught 26 passes for 493 yards to make the team as a wide receiver.

Both Mill and Parker have been recommended for All-America consideration.

EARNING SLOTS on the second team were quarterback Jim Atkinson, running back Butch Allen, defensive end Kevin Koppari, defensive back Chet DeKing and defensive tackle Steve Long.

Defensive back Tim Twitchell and offensive lineman Barry Conatser earned honorable mention.

"There were two significant factors to this season," Eliasik said. "First, we had the best record ever and we also played the toughest schedule since I've been here."

In addition to a stiff schedule of N4C schools that included nationally ranked Joliet and Wright, the Hawks stepped out of the league for matches with 15th ranked Concordia College of Wisconsin and the junior varsity from Northwestern University.

WITH STRONG performers at the so-called "skill positions" and potentially "the strongest defense we've ever had" Eliasik had hopes of a fine year in 1976.

Although they never recorded a shutout, there is little doubt the defense was the heart of this Harper team.

"Even before the offense got it together," Eliasik said, "we could always count on the defense."

Sophomores Long, Koppari, Greg Marek, Greg Goldman and Mill will not return. The nucleus of next year's defense will be Mike Dickerson, Twitchell and Vince Hall in the secondary, Jim Broderick and John Lipp on the defensive line and Ted Tyk at linebacker.

THE STATUS of quarterback Jim Atkinson is clouded. With another year of eligibility remaining, Atkinson, who passed for 1,126 yards, would be a welcome addition to any football team.

"There's a chance he'll return to California for his final year," Eliasik said. "He went to high school out there and that's where a lot of his ties are."

Harper will graduate 1,119 yards of rushing offense when sophomores Allen (554) and Rich Hoevel (565) leave.

The running chores next year will fall to Joe Littwin and Don Sadowski, who saw limited action in 1976.

Backup quarterbacks Dennis Drinan and Jeff Thilgen will also return. Drinan was the Hawks' No. 1 place kicker this year.

BARRY Van DELINDER, who caught eight passes for 106 yards, will be the leading receiver candidate next fall.

With Conatser and Parker leaving from the offensive line, tackle Terry be counted on to take up more of the blocking duties.

"Overall, the sophomores all had really good years," Eliasik said. "That seemed to be the key to our season. We had only about a dozen sophomores so if all the fresmen come back next year we'll be in good shape."

A loss to Wright in the final game of the season dropped the Hawks to third in the N4C and bumped them out of the national rankings, but Eliasik is expecting the positive accomplishments of his team to extend to next year.

"The entire conference was improved this year," he said, "and we had to improve to stay competitive. After a year like we had, I think our program will just keep getting better."

COUGAR IN CONTROL. Conant's Kathy Surnicki takes a rip during state tourney play in field hockey in Winnetka Friday. Surnicki scored Conant's first goal. Her team lost a heartbreaker in two overtimes to Barrington, 7-6.

4 Mid-Suburban teams dominate 10-man, all-conference golf team

Four teams accounted for all but one of golfers named to the Mid-Suburban's all-conference links team this year.

The second annual all-MSL team, selected by league coaches, was represented three times by title-winning Prospect. Palatine, Buffalo Grove and Fremd had two on the 10-man list with one Forest View entry topping off the squad.

The Knights, which went on to capture the state championship, had Scott Spellmann, Dave Fatina and junior Steve Kurka making all-conference. Veterans Nick Zambole and Mike Sievers were selected from Palatine while juniors Mike Marshall and Rich Peterson were picked from Buffalo Grove.

Vike selections were Dave Witt and sophomore Don Sullivan. Falcon junior Joe Carcerano rounded out the MSL all-stars.

Herald's All-Area team

67 in the conference tournament to annex medalist honors hands down.

Zambole was also third medalist at the Fenton Invite and fourth medalist at the Lake Park Invite before placing second in the tough Barrington sectional to earn a trip to the state finals.

Spielmann led the league in average this past fall at 36.8 and has been probably Prospect's steadiest performer over the past two campaigns. He paced the team to a conference title and a sectional crown prior to their ultimate conquest at Champaign.

Fatina was also instrumental in Prospect's sectional triumph, carding a 75 that tied for second with Spielmann on the medalist list. The senior all-area newcomer also put together back-to-back 79s in the cold and rain at Champaign to inspire the strong Knight finish.

PROSPECT'S TOP scorer at the state meet was Moats. His 156 showing under extremely adverse conditions in the finals netted him a sixth place individual ranking as well.

Fatina had the second lowest Mid-Suburban average at 37.0 and Moats ranked eighth at 39.2. Also in the sub-40 range at 37.7 (fourth-ranked) was junior Marshall, the only underclassman on this year's all-area first team after making the second team as a sophomore.

Runnerup medalist at the Sterling Invite, Marshall fired rounds of 79 and 76 while helping the Bison bag district and sectional thrones.

THE SECOND team, in addition to Dee and Carcerano, includes Pirate Mike Sievers, Hersey's Mark Miesfeld and Dave Witt of Fremd.

On the third squad are Joe Husar of Hoffman Estates and Jack Patterson of St. Viator along with Hoffman, Krolack and Kurka.

Sievers was on the first team and Husar on the second team last year. Krolack, Miesfeldt and Carcerano were all third team all-area selections in 1975.

Athlete's day slated for St. Viator H.S.

St. Viator High School will sponsor a special Athlete's Day this Saturday from 1:00 to 4 p.m. at the high school with games, prizes and awards among the main attractions for local seventh and eighth graders.

The event is free of charge for any junior high schooler in the St. Viator area. Refreshments will be served and all the St. Viator coaches will be on hand to answer questions.

Competition will be held in field-goal kicking, free-throw shooting, and 50-yard freestyle swimming.

St. Viator is located at the corner of Dryden and Oakton Streets in Arlington Heights.

Plans continue for Legion dinner

George Rulon, who directs the American Legion baseball program in the United States, will be the guest speaker at the special recognition dinner honoring the Arlington Heights team that finished second in the nation.

The program is scheduled for Saturday night, Nov. 27 at the Itasca Country Club.

Mark Newman, who starred on the 1965 national finalist and is now an assistant baseball coach at Southern Illinois University, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Several special presentations will be made at the program, and there are still some tickets available. Approximately 300 people are expected to attend.

For any information on the program or tickets, call Lloyd Meyer, coach of the Arlington American Legion team, at 253-6481 after 5 p.m.

Office leases need careful review before signing

by LYNN ASINOF

A law firm recently was socked with a $35,000 bill for relocating its fire hose cabinets. It was the one thing the firm hadn't thought to ask about when negotiating its lease for new office space.

The story isn't uncommon. Others have signed leases and then found their office space had hidden expenses like costly furnace repairs, inflated utility costs or additional phone installations.

"It's not that they (building managers) are being dishonest," said office leasing specialist Michael L. Silver. "It's just that the tenant isn't asking."

SILVER, HEAD of the office leasing department at Howard Ecker & Co., said most tenants don't know how to negotiate an office lease.

"There is just no way in the world they know what to ask for," Silver said.

The first problem, Silver said, is that most companies don't know how much or what kind of space they really need. In fact, he said "most people automatically lock themselves into a move before their lease is up."

"They go after the landlord for rent, rent, rent and what they really should be looking for is contiguous office space," Silver said.

BY ANALYZING their needs over a long period of time, Silver said companies can obtain leases that allow for expansion or relocation.

"We always tell the tenant to take the longest lease possible with options to cancel," Silver said. He said the same contract can include an option for a 25 per cent space increase without an increase in rental rates.

The idea, according to Silver, is to be able to stay in a building for a long time, which is not always easy.

For example, Silver said some firms don't bother to check if their office space is part of another company's option for expansion. He said often small companies move into a building only to find they must move out in three years because someone else has a prior claim on their space.

OTHER PEOPLE don't find out who their neighbors are and get caught in unliveable traffic patterns.

"We develop tenant profiles of buildings — what the tenant's chances of surviving is over a long run," Silver said.

Part of the planning process uses a space planner and a phone consultant. Silver said the tenant pays a small fee for the phone consultant, but said the cost of using both his agency and a space planner is the same as it would be if negotiating directly with the building owner.

The advantage, Silver said, is that the planner and the real estate broker are working for the tenant instead of the building.

SILVER SAID USING a phone consultant is a wise investment. "We don't go on what Illinois Bell says," he said. "A phone consultant can advise you on a different kind of system that Bell has, but they are not telling you about."

Once you know what you need, Silver said the next step is to try to get the landlord to provide as much as possible.

Each building provides something called "building standard installation," which outlines the number of phone installations, electrical outlets and partitions that will be installed by the owner.

Silver said, however, that every "building standard installation" is different, and most tenants end up paying extra out of their own pockets if they don't negotiate carefully.

WHEN THERE IS lots of office space available, Silver said, it is easy to get the landlord to provide a lot of extras. But with the present tight market, he said it is often difficult to find available office space.

"Anything over 10,000 square feet is not to be had," Silver said, noting that lack of rentable space is forcing many firms to build.

Although some new office buildings are under construction in the Northwest suburbs, Silver said the office market is tight both in the city and in the suburbs. Rents in both places are comparable, ranging from $8.50 to $13 per square foot for buildings less than 10 years old.

Silver said the choice between the suburbs and the city is not a difficult one for most companies. He said many businesses are dependent on both the transportation and services of the city and can't leave. Others work better in the suburbs, where free parking and access to the suburban population are assets.

"You find sales organizations going out of downtown," Silver said. "But for the most part you find people going from one suburb to another."

Expert says option to mortgage needed

Although the family-owned home still is the key to our society, current conditions and the standard mortgage instrument have combined to shut most young families and first-time home buyers out of the housing market, said Kenneth T. Rosen, Princeton University assistant professor of economics and public affairs.

He said the magnitude of the nation's housing crisis could be understood by considering the fact that two-thirds of all American families could not afford to purchase the home in which they now live.

HE CITED AS CAUSES of the crisis high and rapidly rising home prices, high mortgage interest rates, substantial and often prohibitive downpayment requirements and high maintenance and utility costs.

The mortgage instrument, he said, is not responsive to the needs of home buyers, particularly young families. An option to the standard mortgage instrument is needed, one which requires the same monthly mortgage payments for the life of the mortgage.

The Young Families Housing Bill, introduced last July by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass, would offer an appropriate alternative package of housing market policies, Rosen said.

It consists of two elements: The first is an equity adjusted mortgage instrument. The second, an individual housing account.

UNDER PROVISIONS for the equity mortgage, Rosen said, borrowers would contract for a loan on the identical terms they now obtain.

However, the loan agreement would contain a provision enabling the borrower to receive an additional loan each year equivalent to one-half the rate of inflation in the past year multiplied by the amount of the mortgage principal outstanding at the time.

The loan would be applied to annual payments due that year, thereby reducing monthly payments. Under the plan, monthly payments would not exceed standard monthly payments until the 11th year when improved incomes of borrowers enable them to handle the increased payments.

It makes pervect economic sense to the lender, Rosen said. "As long as money income and property values rise faster than the increase in the mortgage liability, there is no increase in lender risk."

THE INDIVIDUAL housing account would permit the first-time home buyer to accumulate the substantial down payment required to purchase a home, Rosen explained. Under provisions of the housing account, a household would be permitted to deduct up to $2,500 a year from gross federal income taxes and put this money in a segregated individual housing account.

Up to $10,000 would be allowed to accumulate in this account. These funds could be withdrawn at any time and applied to the purchase of a home. As long as the funds were used for a home purchase, no taxes would be assessed against the sum, or interest accumulated in the account.

'Loopholes' seen

Group raps proposals for U.S. building rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists have charged that new government proposals to allow industrial development in already polluted areas are so full of loopholes that the air will get dirtier if they are allowed to take effect.

The allegation was made by a representative of the Clean Air Coalition following a meeting with Environmental Protection Agency officials to discuss proposals laid out recently by Deputy EPA Administrator John R. Quarles Jr., in a speech at Anaheim, Calif.

Quarles said EPA had developed a "tradeoff policy" in which new industrial development would be allowed even in areas where the air has not yet been cleaned up to the level the law requires — provided there is an accompanying reduction of other pollution in the same area.

SUCH AREAS include most urban sections of the country.

Rafe Pomerance, a representative of Friends of the Earth who attended the meeting at EPA, said the regulations, still in a draft form, do not have adequate safeguards to make sure existing sources of pollution will be curtailed as new ones are allowed to begin operation.

"The regulations are full of loopholes," he said. "The way they've written them they won't work."

He said the agency went further than Congress did in its proposal to amend the Clean Air Act — a piece of legislation which died in the closing days of the last session. He said the congressional proposal was more narrowly defined.

HE SAID THE coalition, which also includes such groups as the Sierra Club and the American Lung Association, hoped the matter could be solved without taking EPA to court.

Quarles said the new approach splits the difference between dictates of the Clean Air Act, which prohibits introduction of new sources of pollution such as power plants in areas where air quality standards have not been met, and the demands for industrial development in some of those same areas.

Quarles noted that the cost of pollution already "runs high, both financially and in personal health. The heart, the lungs, the very lives of people are being slowly, quietly destroyed. And yet these very areas (where pollution already exists) provide ideal locations — economically — for more industrial expansion."

$70,000 house market boosts sales for Miller

A surprisingly strong market for single family homes priced $70,000 or more has helped boost sales this year for Miller Builders, Inc., Skokie-based land developer and builder.

Miller Builders has sold 270 homes priced $70,000 or more so far this year, representing 60 per cent of the firm's total sales in the first nine months of 1976.

The surge in sales in the $70,000-plus range reflects consumer confidence, and also offers an insight into how financially-minded homebuyers feel they can cope with an inflationary economy, said Sheldon Lazar, Miller director of sales and marketing.

"Many of these sales are to home buyers who purchased $35,000 homes seven to 10 years ago. In many cases, they have seen the value of their homes rise to the $60,000s. Purchase of a new home in the $70,000s for them is a leap forward in their lifelong buildup of equity," he said.

Buyers of $70,000-plus homes range from the 30s to the 60s in age, and include new homeowners as well as second homeowners, said Lazar.

The fact that persons selling a home that has increased in value over the years are not subject to the capital gains tax if they purchase another property within 18 months encourages the trend to upgrade equity, Lazar said.

The saturation effect of inflation also stimulates new home sales in this price range. Appreciation of value grows fastest in the first five to seven years, and tends to slow down and level off in older homes, Lazar said.

Although each circumstance is different, typically, a couple in their 40s or 50s have seen a home they have owned for 15 or 20 years escalate in value to the $60,000-plus price range.

Upgrading of U.S. cities urged by mortgage chief

Active involvement in efforts to revitalize the older areas of the nation's cities was urged for the National Assn. of Realtors recently by Oakley Hunter, chairman of the board and president of the Federal National Mortgage Assn.

Hunter, discussing the outlook for the mortgage market in 1977, said there are opportunities for the real estate sales industry in the growing interest in the rehabilitation of older urban neighborhoods.

The Federal National Mortgage Association, known also as Fannie Mae, is the nation's largest supplier of funds for residential mortgages.

Fannie Mae recently announced a pilot project in urban lending to be undertaken in St. Louis.

"IN THE ST. LOUIS pilot project," Hunter said, "we are seeking up-to-date information on the characteristics of urban neighborhoods, housing, and the people who live there or who want to live there. Our purpose is to develop home lending policies and techniques which are more responsive to today's needs and at the same time are financially sound. What we may learn and develop in St. Louis can then be applied beneficially by FNMA and other institutions in cities throughout the country."

Hunter said there is an expanding market for city housing in many parts of the country and that Realtors can and should take an active part in the encouragement and development of that market.

Hunter said FNMA will soon begin distribution of a motion picture illustrating what is being done in various cities around the country in the way of neighborhood preservation and outlining some of the problems which have been encountered.

Trying to second guess realty broker expensive

Mr. Meltzer on real estate
by Bernard Meltzer

Many letters I receive indicate that people have problems because they attempt to second-guess their real estate brokers. The following letter is a typical example.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have made a terrible blunder and I think your readers could benefit from my mistakes.

About a year ago my wife and I decided to sell our house. Someone told us that it was always smart to use a high asking price and negotiate with the buyers. I called one of the area's most reputable real estate brokers and told him I wanted to sell my house, and the asking price was $90,000.

The real estate broker informed me my house would be very marketable at $70,000, and that it was not probable I would get much more than that. I agreed, but said my strategy was to ask for $90,000 and wait for a high offer.

FINALLY, AFTER A year, I have an agreement of sale for $73,500. I have lost a substantial amount of time and realize now that the real estate broker was right. I think this can be a good lesson for everyone. — WANTED TOO MUCH.

You are absolutely right. This is a very good example of a problem that occurs much too often. Your real estate broker is in a dual position. The more he sells your house for, the more commission he makes.

On the other hand, if it takes too long to market your property, his profit will shrink. Most brokers suggest a fair compromise between these two factors. If your house sells too fast, it could indicate you are not asking enough money. If your house takes too long to sell, the price is probably higher than it should be.

Rely on your real estate broker, since his interests are similar to yours. If you do not trust his judgment, then you should obtain an independent real estate appraisal.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Our home insurance policy contains a provision that says the insurance becomes invalid if the home is unoccupied for 60 days or more. We are retired and are planning to spend three months in Florida this winter.

We have heard that if a relative of the family (who lives nearby) occupies the home overnight for at least one night within the 60-day period, the house is considered to have been "occupied," and thus our insurance would not be invalid. I have tried informally to learn the minimum requirements, but have been unsuccessful.

Can you give us the facts so that we may be sure to meet the minimum requirements and still enjoy our vacation with peace of mind? —ANXIOUS TO DO RIGHT.

EVERY INSURANCE company has its own underwriting rules, and you should write to your company telling them of your plans, requesting them to acknowledge and approve that your coverage will continue on that basis.

If not, you must find out what your company requires and arrange to meet these requirements to make certain that your coverage will not become invalid.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My wife has been after me for a long time to paint the walls of our house. We have had paper on them ever since we moved in, and she wanted a change.

Well, she nagged me so long that I finally got around to steaming off the wallpaper, and was that a job! But that wasn't the worst of it. There were so many cracks under the paper that I'm afraid to paint. It would be so unsightly.

CAN YOU TELL ME how to properly patch plaster cracks? — ALL SHOOK UP.

In order to do a professional job, you must scrape each crack to a minimum opening of one-quarter inch, making the opening a little larger at the back.

Dampen the crack with water and fill at once with patching plaster. Feather the edges so that they meet the existing surface.

Be alerted to the fact that patching plaster will harden quickly. So if you have quite a few cracks to do, mix the plaster with one-third vinegar and two-thirds water. In this way, you will slow the hardening process.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: There has been a beautiful cut glass vase in our family for years. It belonged to my mother, and to her mother before that. Now it is mine.

MY MOTHER, AS I recall, used to keep it in the hallway with pussywillows in it. It looked lovely.

Recently I filled it with water and arranged some gorgeous flowers from our garden in it. With horror, I realized that water was slowly seeping through little cracks that weren't really visible. Now I know why my mother used pussywillows — you don't need water with them.

Is there anything I can do to seal those tiny cracks? The vase looks so perfect with fresh flowers in it. — LOVE BEAUTIFUL THINGS

An antique dealer I know told me that such leaks can be fixed by pouring molten paraffin into the vase. Make sure to shake it from side to side so that the sides and bottom are covered. Then pour off the excess.

I THINK YOU WILL find that this solves the problem.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I really did a dumb thing, and am terrified that I will not be able to rectify my mistake. Please help me.

After five years of marriage, my wife left me. I was astounded, since I thought we had a happy union. I was so in love with her that I promised her anything if she would return to me.

She agreed to come back if I signed over our house to her. Naturally, the house was in both our names. In my anxiety to get her back, at any cost, I agreed to this.

Well, you've guessed it! She came back to me, I signed the house over to her, and she left me again! This time she says she's never coming back. I want my name back on the deed. But she flatly refuses. Is there anything I can do? — A POOR FOOL.

You see what love can do to you? I'm afraid you have lost your house. You signed over your half in the name of love.

However, bear one thing in mind. This may be a little consolation for you. The house may be in her name, but she will not be able to sell it while you are still man and wife. This may not help you monetarily, but perhaps the satisfaction derived from it will salve your wounds a little.

Unforeseen events muddle planning for retirement

The foggy, foggy future. Trying to plan intelligently for one's retirement is tricky enough under the best of circumstances, and it's further complicated by possible events over which we have absolutely no control. And, frequently, the hard decison has to be made to scrap the whole thing and start all over.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We purchased a lot in a recreational project on a river in northern California in 1972.

This sounded good to us for our retirement, but the project flopped and is in the courts as a fraud and is being postponed year after year. We, and others, can't sell because of this. Now that we are retired, this money comes out of our savings and we just cannot continue to keep these payments up.

We paid $16,000 for the lot and, by the time it is paid for, will come to $20,000. We fear that my health, and my husband's age, will never permit us to enjoy this. We don't want to lose our money, but what should we do? Mrs. R.M.T. (Bellflower, Calif.).

ANSWER: It's a rotten shame that the people who invariably get clobbered in land frauds are invariably those who can least afford it.

It's no time for vain regrets, but four years before you went into retirement was an extremely unfortunate time to obligate yourself for long-term payments on a piece of property that isn't cheap by anyone's standard of measurement.

AT YOUR AGE, and in your physical condition, you simply cannot afford to keep dipping into savings to make payments on this property. You're throwing good money after bad. Bite your lip, take your loss, and let the property go hang. It could be in court for another 10 years and, even then, what would you have? A piece of land in a discredited recreational area.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My husband and I live in a small house on one-half acre of land near a major shopping center. We have wanted to build apartments on our back lot for years, but never had the money. Now that the family (six children) is grown up and gone, our thoughts are turning back to the apartments again. We have no savings and would have to borrow to build.

Our question is: at our ages (I'm 58 and my husband is 60½), should we borrow? He would do most of the work himself, since he is a laborer in that field, with the help of his sons. If building is out, would it be wiser to sell the place and invest the money? We should get $30,000. We are seeking a way to increase our retirement income which will be about $600 a month, which isn't too much to support the three of us. We have a retarded daughter. Mrs. A. M. (Phoenix, Ariz.).

ANSWER: I don't think I'd go the apartment route. In the first place it's extremely risky when you have no savings cushion under you, and I don't know, really, where you would get 100 per cent financing for a venture of this sort.

THE OTHER QUESTION is the matter of zoning for this type of building. I assume that you are not thinking of building this apartment building on the same half-acre lot occupied by your present home, and that you have the half-acre lot behind it. Even so, I have serious doubts that you could get zoning for this type of structure on such a small lot.

The only trouble with selling your home and investing the proceeds is that you must have a place to live and I can't really think of any type of investment that would give you a yield handsome enough to offset rent that you would have to pay and profit on top of that.

I'd concentrate like mad on building up my savings between now and retirement and, possibly, give some thought to refinancing the home (which, reading between the lines, I assume is free and clear) to raise $5,000 or $10,000 in investable money.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We are getting ready to put our house on the market, but I would like to take our wall-to-wall carpeting with us when we move out. My husband says that this kind of carpeting has to be sold with the house "as is." Is this true? Mrs. G.G.B. (Allentown, Pa.).

ANSWER: Not necessarily, but it's a bit unusual to remove wall-to-wall carpeting which, by its very nature, rarely lends itself to installation in another house with a different floor plan.

Still and all (it must be new), you can exclude it from sale of the house as long as this is clearly emphasized in the sales description of the property.

Sixplex in future housing plans

The housing industry today is taking a new look at multiplication tables to help with new designs for future residential dwellings.

The sixplex — a multiple project offering six individual living units within one cluster — is the latest addition to the housing market, said Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group, Inc.

"Most sixplex developments feature townhomes with multilevel plans. And, in 'sixplex states' — California, Virginia and Arizona — developments are designed with no 'inside units' and with many additional interior amenities," he said.

IMIC studies indicate that sixplex housing is especially appealing to younger households — in the 24-30 year-old age bracket — and, surprisingly, to empty nesters. Both these groups are interested in flexibly-priced, minimum-maintenance housing with built-in social environments.

The over-60 group, however, favors the unilevel sixplex communities — homes without steps — whereas their younger counterparts opt for the versatility of the multilevel lifestyle.

OTHER FEATURED highlights offered by most sixplex homes include availability of corner units in each group for every buyer — thanks to strategic angling of the buildings within the cluster. New interior amenities are available such as "conversation pits" — sunken living rooms — and fireplaces which simultaneously front on two rooms.

Loft space is featured for upper units — with skylights for art, hobby or recreational room use — the family rooms are in lower units. There are private individual entries for each unit and separate, enclosed garages for all desiring such space.

Balconies for upper units and spacious patios for ground-level homes are each suitable for barbecue cooking and entertaining. Plentiful open area around the community — with as much as 40 per cent of the development left as green, non-built space allows bike and pedestrian paths, baseball diamonds and picnic spots.

"More and more such communities are being developed along with full recreational facilities as well — gymnasiums, swimming pools and tennis courts.

"The simplex is proving to be sure-fire winner — either as a primary residence or as a vacation home site for families in every economic group," Goss said.

Single-family home demand to increase: finance unit chief

The surging demand for single-family dwellings, already hovering near record levels, is expected to climb even higher in the near future, according to a spokesman for the housing finance industry.

"The recovery in over-all economic activity will continue throughout 1977 and likely throughout 1978, producing higher levels of employment and per capita income to support the growing desire of consumers for home ownership," said Kennon V. Rothchild, newly-elected president of the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America (MBA).

Speaking before the National Assn. of Realtors convention, Rothchild predicted that the record number of young families entering the home-buying market, combined with a heavy turnover of existing homes, would stimulate another rise in single-family housing starts to 1.3 million units in 1977, compared with a little over 1.1 million units this year.

Rothchild also said he expects the average level of mortgage rates in 1977 to be below this year's.

Assuming that inflation is kept under rein, that business and government do not make excessive demands on the credit market, and that the government will not try to artificially stimulate apartment building, Rothchild predicted that the next decade will be a "golden era" of single-family housing, outstripping even the boom in the 1950's.

Transferees relocate with aid of homefinding staff

If you're among the thousands of families which have been transferred into the Chicago area recently, then you know what a task it is to find the right home in a strange new town.

Now consider having to do this not just once but 800 times a year in cities all over the country. That in substance is the task of Lori Healy, manager of the Homefinding Dept. of Employee Transfer Corporation (ETC), a subsidiary of Chicago Title and Trust Co. ETC is retained by corporations to buy the homes of employees being transferred and find new ones in the new location. The homefinding service is available to any transferee, whether or not they're employed by a client corporation.

Ms. Healy and her staff have been so successful that in the course of helping 800 families in the past year, they've almost never had a case where a family had to take up temporary living quarters and store its furniture because they couldn't find the housing they were looking for. That includes working with families whose children needed special education facilities.

"IN 75 PER CENT OF the cases, we can help a transferred family find the new home it wants in a single weekend," Ms. Healy said.

One of the most important parts of the job is to acquaint the transferee with the new location and the prices of homes there before he ever arrives to do his house-hunting. The homefinding staff provides this information on every major city in the U. S., and many minor ones as well.

"People are often shocked when they realize what a house costs in another city," she said. "And they may be also shocked by how the new community appears. A person transferred from the Boston area, for example, where there are lots of hills and trees, may be dismayed at the barren look of Cheyenne or Phoenix. They must be conditioned in advance or they'll be discouraged."

Ms. Healy and her staff can give a transferred employee complete information on any city in the country. Once she knows what the employee is looking for, she can tell him exactly where to look and she'll line up a selected local Realtor to assist. It's all done on an individual basis, since every transferred family has different needs.

"YOU HAVE TO WORK with the entire family, not just the employee," Ms. Healy said. "The wife of a transferred man may be especially apprehensive, even hysterical. It's especially tough to move a family with high-school children. As employees become older, moving presents a new set of problems. So a lot of personal counseling is necessary to make the move easier for them.

"When a transferee acts on his own, he's likely to be steered to an area by a real estate broker who has an interest there or by a fellow employee who already lives there," she said. "Our homefinding isn't that limited. We're interested in referring the transferee to an area where his investment is protected and where his lifestyle will be satisfied."

The homefinding process starts when the transferred employee telephones or writes ETC asking for help. Ms. Healy or one of her staff responds with a telephone call and then, in the course of 30 to 45 minutes, delves deeply into the family's needs.

These include some obvious facts about the family: how many members, their ages, what kind of house is presently owned, whether the family wants to rent or buy, what price range is wanted, desired downpayment, special educational and religious requirements, what kind of home the family wants, and what features it considers essential.

But more important are the not so obvious needs which Ms. Healy gets during the telephone interview. It's important, she says, that the homefinding counselor be able to relate personally to the transferees, whether he's looking for a $30,000 home or one costing $150,000.

"IN TALKING TO transferees, especially the wife, we try to delve deeply into their housing preferences and at the same time start acquainting them with their new location," Ms. Healy said. "During this counseling we give the family a lot of useful information on looking for a new house."

The information she prepares on the new location is quite detailed. It can include types of homes available in different price categories; downpayments; interest rates, and terms of mortgages available; rental figures; taxes; schools; transportation and general community information.

"We have complete data on most parts of the country, which enable us to tell a person not only how much a house will cost but also what the overall cost of living is and whether there's a symphony orchestra in town," she said.

In one case, ETC was called by an executive who wanted information on Chicago, Milwaukee, San Francisco and Minneapolis. He had a choice of assignments in all four cities and he was trying to decide which one to take. The homefinding staff gave him the data he was seeking, and he decided on Minneapolis.

ONCE THEY HAVE an idea of what the employee is looking for, the homefinding staff then contacts a local Realtor in the new city.

"We select the broker by reputation and performance in dealing with transferees. We want to make sure that the Realtor will meet our standards and really work with the family," Ms. Healy said.

Once the broker has been selected, the homefinding staff makes arrangements for the transferee to come to the new city and for the broker to meet him and show him around. Because the broker is already familiar with what the family is looking for, he can confine the house-hunting tour to the most likely areas and homes.

Because of all this advance preparation and counseling, most transferees can arrive in the new city on a Friday night to begin their house-hunting and buy a new home by Sunday. Without this help, the transferee generally takes a week or two looking on his own, thus losing valuable time and running up expenses. And if he fails to find a home, he may have to move into temporary quarters or delay moving his family.

The average span from the time an employee first calls the homefinding staff until he moves into his new home is two months, Ms. Healy says. In emergencies, the time can be cut to three weeks. Finding the home goes fast; it's the paperwork and the actual move that hold things up.

Where things get sticky, the homefinding service can even help the employee get a mortgage.

One of the most difficult problems arises in the case of families whose children need special education facilities. This means narrowing down the choice of homes to those that the family will like in school districts that offer the needed facilities.

"We've done all this, and even arranged appointments for the family to meet and talk with the school administrator. We can check out any city in the country for special needs such as this," Ms. Healy said.

House-buying talk for tenants tonight

A home-buying seminar geared to apartment dwellers is being offered free to the public tonight by ERA, Behrens and Zaun, Realtors of Buffalo Grove. The seminar will be at the ERA office, 100 W. Dundee Ave. at 7:30 p.m.

"We are gearing the workshop to the renters because we will be talking about the basics of home owning," said Arlene Sistak, manager of the ERA office. "Renters hear so many different stories about buying a home, that we want them to hear the facts."

There's nobody else like you . . . Because you're different, we are also. Come to Starck & Co. for understanding attention that saves time and money.

We can help you get important data on your new hometown and put you in touch with a friendly representative from our branch office in that city. Then we can give you a Guarantee Sale contract on your present home so that your equity money will be available when you have selected your new home and are ready to move.

D. Retiring or Moving to an Apartment?

Handles home transactions

Helen Boddy- walking fact book

Helen Boddy

Helen Boddy is a walking store of facts and figures. She has to be because as closing officer for Starck & Co., she handles some 500 to 600 home transactions a year.

In fact, the firm, at 209 S. Main St. in Mt. Prospect, employs Mrs. Boddy solely for the purpose of coordinating the myriad of details involved in a home sale.

"There're so many things to remember in buying a home that a buyer or seller does himself a real favor when he lets a Realtor handle the details," she says. "It can get to be very complicated, particularly if the sales contract is not written properly."

Although the buyer should let his broker or attorney concern himself with many of the details, he would do well, Boddy cautions, to look the house over carefully during his final inspection prior to closing.

"HIS COPY OF the sales contract will list everything that goes and stays in the home he is buying and also what he is getting for his money."

Boddy says he should check out each item. Sometimes, a window has been broken or an item left unrepaired. Maybe the furnace or air conditioner, dishwasher or disposal is not working properly.

"If this is the case, the buyer should make a note of it and report it to his Realtor or attorney so money can be held in escrow until the appropriate items are fixed."

Occasionally the seller inadvertently takes an item with him that he is supposed to leave with the home. When this happens, the buyer should contact the broker or attorney immediately, she says. "He should always check all appliances and plumbing fixtures to make sure they're functioning well."

USUALLY SOME items are traditionally left with the house, according to the closing officer. Such items are the dishwasher, disposal and any built-in oven. Few, though, leave the refrigerator as part of the basic home price. Window air conditioners may or may not be included as well as carpeting, draperies, rods, television antennas or other such items.

If a buyer has any doubt as to whether an item will be left, he again should contact his broker or attorney to have the item clarified in the final closing papers, Boddy says.

Sheds in the backyard are usually included in the basic purchase price of the home as well as window shades and blinds.

People usually take their patio furniture with them. One man even specified the purchase price did not include several rosebushes he wanted from his backyard. Another couple wanted an evergreen tree excluded from the price.

"When the seller's attorney makes up the bill of sale prior to closing, all personal property the buyer is buying should be accurately listed so he knows what he is getting," she said.

"One of the best parts of buying a home from a previous owner," she said, "is that you can pick up many bargains with the home. You don't have to start from scratch in furnishing the home as you do with a new home."

Softening water has several advantages

Are there water spots or a film on your dishes when you leave them on the counter to dry? Does your laundry come out looking dingy instead of bright? Do you have trouble getting your hair shiny and manageable after a shampoo?

If any of these things is true, your water is probably too hard. About 80 per cent of the country has water that's hard. The solution is softening the water before it enters the piping system.

Besides cleaner-looking dishes, a brighter wash and shinier hair after a shampoo, the benefits of softened water include:

- Housework becomes easier.
- Coffee, tea, vegetables and other food tastes better and even looks better.
- You feel better after a bath because there's no soap residue left on your skin.
- You need less soap or detergent to do your household chores, as well as less hot water, so you save some money.
- The life of your pipe and water-using equipment is prolonged because there is no mineral scale buildup.

NI-Gas inserts 'smell and tell'

No, your gas bill isn't leaking, explains Northern Illinois Gas Co. Included in November and December residential bills is a "smell and tell" insert designed to familiarize everyone in your household with the distinctive odor of natural gas.

Because natural gas is odorless, NI-Gas mixes an odorant with the fuel for easier detection. A small amount of odorant has been added to the "smell and tell" insert so that you can be sure your family knows what natural gas smells like.

NI-Gas warns that a faint gas odor near an appliance may simply mean a pilot is out and needs relighting. However, if there's any doubt call NI-Gas right away, day or night.

IN MOST INSTANCES, NI-Gas or your local fire department will come to your home to make a thorough inspection.

If you detect an unusually strong gas odor, here are a few safety measures NI-Gas recommends customers follow:

- Ventilate the building by opening windows at the top and bottom. Start in the room where the odor is strongest.
- Do not operate any gas or electric appliances, nor flick on any electrical switches. Extinguish open flames.
- Call NI-Gas and your local fire or police department from a neighbor's telephone.

Look up he NI-Gas emergency number in your area and keep it handy. It would also be helpful to know where to find the gas shutoff valve for your home. This valve, usually just ahead of your gas meter, shuts off all gas to your residence.

NI-Gas customers have one of the best safety records in the country. Follow these precautions to help keep your gas service safe and reliable.

A new era in home climate control begins

About forty-five years ago, scientists began developing a revolutionary heating device that uses the heat of the earth's atmosphere. They called it a heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of fuel oil and gas.

How the heat pump works.
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. Using electricity to run the device, it extracts heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat. And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity—like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. The heat pump produces more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system.

It's ready.
It's ideal for new homes because it won't be obsolete in ten years. It's not dependent on the fossil fuels that may not be available in the future. To the homeowner, that means significant long-term savings on heating costs.

The heat pump is a big step in the conservation of scarce fuels. And here in northern Illinois, the electricity you would use to capture the heat comes mainly from coal and nuclear energy, rather than scarce oil and gas.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer (Westinghouse Distrs.), (312) 374-4411, or General Electric Co., (312) 496-6356. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to our marketing engineer.

Your own water well has pluses

An increasing number of communities are declaring moratoriums on the construction of new homes because water supply and sewage disposal facilities already are overloaded.

If this is true of a community in which you would like to build, why not go a little further out in the "country," where you can have your own water supply from a well and your sewage disposal via a septic tank system. Millions of Americans live under this arrangement and like it.

There are many advantages to having your own water supply, the Plumbing-Heating, Cooling Information Bureau says. They include:

- Your individual water system gives you a broader choice of building sites.
- You're not subject to rationing due to drought or to living in an area where population growth has outstripped the municipal system's capacity to meet water demands.
- Well water is often purer and tastes fresher than surface water, which has to be heavily treated. Treatment of well water to assure purity or remove hardness, when necessary, is easy.
- You can make full use of your plumbed-in appliances. No more "rationing" between the bathroom, kitchen and laundry during periods of peak use.
- Well water costs less than treated surface water. You don't have periodic increases in water bills.

The modern water well resembles a municipal system in that it consists of a source of water, an electric pump, controls and a storage tank.

For free information on individual water systems, write to the bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Water in bedroom making a comeback

Water in the bedroom, which went out with the china bowl and pitcher, is making a strong comeback.

According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, one of the strong trends in bedroom decor today is a single or double-bowl vanity lavatory with hot and cold running water. The bowls are installed in handsome countertops that serve as dressing tables. A cabinet beneath provides drawers and shelves for storage.

The bowls come in colors, and the countertops and cabinets are styled in virtually any furniture period you may wish. You can go plain or ornate with the faucets too. They come chrome or gold-plated or made of a crystal, jewel-like material. You have your choice of "conventional," single-handle, dial or push-pull.

Bedroom vanitories are especially popular with teen-agers, who regard them as a kind of status symbol. They're popular with parents too, because youngsters are likely to do their hours-long primping in the bedroom, leaving the bathroom free for adults.

Poll shows home buyers seek professional aid

The real estate salesman who leaves buyers pleased with his service and eager to talk about it has to become a friend to his customers, according to a recent survey of buyers by Baird & Warner Inc.

A total of 1,255 surveys were given to persons who utilized Baird & Warner's 31 area offices when buying property, from August of 1975 to August of this year, in an attempt to monitor service to customers.

Altogether, 584 surveys were returned. Of these, a majority thought their agents had been professional (561) and would recommend Baird & Warner to others (553).

A SMALL NUMBER of respondents (15) took the time to add written comments to their surveys, and what they said provides guidelines for Realtors who want to become super-salesmen who will have their customers coming back in future years, according to Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general manager of residential sales for Baird & Warner.

"The most frequent comment that we received was that the agent had been helpful, as well as professional," Walters said. "Descriptive words in the comments included things such as 'efficient, well-informed, hard-working, cordial, polite and courteous' — qualities that you expect a professional salesman to have in any industry.

"However, most of the people who had been pleased enough to write went even farther and used phrases such as 'understood our needs, most friendly and helpful' and 'took a real interest in our welfare,'" Walters reported.

"In other words, the people most pleased with the way they bought their home felt that the agent had been a real friend, as interested in seeing them happy as in completing a sale," he said.

"This doesn't surprise me, since these are the qualifites we look for in our salespeople," Walters said. "Buying a home is not just a major financial decision, it is an immensely personal decision and sensitivity to individual needs is vital."

Of 532 persons who responded to a question on how they had come to choose Baird & Warner, 54 per cent said it had been through a personal reference or through the company's other offices and national affiliations, rather than by signs, ads or some other promotional activity.

This is consistent with results of a survey taken for all of last year which showed that 61 per cent of residential buyers were former clients, friends of a salesperson, referred by a friend or former client, or were refered through other Baird and Warner offices or national affiliations.

Urban planners to map fight against city blight

The decline of the American center city and the evaporation of its tax base poses crucial financial, administrative and political problems for the entire economy and especially for the building and construction industry which once found its most lucrative markets there.

This is one of the focuses of the Multi-Conference program of the Producers' Council-sponsored Building & Construction Exposition & Conference, the comprehensive industry event taking place through Friday in Chicago's McCormick Place.

Case histories and home town action to fight urban blight will be a feature of the "Making Things Happen in Your Home Town" conference, highlighted by speakers with close-hand experience such as Michael Carroll, Deputy Mayor of Indianapolis, currently official delegate to the UN Economic Commission on Europe Conference on national and regional planning.

Thomas A. Thompson, City Coordinator for Minneapolis, highest appointed official in its government, responsible for planning and operations, and coordination with all Federal programs; Lewis W. Hill, Commissioner of Development & Planning for Chicago; Professor George A. Wing, chairman of the Mayor's Downtown Development Committee, South Bend, Indiana, former professor at Indiana University. The Conference will have Rob Cuscaden, editor of Building Design & Construction magazine, as moderator.

In addition, the theme of urban decay and local and Federal action in this area will be articulated in other Conferences in the strong experience of others, such as Nicholas A. Panuzio, Commissioner of the Public Buildings Service, U.S. General Services Administration, Washington, who served as the Mayor of Bridgeport, Connecticut, for two terms and was a prominent member of the President's economic summit of 1974. He is a speaker on the Conference: "Public Building, Getting Your Piece of the Action."

Homes enhanced by landscaping

What enhances the external appearance of a home, makes it appear "established," creates privacy, helps reduce noise, acts as a windbreaker and helps cool the home in hot weather?

There may be several imaginative answers to this question, but one good one is landscaping.

Landscaping can pay off in dollars and cents by increasing the price of property if the owner decides to sell.

What are the components of good landscaping? Trees are an important element, of course. They can create patterns of shadows over the rest of the landscape plan and can soften the stark lines of many modern homes.

In wintry climates, evergreens are an important landscape element, because they add a touch of green during the months when other trees are barren. There's a wide selection of evergreens from which to choose, including Austrian, Scotch and white pines and spruce and fir trees. Japanese yews, Mugho pine and varieties of juniper are other choices.

Fertilizer gives plants three 'survival elements'

It's your landscape
by George Creed

It is known that green plants require at least 16 different chemical elements in order to breathe, grow and reproduce. The three most vital elements in a plant's life are nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium. Plants cannot use these in their elemental forms. These elements must be combined with others so that they can be easily absorbed by plant roots.

Of all the elements needed to sustain plant life, nitrogen is probably the most important. All life processes, both plant and animal, depend directly on it. Chlorophyll, which transforms the energy of sunlight to form sugars and starches from water and carbon dioxide, is a nitrogenous compound.

Nitrogen is a colorless, odorless gas that constitutes four-fifths of the earth's atmosphere. It is estimated that over every acre of this world's area there are about 34,000 tons of nitrogen. Though there are limitless quantities of nitrogen in the air to be formed into fertilizer commercially, nitrogen must be processed with hydrogen to form ammonia and from ammonia are derived ammonia salts, urea and nitrates.

PHOSPHOROUS, like nitrogen, is present in all living cells. In plants much phosphorous is concentrated in their flowers and seeds. Its chief function seems to be transferring biochemical energy from one part of a plant to another. The major source of fertilizer phosphorous is in the form of rock phosphate deposits in Idaho, Montana, Utah, Florida and Tennessee.

Potassium, an element vital to the life of plants is contained naturally in America's soils — with the exception of acid, sand, peat and muck soils. Potassium is not found in its elemental state but always in combination with many compounds and minerals. The term potash was originally used for potassium carbonate.

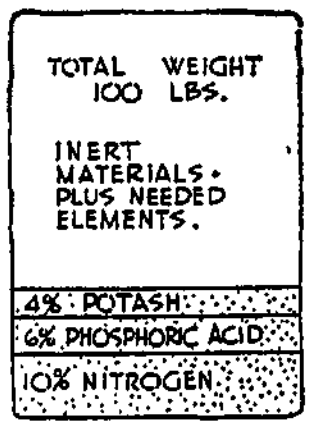
When you buy a bag of fertilizer, you will note a sequence of numbers printed on the bag — such as 10-6-4, 5-12-5, etc. the first numeral represents nitrogen, the second, phosphoric acid, and the last potash. In the plan, out of a fertilizer mixture weighing 100 pounds and with a formula of 10-6-4, 10 per cent will be nitrogen, 6 per cent will be phosphoric acid and 4 per cent will be potash. Expressed in another way 10 pounds of fertilizer from this same 100 pound sack will provide one pound of nitrogen; 6/10th pounds of phosphoric acid and 4/10th pounds of potash.

Q. Are rabbits a serious threat to small trees in the winter?

A. They can be. In severe winters they eat the bark from trees and may kill them by girdling them.

Q. What causes my dahlia tubers to sprout when they are in storage?

A. Too much heat. They should be stored in a cool place with temperatures around 60 degrees.



10 NITROGEN • 6 PHOSPHORIC ACID • 4 POTASH

10 LBS. OF FERTILIZER = 1 LB. NITROGEN
10 LBS. OF FERTILIZER = .6 LBS. PHOSPHORIC ACID
10 LBS. OF FERTILIZER = .4 LB. POTASH

Heavy scrutiny for real estate tax laws seen

Income tax deductions by home owners for real estate taxes and interest on mortgage payments will come under heavy scrutiny in the next Congress, said Cong. William A. Steiger, R-Wis.

"There are two major goals in tax reform. One is to establish some sort of equity between those who pay their income taxes and those who do not pay. The other is to greatly simplify the tax code so that many more Americans can understand it," Steiger told the annual Convention of The National Assn. of Realtors.

Steiger, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, said "tax reform is not about to go away." One of the major reasons the new administration and new Congress will continue to promote greater tax reform is that "many Americans do not file income tax returns or do not file them fairly."

HE SAID President-Elect Carter has called the income tax situation disgraceful and this is accented by the fact that many Americans are forced to go to tax attorneys because tax forms are too complicated to understand.

He said the nation's Realtors should be prepared to take the home owner's case to the new Congress. "You will be forced to defend the position that home owners' deductions are important," he said. "The rationale will have to make good sense to the American people."

The Congressman also suggested that the Carter administration may use the tax code as part of its public policies.

"A simple, straight-forward tax reform by the new administration would wipe out a lot of loopholes and established deductions for a wide variety of groups," he said.

"There will be a great deal of discussion and full examination of all aspects of the tax code. Part of this will be not only to see how more fairly the tax burden can be spread, but also how the tax expenditures will be carried out."

Gas customers warned about phoney repairmen

As you prepare your heating system for those cold weather days, Northern Illinois Gas Co. warns its customers to beware of individuals "posing" as gas company employes.

Most of their schemes for gaining entrance to your homes involve service and repair estimates. Once inside, usually these individuals examine your home for burglary or fraudulent purposes such as making unnecessary repairs to your furnace.

NI-Gas officials stress normally service calls are made at a residence only if the customer has requested it. In certain instances utility employes may request admittance to turn service on or off during gas main construction near your home, to exchange a meter or to obtain a meter reading.

IT IS IMPORTANT to remember NI-Gas employes do not request or collect money for any work they perform. All charges are included on the customer's regular bill.

Should customers have any doubts about the validity of such calls, ask to see a NI-Gas identification card. Northern Illinois Gas officials point out that all employes are provided with identification which bears a color photograph of the employe, the NI-Gas name and the signature of the bearer. It is readily available upon request. Also, NI-Gas vehicles have readily identifiable company markings.

Community authorities or the local NI-Gas office should be consulted if a customer cannot adequately confirm that a caller is a NI-Gas employe.

Good and Co. chief to speak to Northwestern students

Chicago Realtor Sheldon F. Good, president of Sheldon F. Good and Co., will give graduate business students at Northwestern University a forecast of the Chicago and national real estate market Monday at Wieboldt Hall on the university's Chicago campus.

Good will give the students an overview of the real estate industry, which he says is experiencing many changes. Good said the demand strengthening for existing real estate projects with no significant increase expected in the number of new commercial buildings or projects, which he says is based largely on the elimination of many tax advantages for investors in the new federal tax law. Good also expects a continued increase in government influence over the real estate industry.

Known for his real estate innovations, Good will discuss the use of real estate auctions as a marketing tool. Good pioneered the real estate auction five years ago and since then has conducted 81 successful auctions totaling more than $8,000,000. Good is past-chairman of the Commercial-Investment Division of the National Assn. of Realtors.

A popular speaker on college campuses he has spoken before audiences at the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business, the University of Illinois, the University of Wisconsin and Vanderbilt.

Emotional trauma

It costs industry billions but counseling program may help

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

The signals range from extended coffee breaks to sabotage on the assembly line; the causes are as diverse as a hefty credit card bill and an unwanted pregnancy.

But whether it be an executive with an alcoholic wife or a file clerk going through a divorce, mental health problems on the job are costing industry billions of dollars a year. The National Association for Mental Health reported in 1974 that industry lost $10.4 billion annually in disability payments due to mental disorders; the office of Health Education and Welfare set the figure at $33 billion back in 1971.

These statistics bother Jerry Medow, executive director of the Northwest Mental Health Center in Arlington Heights, and he's hoping to lower them with a new employe counseling service directed at area industries.

The multi-pronged program, slated for the first of the year, will be aimed at training supervisors to recognize danger signals and refer an employe for treatment. The service will be offered in conjunction with the Lutheran Welfare Services' ADD (Alcohol and Drug Dependency) program, and similar services are now in operation at the Chase Manhattan Bank, the United Auto Workers plant in Ann Arbor, Mich., and Michigan Bell Telephone.

BUT WHILE these industries are catering to the emotional as well as physical safety of their employes, most companies have sketchy or non-existent mental health programs, says Medow. Unlike alcoholism, which has sparked many industry-sponsored programs, emotional trauma is still a persistent bugaboo which most industries haven't touched.

"To be honest, many companies just aren't very sophisticated in this area," he maintains. "Just like in school, an emotional problem will often affect job performance . . . and a friendly ear from the supervisor or nurse won't do any good."

What will help an emotionally-disturbed employe is a supervisor trained in identification of problems and correct referral methods, a staff of professionals to treat him, and a comprehensive follow-up program to keep the company closely informed of his progress, says Medow.

Northwest's counseling service will take the onus off the personnel director and/or nurse — whose primary responsibilities don't include psychiatric therapy, he says.

According to Medow, when an alcoholic or emotionally disturbed employe begins to slack off in work performance, he is often approached first by his immediate supervisor. If that supervisor confronts the employe with "Say, Joe, what's the problem here? You're drinking too much," he's likely to come back with a rationalization like "Don't you take a drink too?"

BUT BY EMPHASIZING job performance ("I don't know what's wrong, Joe, but your efficiency is way down"), the trained supervisor or nurse can, via role-playing and guidance from professionals, accomplish much more than the understanding "Dutch uncle" approach.

"Just talking to an employe doesn't do any good," says Medow. "A friendly chat may result in a temporary improvement, but sooner or later he'll slide back again. We need a program that follows through and keeps track of progress — something that isn't being done now in many companies."

That follow-up would consist of abbreviated periodic progress reports to the company as well as a troubleshooter to visit the plant at least once a month, paving the way for a mentally ill employe's return to work and keeping tabs on the referral methods of supervisors and nurses.

The cost of the program would vary for each company, says Medow, depending on how much the company's insurance will cover. The basic fee for Northwest's services is $40 an hour, and insurance plans vary from full coverage of psychiatric care to almost none, he says.

Area industries had mixed reactions to the concept of an employe counseling service. Arlene Pizzeri, a nurse at Automatic Electric in Northlake and president of the Industrial Nurses Association, said such a service wasn't necessary in most cases because "nurses are trained in counseling services, and we have an added advantage. Any nurse worth her salt will get out of her office and get to know her employes . . . there's a personal touch there that a professional wouldn't have."

"IF AN EMPLOYE needs some kind of psychiatric care, we have lists of social service agencies, and most companies will check back with the agency for progress reports. We are aware that emotional well-being does affect job performance, and nurses often train supervisors on an informal basis to recognize problems."

Ms. Pizzeri added that area hospitals and colleges offer continuing education courses dealing with emotional trauma on the job, and many industrial nurses attend these.

Many personnel managers at local industries expressed an interest in such a service, but added that identifying an emotional problem in employes was often next to impossible.

Doug McArthur, personnel manager at Honeywell, Arlington Heights, said the company has no formal program to deal with emotional trauma in its employes, though supervisors are now trained to be alert to signs of alcoholism.

"We've tended to handle these types of problems as they come up," McArthur said. "If a person comes to us for help, he can get a referral through the nurse, but we don't really follow up on it . . . (the counseling service) is certainly an idea to consider, but right now I don't see a pressing need for it. It's difficult to identify these types of problems."

A COUNSELING service would be a "very favorable step in the right direction," said John Lavino, director of health services at Kemper Insurance, Long Grove. The company now has a staff of two in-house counselors to deal with drug, alcohol and emotional problems; they make referrals to area agencies if the problem requires therapy or psychiatric care.

"I do think a service would be a good idea," said Lavino, "but once again, it's much more difficult to identify an emotional problem on the job. There are set patterns in alcoholics, but it's much tougher in these cases."

Medow is quick to admit that it's more difficult to recognize and treat emotional trauma than alcoholism, but he says it's all the more reason to inaugurate a program to identify those problems.

"That's the advantage of a program like this," he said. "We've been getting several calls from industries asking for help, but it's always just putting out the fire. Statistics show that alcoholics aren't treated until the 14th year of their illness . . . by spotting emotional problems early we can avoid some of the cost to everyone."

A Family:
Every child's right

Family services needs foster homes for teens

Illinois has critical need for foster parents for teenagers, according to Mary Lee Leahy, director of the state Department of Children and Family Services.

The department could use another 400 foster families for adolescents and it also has need for homes for retarded or physically handicapped children, for groups of brothers and sisters and for Latino children.

To help the department find foster homes for these children The Herald will periodically describe one such child for whom a family is sought in the Northwest suburbs. The first is described today.

"Being a foster parent to an adolescent is a tough demanding job," noted Mrs. Leahy. "Besides helping a teenager contend with the normal stress of growing up, a foster parent must understand the special needs of a boy or girl who has experienced a series of rejections over the years."

PERSONS WHO WOULD make good foster parents for teens are couples in their thirties, single persons of good moral character and parents whose children are grown.

Adolescents usually are unable to accept a new parent, Mrs. Leahy said, but often a child will accept a trusting relationship with an adult who demonstrates a sincere interest in, and a respect for, the youngster as an individual.

The department reimburses foster parents $150 per month for care of a teenager and also pays for the child's clothes, medical care and other special needs. Additional fees may be paid for those who require intensive supervision or highly specialized care.

The department also provides training programs for foster parents as well as the supervision and support of a social worker.

"ADULTS WHO PROVIDE foster care should be warm, caring human beings who don't need to see themselves in the traditional parental role," Mrs. Leahy said.

Some teenage wards of the state have been involved in truancy, drugs, sexual acting out and minor brushes with the law, she said, and foster parents must understand teenage lifestyles and be willing to set reasonable, consistent limits on the youngster's behavior.

The teen for whom a home is sought today is a polite, friendly,

Panel named these 25 women most influential in America

The World Almanac has announced its list of America's 25 most influential women. The list was selected by a panel of newspaper editors, social commentators, university presidents and writers.

The list is notable for the number of women in journalism and politics. Of the 25 women named, nine are journalists and six others are in elected or appointed political positions.

To determine America's most influential women, the World Almanac polled a panel of 13 men and women. Each member of the panel selected 25 names from a list of more than 200 prominent women.

With the exception of Mary Wells Lawrence, there were no women in business — board members and directors of banks and corporations.

Neither were there any women from the physical sciences field and only one from the world of entertainment, Joan Ganz Cooney.

The list of America's most influential women was inaugurated last year in connection with the International Women's Year.

Six new names appeared on this year's list: Anne Armstrong, Lady Bird Johnson, Mary Wells Lawrence, Mary McGrory, Helen Thomas and Abigail Van Buren.

Here are the backgrounds on the six women:

HELEN THOMAS

MARY LAWRENCE WELLS

ANNE ARMSTRONG

LADY BIRD JOHNSON

MARY McGRORY

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

ANNE ARMSTRONG, first woman to hold Cabinet-level status since Oveta Culp Hobby, was appointed the first woman Ambassador to Great Britain in January, 1975. In 1972, after a distinguished career within the Republican Party, Mrs. Armstrong was appointed White House counselor with Cabinet status, where she served under Presidents Nixon and Ford.

The 49-year-old mother of five has lived most of her life in Texas, where her great-grandfather, Leonidas Jefferson Storey, served as Lieutenant Governor in 1880. She began working for the Eisenhower campaign in Texas in 1952, and later became a Republican National Committeewoman from that state. In 1969, she served on the executive committee of the Republican National Committee and was elected the party's co-chairman in 1971. She is married to Texas cattle rancher Tobin Armstrong.

LADY BIRD JOHNSON, one of the most popular and respected First Ladies, was born Claudia Alta Taylor Dec. 22, 1912. An able businesswoman, she became owner of a radio-television station in Austin, Texas. She married Lyndon Johnson, then a faithful worker for President Franklin Roosevelt in 1934, and the couple had two daughters, Lynda Bird and Luci Baines Johnson.

Admired for her wise, incisive counsel as First Lady, Mrs. Johnson helped arouse the nation's environmental consciousness when she personally launched a national beautification program during her husband's term in office. Since Johnson's death, she has remained active in civic events and in overseeing the management of the Lyndon Baines Johnson Memorial Library at the Austin campus of the University of Texas.

MARY LAWRENCE WELLS was co-founder of the trendsetting advertising company of Wells, Rich, Greene, Inc., and is today the company's chairman and chief executive officer. Last year under her leadership, the firm grossed billings of $187 million.

Born in Youngstown, Ohio, Mrs. Lawrence has won a number of awards, including Advertising Woman of the Year (1971) and Marketing Stateswoman of the Year (1970). She has also been elected to the Copywriters Hall of Fame.

Despite her personal achievements, Mrs. Lawrence attributes the success of her firm to a staff of "exceptionally dedicated, responsible people, capable of handling pressure. I thank the stars for them." She is married to Harding Lawrence, president of Braniff International.

MARY MC GRORY is one of the most highly regarded Washington columnists, especially among the Washington press corps, who last year won the 1975 Pulitzer Prize for commentary. The Pulitzer committee cited her "trenchant commentary spread over more than 20 years as a reporter and columnist in the nation's capital."

Ms. McGrory began her career at the Boston Herald. After a brief stint, she joined the Washington Star as a book reviewer in 1947. Her debut as a national commentator came in 1954 when Newbold Noyes, the Star's national editor, assigned her to cover by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Pain after childbirth a frequent complaint

Six months ago I had a baby. This is where my problem begins. I started having chest pains on my left side and my left arm seemed to go numb on me like it was asleep.

I went to one doctor every week for a few months. He said it was a strained muscle and gave me Motrin. I asked the druggist what they were for and he told me they were for arthritis.

I went to another doctor for his opinion and have been doctoring with him several months. He said it could be tension, but I never seem nervous or anything like that. I had a cardiogram, X-rays and blood tests. They came out normal.

I was taking birth control pills so I stopped taking them, but the problem is still there. It scares me a lot. I'm only 22 and have two children.

The doctor said my heart was beating too fast one week so that could be the problem with my arm. Do you have any suggestions?

There is a rare condition in women after childbirth called post partum myocarditis. It is an inflammation of the heart muscle related to the pregnancy. The cause and many aspects of the illness remain obscure. However, these women have signs of heart involvement, including abnormal electrocardiograms. Your normal cardiogram and tests should rule out that condition.

Many young women seem to have a number of vague complaints after childbirth. The complaints are real enough, but they don't fit the pattern of any specific disease. That is why they end up being diagnosed as nervous or being told it is a muscle spasm. You may be in that category. These may be related to subtle hormone changes.

I think the mechanism is similar to what we see after some illnesses, particularly those associated with long periods of inactivity. We call it neurocirculatory asthenia. The heart may beat rapidly; sometimes there are extra beats. The individual may feel faint on standing or become breathless with mild exertion. When these symptoms are not associated with any physical findings or other evidence of a specific disease, it is usually functional.

A young mother with lots of responsibility may not be in shape for the amount she has to do. If that is the case, some help in coping with the day's demands often is a great aid. If the mother is out of shape physically, a gradual exercise program will help. The difficulty is in finding out whether the problem is associated with overwork or with lack of fitness. Usually the type of work a young mother has to do is time-consuming and often nerve-racking, but it may not be physically demanding like a game of tennis.

A good balance may be to get plenty of sleep one way or another and also get some time off to start a physical fitness program. Walking is a good start and you can gradually build up from there. I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter 1-11 and 1-12, Exercise, Heart and Circulation, Part I and Part II. You can use these as a guide to a fitness program. Others who want these two issues can send 50 cents for each of them with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your request to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Incidentally although Motrin is used to relieve arthritis pain, it is also used to relieve pain from other conditions.

Solvent might remove crayon from wallpaper

Dear Dorothy: Our young son wrote on our expensive wallpaper with a crayon. It isn't the washable vinyl kind and I need something that won't damage the wallpaper. — Jeanne Jennings

Sometimes crayon marks like this can be removed by simply sponging with a dry-cleaning solvent. But admittedly, crayon spots are unpredictable because some dyes are permanent. However, you still have to try. If the area still looks greasy, blot with a paper towel. Then, holding absorbent paper over the spot, press with a barely warm iron. If this doesn't work, make a paste of a non-flammable dry-cleaning solvent and an absorbent powder such as fuller's earth, talcum powder or cornstarch. Let the paste dry on the paper, then brush off. I'll hope with you.

Dear Dorothy: This past season we opened several jars of jellies and preserves. Some got moldy before they were finished and I threw them away. A relative says I should have just skimmed off the mold and the rest would have been okay. Is she right? Also, would refrigerating have helped? — J.C.R.

Refrigerating might have helped. In any case, you were absolutely right to discard the moldy jars. By the time mold appears on the surface, it has already penetrated the contents.

Dear Dorothy: Visiting my niece, I was fascinated by the gadget someone made for her to dust venetian blinds. A wire coat hanger was twisted to make a "V" and yarn had been wrapped in single loops all the way around — a perfect way to dust both sides of the blind at the same time. — Maureen McCrae

Dear Dorothy: Others may like to do what I do — sprinkle a little lemon juice on mushrooms when sauteeing them. They don't get quite so dark. — Patricia Creasman the Army-McCarthy hearings. In 1960, her political column was syndicated. Today it appears in more than 50 newspapers around the country. Among her other distinctions, Ms. McGrory takes pride in the fact that her name was discovered on the Nixon White House's "enemies list."

HELEN THOMAS, White House bureau chief for United Press International, has covered presidents for 16 years. The first woman to head up White House coverage for a major news service, she traveled extensively with Presidents Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford.

Last year, Miss Thomas was elected president of the White House Correspondents Association, the first woman to hold that office in the association's 60-year history. She also became the first woman elected to Washington's Gridiron Club and she received the 1975 Distinguished Achievement Award for newspaper journalism presented by the University of Southern California's Journalism Alumni Association.. She is married to Douglas B. Cornell, a retired Associated Press reporter and her former competitor on the White House beat.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN'S "Dear Abby" column is the most widely read newspaper advice column in the world. The 58-year-old housewife and mother of two launched her writing career in 1956 when she challenged a San Francisco editor to let her improve his newspaper. Her column, which now attracts millions of letters from readers every year, made her an instant celebrity.

Miss Van Buren, who lives in St. Paul, with her husband, Morton Phillips, also has a radio network program and has written three books and a dozen national magazine articles.

Those who were named for the second year were: Congresswoman Bella Abzug; Helen Gurley Brown, editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine; Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm; Joan Ganz Cooney, producer of Sesame Street and The Electric Company; Charlotte Curtis, Op-Ed page editor for the New York Times; Betty Ford; Betty Friedan, author-feminist; Katherine Graham, publisher of the Washington Post; Ella Grasso, governor of Connecticut;

Also, Nancy Hanks, chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Council of Arts; Leonore Hershey, editor of Ladies' Home Journal; Carla Hills, Secretary of H.U.D.; Billie Jean King, tennis star; Coretta King, civil rights leader; Congresswoman Barbara Jordan; Margaret Mead, anthropologist; Sylvia Porter, financial columnist, Gloria Steinem, feminist; and Barbara Walters, co-anchorperson on ABC network news.

AMERICA'S 25 most influential women is a permanent, annual feature of the World Almanac.

Teenagers need foster homes

outgoing 14-year-old boy, who came to the attention of the department three years ago after his father was imprisoned and his mother made new living arrangements which excluded Gary (a pseudonym). Currently Gary lives in a small children's home.

HE IS A POLITE, outgoing teen who works hard to get people to like him and very much wants a foster family. One of the best students in his school, he prefers math, spelling and reading to science. High on his free time reading list are comic books and he likes knock-down adventure movies.

Short and wiry, he stays away from rough contact sports since spraining a finger last spring trying to catch a pop-up fly ball, but he bowls at least once a week, swims "like a turtle" and is a self-proclaimed good dancer.

His new family will find Gary to be emotionally needy.

A family interested in Gary may find out more about him by calling the Department of Children and Family Services, 793-2160. They may also learn more about becoming a foster parent.

Gardening gifts that are offbeat

by MARY B. GOOD

Potting shed
by Mary B. Good

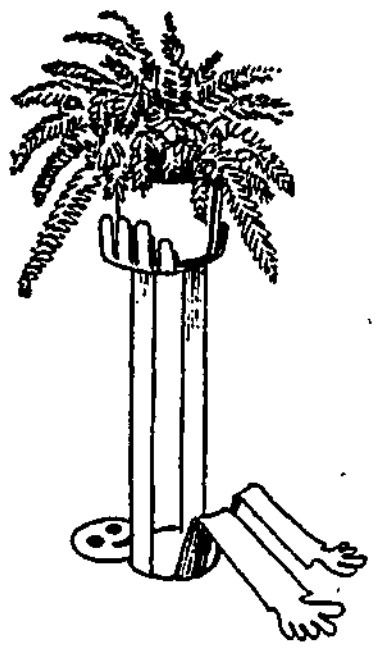
Before the onrushing Christmas season knocks down your door, the Potting Shed presents its annual suggestions of unique gifts for gardeners to give you enough time to order them, should you find something appealing.

Everyone has somebody on their Christmas list who is a plant buff or nature lover, or so it seems, and that's why we clip and save new product ideas all year long for this seasonal column.

Would you believe an inflatable scarecrow, for instance? There's Farmer Fred, five-and-a-half feet tall in wash and wear vinyl with a "Burpee Seeds Grow" button implanted on his bib overalls. The whole family will get a giggle from this offbeat gift, and he'll last for years, if the kids don't swipe him to use as a football dummy. $9.95 from W. Atlee Burpee, Warminster, Pa. 18974.

GIVE PLANTS a lift with a most original plant stand, The Plant Man, a satin-enameled metal sculpture, in white or black, that holds pots up to eight inches in diameter. This cutie lies on his "back" on the floor with metal "knees" bent and bare "toes" flattened. His strong "arms" extend up 27 inches to hold a prized plant in the palm of his steel "hands." Plant not included. $32.45 from J. Noverr Metal Art, 850 Thayer Ave., Dept. 01, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024.

Clever and quick are the words to describe the Dr. Goddard Plant Care Wheel and Plant First Aid Wheel. The



THE PLANT MAN

Plant Wheel is a device that tells you at the flip of an indicator the common and botannical names of 60 illustrated plants, plus the watering, light, temperature and soil requirements, propogation techniques and also the degree of difficulty or ease of raising the selections. Great for beginners. Similarly, the Plant First Aid Wheel shows 19 common ailments, their cause and cure. Each is $1.50 manufactured by Greenleaf, Hackensack, N.J. 07601 and available at garden centers, such as Arming's.

A NEW PLANT probe not only checks the water in a plant, but also tells if the plant is getting enough light. Since improper watering and light are the two most common causes of houseplant failures, the Mist'r Sun is an extremely practical gardener's gift. $14.95 suggested retail at garden shops.

Giving a live plant? Very chic, very "in" with trendy plant buffs, the Christmas flower — Appleblossom amaryllis, truly "different" in color. This Amaryllis shows huge blooms of pure white streaked with rich rose pink. Pay for it after it blooms, a good deal from Jackson and Perkins, Medford, Ore. 97501. Limited supply available. Or you might ask at a good local greenhouse for an Ellen Danika grapy ivy, a new variety that doesn't look like a conventional grape ivy. Your gardener will think you are "up" on the latest, and you will be. Or consider a sprouted coconut from Hawaii. Aloha East, Dept. PG4, P.O. 27747, Honolulu, H.I. 96827.

IF YOUR GARDENER has no time to turn house plants so they get even sunlight onall sides, there is the electrical rotating plant stands. It uses two-and-a-half watts to turn a pot once an hour. Plugs into any household outlet $0.95 from Bryce-Branton, Dept. DP 690 Southern Ave., Muskegon, Mich. 49442.

Eliminate acupuncture of avocado pits by toothpick suspension with an avocado aquarium. Greenhouse flotation maintains the pit at a constant level in water, converts to an elegant planter when it is rooted. Helanders, 248-254 Market Square, Lake Forest, Ill. 60045.

Ask Andy

Beautiful Puma–strong-muscled cat

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Mark Mispagel, 12, of St. Louis, Mo., for his question:

CAN YOU TELL ME ABOUT A CAT CALLED THE PUMA?

A long time ago a certain cat roamed over most of the North American continent. The old-time mountain people caled him catamount, mountain screamer, painter and panther. Most modern folk know him as cougar, mountain lion or puma. His Latin scientific name is Felis concolor, which means "Cat of one color."

An adult puma stands about 25 to 30 inches tall at the shoulder. His body can measure from 6 to 8 feet in length including two or three feet of thick, furry, black-tipped tail. Body weight ranges from 100 to 175 pounds, but some big fellows have tipped the scales at more than 250 pounds.

The short, soft coat of the puma varies from a tawny tan or gray to a beautiful golden or reddish brown. The belly and throat are white, as are the insides of the legs. The handsome, intelligent face bears distinctive markings of white around the mouth bounded by a dapper black mustache. His black-tipped ears sit on a head that looks small in comparison to the powerfully muscled body.

Puma kittens are generally born in the spring about three months after the mother has mated. Two blind helpless kittens form the usual litter, but there may be only one or as many as six. Their furry buff-colored coat is sprinkled with brown dots. After nine or 10 days their eyes open, and like most kittens they spend their time in rough-and-tumble play or chewing on mother's ears and tail.

The female Puma is a good mother and provides well for her family. Having chased the father away, she takes sole responsibility for the upbringing. When they are about 2 months old, mother takes them out on nightly hunts. Of course these outings are more fun for them than work. By the time they are 6 months old, however, the hunts become serious business. The kittens may remain with the mother for two years while learning the tricks of survival.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Shane Feller, 7, of Lancaster, Pa., for his question:

IS THE JACKAL A SCAVENGER?

For years man has turned up his nose at the jackal and has even used his name as a mild epithet. To be called a jackal was the same as being called a low-down sneaky critter. This came about mainly because people didn't know very much about jackals. It was presumed that since they were often found hanging around the kills of other animals, they couldn't hunt for themselves and were purely scavengers. The fact of the matter is that jackals are quite capable of killing their own food and not sneaky at all. True, they do feed on prey brought down by other animals, but then so do lions.

Scavengers are nature's "street cleaners." They perform an important function by cleaning up what is left from the kills of other animals. The jackal is one of various kinds of animals that offer this service. When not dining on leftovers, however, the jackal eats fruit, insects, birds and small mammals. Most jackals hunt alone or in pairs and seldom group together in large packs. Male and female jackals mate for life and are very devoted to each other and their young.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Il. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

One trick calls for finesse

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The student counted his winners before playing to trick one. There were eight top-card tricks and just one extra club trick would give him game and rubber.

He ducked the first heart on general principles, but had to win the second in dummy. Then he cashed dummy's queen of clubs, led a second club toward his hand and went up with his king. West dropped a low diamond and the student's fourth club trick had gone into limbo. Five minutes later the opponents had chalked up 100 points above the line.

"Wasn't I unlucky?" asked the student.

"Yes, you were," replied the Professor. "But you made your own bad luck. You only needed four club tricks. Once East followed to the second club you could be sure of four club tricks by simply finessing the ten spot.

"Your play of the king would have been correct if you had needed five club tricks, but you only needed four and should have taken the safety play to insure yourself against the actual club break."

A Nevada reader wants to know what you should bid in second seat after a one-club opening bid to your right. You hold:

The ace, queen and three low cards of spades; a low card of hearts; ace, queen and three low cards of diamonds and 2 low cards of clubs.

The correct overcall is one spade. You hope to be able to show diamonds later. Do not make a takeout double because of your singleton heart.

Escape system developed for space travelers

by RON HUTCHERSON

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Suppose you're a VIP — maybe a U.S. Senator — junketing on a space shuttle when an abandonship emergency develops. Can you get back down to earth in one piece?

The answer is yes, according to R. T. Kendall, a design engineer in the aerospace industry for 37 years.

As project engineer on a new aerodynamic decelerator called the Kendall Paracone, he helped develop a two-stage system to permit each passenger to be popped out of an endangered space shuttle, made shirtsleeve comfortable in an encapsulation shroud and lowered to earth at a survivable speed.

HE SAID in a research paper the goal of the system was "safe escape and recovery for every person aboard" a troubled spacecraft.

He said ejection pods present formidable problems and high costs, while his ejection seat system could be used universally in a variety of space vehicles and stations.

The key is the Paracone, an inflatable device that resembles the nose cone used on capsules in Project Apollo reentries.

As Kendall explained it, the two-step procedure begins with evacuation from a troubled space craft.

THE PASSENGER remains in his seat, and the Paracone is stored in the back of the seat.

Overhead, a door in the outer skin of the craft is jettisoned, and air pressure inside the craft inflates a bag-like "encapsulation shroud" attached to a ring in the ceiling. The shroud is made of fiberglass or a space-age synthetic-like Kapton.

The shroud is directly over the passenger and large enough to contain him and his seat. The seat, fastened to a "ring pressure bulkhead" at floor level, is propelled upward on rails reaching from the floor to the ceiling.

When the bulkhead reaches ceiling level, it seals to the ring to which the inflated shroud is attached and is separated from the spacecraft.

FROM THAT point on, it's free flight — a seat-borne passenger in an airtight bag tumbling through space.

In step two, the Paracone deploys from the back of the seat and its innertube-like rings are blown up by canned inflating gas.

The deployed Paracone resembles a giant bowl 30 feet across at the brim, which actually is an inflated circular tube. Those "impact attenuator" tubes serve as shock absorbers when the Paracone — which also acts as an inverted parachute when it enters the atmosphere touches down. Through the ride to earth the Paracone forms a temperature shield and a tracking target.

Read Leisure this Saturday in The Herald

The favorite of family feasts

The Holidays . . . a time to bring family and friends together to share the warmth and love of the festive season.

Traditional dishes with slight variations can be prepared ahead of time. The baked sweet potatoes have a maple syrup flavor and crunchy walnuts for texture. Creamed onions get a holiday look and taste when teamed with fresh carrots and mushrooms. And steamed pudding adds a bit of nostalgia.

A turkey should be selected ahead of time, also. It should weigh at least one-half pound per each main-meal serving and should be larger if leftovers are wanted for soups, sandwiches and casseroles, according to the National Turkey Federation.

GUIDE TO SELECTING, ROASTING AND SERVING A TURKEY

The National Turkey Federation recommends placing turkey breast-up on rack in shallow roasting pan. Use a roast-meat thermometer, inserted into the thick part of thigh. Bulb must not touch bone. A reading of 180 degrees to 185 degrees indicates the turkey is done. This chart will guide you in selecting roasting and serving a holiday turkey.

Ready-to-Cook Weight	Number of Servings	Approximate Cooking Time in 325 Degree Oven
6 to 8 pounds	6 to 10	3½ hours
8 to 12 pounds	10 to 20	4½ hours
12 to 16 pounds	20 to 32	5½ hours
16 to 20 pounds	32 to 40	6¼ hours

Note: Unstuffed turkeys require about ½ hour less roasting time.

HOW TO PREPARE HOT TEA CONCENTRATE

To solve the problem of serving tea to a large holiday gathering, make a tea concentrate in advance and dilute with hot water at serving time. For 25 servings, bring one quart of freshly drawn cold water to a full, rolling boil. Pour over ⅔ measuring cup of loose tea. Cover and let stand for five minutes. Stir and strain into quart teapot or other container. (Use within four hours and keep at room temperature; do not refrigerate.) When ready to serve, pour about two tablespoons of concentrate into cup, then fill up with hot water.

BASIC BREAD STUFFING AND VARIATIONS

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 4 cups chopped celery
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 4 quarts soft bread cubes
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1½ teaspoons poultry seasoning
- ½ teaspoon rubbed sage
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- Hot broth or water

Melt butter in large skillet; add celery and onion and cook until tender but not brown. Stir occasionally. Combine with bread cubes, salt, poultry seasoning, sage and pepper. Mix lightly. Add enough broth to moisten.
Makes approximately 4 quarts, enough for a 14 to 18-pound turkey.

Giblet Stuffing: Add chopped, cooked giblets. Use giblet broth as liquid.
Apple Stuffing: Add 1 cup pared, chopped apple to celery and onion; cook until tender, 3 to 5 minutes.
Chestnut Stuffing: Add 4 cups boiled, chopped chestnuts. Substitute milk for broth or water.
Mushroom Stuffing: Cook ½ pound mushrooms, sliced, with celery and onion.

MAPLE WALNUT SWEET POTATOES

- 8 medium sweet potatoes (3 pounds)
- ¼ cup maple syrup
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Pinch cloves
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Bake potatoes in 400 degree oven for 50 minutes, or until soft. Halve, cool slightly and peel. Press through a food mill or sieve into a bowl. Beat in syrup, butter, salt and cloves. Turn into a buttered casserole, sprinkle with the nuts and bake 15 to 20 minutes, or until hot. (The casserole may be prepared ahead and reheated.) Makes 6 to 8 servings.
Note: Recipe may be doubled for 12 servings.

STEAMED APPLE PUDDING

- 1½ cups fine dry bread crumbs
- ½ cup flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup unsulphured molasses
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 2 cups chopped tart cooking apples
- 1 cup whole fresh cranberries

In large bowl mix bread crumbs, flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, salt and sugar. In a small bowl beat together eggs, molasses and butter. Add to the dry ingredients. Stir in the apples and cranberries. Turn into a well greased and sugared 6 to 8-cup pudding mold or a greased and sugared 2-pound coffee can, filling it ⅔ full. Cover tightly with greased foil or the greased lit. Tie the foil in place. Place the mold on a wire rack in a deep kettle. Pour in hot water to come halfway up the sides of the mold. Cover the kettle and bring water to boiling point. Turn down heat to a low simmer, cover and steam 2 to 2½ hours, or until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Let stand 10 minutes. Invert on a plate and serve with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream. Serves 8 to 12.

FRESH CRANBERRY SAUCE

- 4 cups (1 pound) fresh cranberries
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 cups water

Mix cranberries, sugar and water in large saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves. Bring to a boil and boil 5 minutes, or until cranberries begin to pop. Serve warm or cold. Makes 4 cups.

CREAMED ONIONS WITH MUSHROOMS AND CARROTS

- 24 small white onions, peeled (1½ pounds)
- 3 carrots pared and cut diagonally into thin slices (1½ cups)
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ cup reserved cooking liquid
- 1 cup milk
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ½ pound mushrooms, sliced rather thickly

Cook onions in a large saucepan of lightly salted boiling water for 8 to 10 minutes or until just tender. Add the carrots and cook 3 minutes, or until just barely tender. Drain the liquid, reserving ½ cup for the sauce. Melt butter in a saucepan; blend in flour. Stir over moderate heat for 2 minutes. Stir in the cooking liquid, milk, salt, thyme and pepper and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Simmer 3 minutes. Add the mushrooms and cook over low heat 5 minutes. Add the reserved onions and carrots and cook, covered, 3 to 4 minutes, or until heated through. (This may be prepared ahead and reheated.) Makes 6 to 8 servings.
Note: Recipe may be doubled for 12 servings.

Know-how important when preparing turkey

1. GRASP DRUMSTICK. Place knife between thigh and body of turkey and cut through skin to joint. Remove entire leg by pulling out and back, using point of knife to disjoint it. Separate thigh and drumstick at joint.

2. INSERT FORK into upper wing to steady turkey. With knife, make a long cut above wing joint through to body frame. If desired, wing can be disjointed from body.

3. SLICE STRAIGHT down with an even stroke, beginning half way up the breast. When knife reaches cut above wing bone, slice will fall free.

4. CONTINUE slicing white meat by starting cut at higher point each time until crest of bone is reached.

Although Thanksgiving dinner is typically a time when all family members try to get together to celebrate the holiday, dinner may differ considerably from family to family.

However, America's favorite bird, the turkey, usually graces most tables and it will probably be surrounded by favorite dishes from special recipes passed down through the generations.

Even though the recipes may be the same, the preparation is far different from what our great-grandmothers had to contend with. Modern day appliances, from electric carving knives and mixes to large refrigerator/freezers and self-cleaning ovens, have made preparation of a large dinner far easier and faster.

AND THANKS TO dishwashers, waste disposers and trash compactors, even the cleanup chores are easier.

Another thing that has definitely changed from grandma's day is the length of time it takes to roast a turkey. Today's turkeys are grown faster, are younger and more tender, and as a result, they take less time to cook.

If the turkey is on your Thanksgiving menu, the most reliable way to make sure it is cooked to perfection is to use a meat thermometer. Insert it into the thick part of the thigh, making sure it doesn't touch the bone. Roast the bird in a preheated 325-degree oven until the thermometer reads 180 to 185 degrees.

WHEN THE turkey is done, the leg and thigh should move easily and the thick part of the thigh should feel soft when pressed with your protected thumb and forefinger. Also, prick the skin on the thigh and look at the juice; it should be clear and not pink in color. If after testing you still have some doubts, it would be well to allow an extra half hour of roasting time.

If you have ever prepared a self-basting turkey that has a plastic pop-up timing device, you may have noticed that the bird seemed to get done sooner than the approximate cooking time charts indicate, so you may have left it in a little longer only to find that it was over done.

Actually, self-basting turkeys both with and without timing devices usually cook in slightly less time than other turkeys. When the self-basting injection is added, the tissue is separated and heat transfer during cook-

Meaning remains, customs change

by GAYNOR MADDOX

Thanksgiving is still our greatest feasting holiday. Americans continue to want turkey, giblet gravy and pumpkin pie. We still like to see members of the family reunited for Thanksgiving dinner. Technology and job opportunities, however, alter old family ways. Although the old-time spirit is strong, many of the early American customs have been changed.

That is the observation of Mercedes Bates, vice-president of General Mills, director of its Consumer Center, and formerly food editor of McCall's magazine.

KNOWLEDGEABLE IN the ways of American families she says, "Our work habits affect the Thanksgiving picture. No longer can we be certain that a son in New York or a daughter in San Francisco or a brother in Miami can afford or have the time to travel home to celebrate. Too expensive for many relatives. So gradually neighbors or good friends or often people who have no place to go are invited to fill the place of faraway relatives. This is more and more true every year.

"Modern technology is making unnecessary many of the drudgeries our parents went through preparing Thanksgiving dinner. Peeling potatoes for a crowd is no longer necessary with the ready-to-use variety of potatoes.

"More than 50 per cent of women work outside the home today. That fact certainly alters the pattern of Thanksgiving dinner preparation," she adds. "These women prefer dishes that can be pre-cooked and stored in the freezer ready to be heated. Gelatin molds, ready to serve from the refrigerator, take precedence over the more time-consuming types.

TURKEY AND STUFFING have resisted change to a degree. Different families like different stuffing. I grew up in Oregon where my mother always added a few raisins to the stuffing. Today, I must have a few raisins in my stuffing to be happy. On the Eastern seaboard, it's oyster stuffing. In the South cornmeal stuffing; in the West Coast area often you find dried fruits in the stuffing. And the turkeys today are so beautifully cleaned, they need very little preparation for the oven."

She points out, "Vegetables taste as good today even though they are prepared differently. Many excellent ones are frozen. Hubbard squash is seasonal and many would not consider it a Thanksgiving dinner without squash. And there is a traditional longing for white onions.

"Another change is the use of wine. More and more Americans now serve either white or red wine regularly. So many families will expect it at Thanksgiving.

"THE OLD-FASHIONED tradition of Thanksgiving dinner demands pumpkin pie or some version of it. I buy a fine pumpkin pie from a reliable bakery. Then I spread whipped topping over it. It is always a success. Sometimes I spread it with softened ice cream. Equally successful.

"Incidentally, did you know that there is pumpkin ice cream available? Delicious and certainly timely."

Thanksgiving, she believes, is not the day of slavery in the kitchen it used to be but the old-time spirit is still there.

No time for pumpkin pie? Concoct pudding instead Pumpkin pie may be traditional for Thanksgiving dinners, but pudding can be just as delicious and doesn't require making a crust.

PUMPKIN PUDDING

- 2 cups cooked, mashed pumpkin
- 4 eggs, beaten
- 2/3 cup milk
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1/3 cup flour
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/16 teaspoon ground cloves

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Turn into a buttered 8 by 8 by 2-inch baking dish. Place in pan with 1 inch hot water. Bake in a preheated 400-degree over 50 to 60 minutes or until a knife inserted into center comes out clean. Makes 6 portions.

Raw meat cooked up accidently

The French gourmet, Marquis de Cussy, once said that cooking dated back to Adam. Shouldn't it have been Eve? But most authorities are willing to settle for the Orient as the cradle of the culinary art. Here's how it all may have happened. Primitive man, who first ate only raw meat, was warming himself one night by the fire with his day's kill close by his side. Accidentally the animal caught fire, man touched it and burned his fingers, then instinctively, he put his fingers in his mouth and mmmmmm . . . delicious! It was the world's first barbecue.

The rutabaga was the offspring of an accidental mating between a cabbage and a turnip in Switzerland in 1620. For a long time after their chance discovery, rutabagas were not favored because of their strong flavor and coarse texture. A Swiss botanist first took notice of the rutabaga, but its name comes from the Swedish word, rotabagge. In fact, English and Canadians call it a Swedish turnip; the French call it Swedish cabbage. When rutabagas were fed to us GIs during World War II, we gave them a name that best described their doubtful parentage.

Who do you think has the dubious honor of being first to be kept awake by coffee? No less than a goat that lived in ancient Ethiopia. He frisked around all night after chowing on the berries of a coffee tree. His master tried the beans and they had the same effect on him. Coffee was first served as food, then as a wine, finally as a beverage in Arabia in the 1200s.

When coffee reached Great Britain, the laboring class was encouraged to drink it instead of the usual pint of whiskey that workers would down before going to work. Next, along came Irish coffee, originally containing cognac, and not concocted by the Irish but by a Frenchman who couldn't take the strong Irish cognac straight. Today we Americans drink 380 million cups of coffee a day. That adds up to about 950 thousand coffee breaks, and I don't know how many sleepless nights.

Thanksgiving's favorite

Holiday bird required on table

Holiday turkey and glazed carrots.

Turkey for Thanksgiving has been a favorite of Americans since the Colonials first savored the native wild turkey 200 years ago.

This is one tradition that stirs memories in those of all ages. There is nothing like the impatient waiting as the head of the household skillfully carves slice after slice from the handsomely browned bird.

Soon the plates are heaped with Thanksgiving specialties — perhaps a favorite family stuffing or a variation combining dry bread cubes, coarse corn bread crumbs, raisins and ham. A quick gravy made from the drippings and browned bits in th roasting pan tops off the biscuits and whipped potatoes.

HOLIDAY TURKEY AND STUFFING WITH GRAVY

- 1 cup diced cooked ham
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- ½ teaspoon sage
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cans (10½ ounces each) chicken or chicken giblet gravy
- 4 cups dry bread cubes
- 2 cups coarse corn bread crumbs
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- ½ cup raisins
- 10-pound turkey

In saucepan, brown ham and cook onion with poultry seasoning and sage in butter until onion is tender. Add ½ cup gravy. Toss lightly with bread cubes, corn bread crumbs, egg and raisins. Fill body and neck cavities of turkey with stuffing; secure with skewers. Fasten legs by tying with string. Tuck wings behind shoulders. Place in roasting pan, cover loosely with foil. Roast at 325 degrees for about 4 hours (25 minutes per pound or until internal temperature reaches 185 degrees and leg moves easily). Uncover last hour to brown. Baste occasionally. Remove turkey from pan. Spoon off fat, saving 6 tablespoons drippings. On top of range, in roasting pan, combine remaining gravy and drippings. Heat, stirring to loosen browned bits. Serve with turkey and stuffing. Makes 8 to 10 servings, about 2 cups gravy.

SPICY GLAZED CARROTS

- 1 cup sliced celery
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1/8 teaspoon ground allspice
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 can (6 fluid ounces) cocktail vegetable juice
- ¼ cup water
- 3 tablespoons orange marmalade
- 2 cups sliced cooked carrots

In saucepan, cook celery and onion with allspice in butter until tender. Blend in cornstarch, cocktail vegetable juice, water and marmalade. Cook, stirring until thickened. Add carrots; heat. Makes about 2½ cups, 4 servings.

Popular bird

A survey of chicken eating habits in the institutional food market indicates that 53 per cent of institutional menus offer a main course chicken dish at least twice a week and 37 per cent, three times a week or more. The study by the National Broiler Council showed 89 per cent named nutrition as the first major factor that influenced the selection. Patient preference was listed in the top three by 66 per cent, and both patient dietary requirements and cost-per-serving, by 65 per cent.

Know-how important when preparing turkey

ing is speeded. Be sure to follow the processor's cooking directions for best results with this type of turkey. And if you want to be double sure, use a meat thermometer or check the doneness of the leg and thigh.

AFTER THE turkey is perfectly roasted, it's time to carve it. We've probably all seen drawings and illustrations showing dad or granddad deftly carving beautiful neat slices of turkey at the table. A charming picture; however, from past experience you may know that for your family it isn't that easy . . . or that quick.

Many peopoe find it easier to carve the bird in the kitchen, placing slices on a heated platter and getting the food all ready for passing around while it is still hot.

One of the key secrets to better carving is to let the meat stand for a little while to slightly cool before starting. Fifteen to 20 minutes is sufficient.

Roasting times

Because turkeys vary due to their shape and variety, cooking times will vary, too. For those who do not use a meat thermometer, here is an approximately cooking time chart for roating turkey in a 325 degree oven:

Ready to cook Weight	Approximate Cooking Time
6 to 8 lbs.	3 to 3½ hrs.
8 to 12 lbs.	3½ to 4½ hrs.
12 to 16 lbs.	4½ to 5½ hrs.
16 to 20 lbs.	5½ to 6½ hrs.

Note: Unstuffed turkeys require about 1/2 hour less roasting time.

Thanksgiving at home

Expert values time in kitchen

by LOIS SEILER

Preparing an elegant Thanksgiving dinner resulted in a proposal of marriage for Joan Barker of Mount Prospect. "However, after our marriage, I took Hank home to my family in St. Paul for Thanksgiving dinner for years thereafter," Joan chuckled.

For the past few years the Barkers and their three children have been spending the holiday at home and Joan prepares a traditional dinner. Turkey has never been a novelty in her household, as Joan considers it an economical meal and prepares it several times throughout the year.

A home ec graduate, Joan started her career as a home economist for Westinghouse in St. Paul. She later worked as a writer and food stylist for Quaker Oats, and then served as assistant food editor for The Chicago Daily News.

EVEN WITH this impressive background, Joan candidly admits that she is not averse to shortcuts or mixes.

"Today's woman is called upon to chauffeur, hang wallpaper and do countless other duties in addition to participating in civic activities, so convenience foods are often a necessity," she maintains.

Joan can satisfy her own need for both creativity and ease of preparation by incorporating frozen or canned foods into her recipes, and she embellishes basic cake mixes, turning them into distinctive and original creations. So it is with her Pumpkin Pound Cake, which she devised to satisfy her pumpkin-loving family.

"I always make a pumpkin pie for the feast," she said, "but it disappears in a hurry. So, often during the fall months I bake the pumpkin cake, which lasts longer and pleases my family."

SHE STARTS with a spice cake mix and adds oil, eggs, pudding mix, pumpkin and spices. Baked in a Bundt pan, this moist and flavorful cake is frosted with a browned butter icing and a sprinkling of chopped nut.

With leftover turkey Joan prepares a delicious casserole that can be served for an informal company dinner. It consists of white and wild rice, turkey, mushrooms, parsley, pimiento and almonds baked in a rich cream sauce. As accompaniments she suggests a Cranberry Orange Mold, rolls and relishes. If you wish to expand the menu, a green vegetable may be served.

A COMBINATION of prepackaged convenience and old-fashioned "from scratch" ingredients bake into one of Joan Barker's seasonal highlights for the dinner table.

Incorporating color into a meal is essential in Joan's planning, as she believes people eat with their eyes as well as their mouths. Her cranberry mold is both colorful and tasty and has a crunchy texture. It can easily be made ahead of time, as can the casserole, so there is no last minute fuss.

AN ATTRACTIVE table is also important to this good cook, and she devotes considerable time to her centerpiece, linens and china for a dinner party. She is a member of Mount Prospect Garden Club and holds a national office in Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. She is active in Panhellenic, Trinity Methodist Church and Westbrook School.

In charge of the publicity scrapbook for the Mount Prospect Bicentennial Commission, Joan designed the float for the fire department and Kiwanis which was judged best civic entry and best use of color and costume in the July 4 parade.

PUMPKIN POUND CAKE

1 package spice cake mix (18 ounces)
½ cup vegetable oil
4 eggs
1 small package instant vanilla pudding mix
3/4 cup water
3/4 cup canned pumpkin
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon cloves

Blend all ingredients in a large bowl. Beat at medium speed for two minutes. Turn into a greased and floured 10-inch tube or Bundt pan and bake at 350 degrees for 60 minutes or until center springs back when lightly touched. Cool right side up about 25 minutes. Then invert and remove from pan.

Prepare the following browned butter icing:

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups powdered sugar

In a small saucepan, melt butter until lightly browned. Remove from heat. Add remaining ingredients, stirring until smooth. Drizzle over top and sides of cake. Sprinkle top with 2 or 3 tablespoons finely-chopped nuts. Serves 16.

TURKEY AND WILD RICE CASSEROLE

1 package (6 ounces) long grain and wild rice mix
1/3 cup chopped onion
1/3 cup butter
1/3 cup flour
1 cup Half and Half
1 cup turkey broth (or 1 cup water plus a chicken bouillon cube)
1 can (6 ounces) mushrooms, or ½ pound sauteed fresh mushrooms
3 cups diced turkey
2 tablespoons minced parsley
¼ cup pimiento, chopped
½ cup toasted almonds
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook rice mix according to package directions and cool thoroughly.

Saute onion in butter. Stir in flour. Gradually add Half and Half and broth, cooking until thickened. Add salt and pepper.

Combine rice, cream sauce and remaining ingredients and turn into a greased, two-quart casserole. Bake, uncovered, 30 minutes at 350 degrees or until bubbly. Serves 6 generously.

CRANBERRY ORANGE MOLD

1 package (3 ounces) raspberry gelatin
1¾ cup boiling water
1 package frozen cranberry-orange relish
½ cup finely-chopped celery
½ cup chopped red apples

Combine gelatin and boiling water, stirring until dissolved. Add frozen relish, stirring until thawed. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in remaining ingredients and turn into a one-quart ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens. For parties, garnish with orange slices. Serves 6.

Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

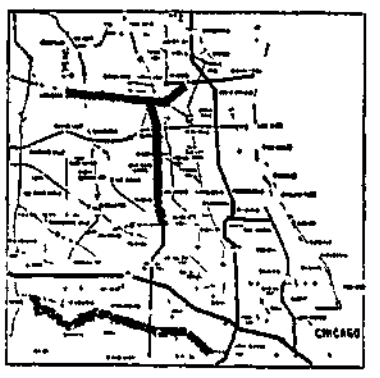
State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,560 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,616 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, according to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.



NEW FREEWAY plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

- A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.
- An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o fthe existing interchange.
and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,865 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later on," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

Chicago rates may increase city water bills

by JOE FRANZ

Water bills for Des Plaines residents will increase by at least 7.9 per cent Jan. 1 if the City of Chicago follows through with a proposal to increase the cost of water it sells to the city.

Des Plaines Comptroller Duane L. Blietz Wednesday said he is uncertain how much rates in Des Plaines would rise if the proposal is approved by the Chicago City Council, but said rates would be adjusted enough to at least absorb the cost increase from Chicago.

"Chicago wants to raise its water rates because of increased costs," he said. "Our costs are increasing too. I think the city would increase its rates by some percentage to reflect not only the increased cost of water from Chicago, but higher costs of pumping and distribution."

If the rate increase is approved by Chicago, Blietz said, the city's water and sewer committee would study the matter and recommend a new rate.

RICHARD PAVIA, Chicago's commissioner of water and sewers, said if the rate increase is approved the cost of water to Des Plaines would increase from 28.3 cents per 100 cubic feet to 34.3 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Des Plaines charges its residents 76 cents per 100 cubic feet to cover the cost of pumping, distribution and personnel in its water department. If rates were increased to reflect Chicago's price increase, residents would pay 82 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Pavia said the average single-family household uses about 20,000 cubic feet of water each year. If water rates in Des Plaines were increased to reflect the proposed 6 cents per 100 cubic foot increase, the water bill for the average homeowner would increase from $152 to $164 a year.

Blietz said the water rate increase would be the first in Des Plaines in three years. Before the last increase, city residents paid 53 cents per 100 cubic feet of water.

A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

City may ban parking on north side of Oakton

Des Plaines businessmen and city officials are considering a plan to ban parking on one side of Oakton Street as an alternative to purchasing property there for three municipal parking lots.

Mayor Charles J. Bolek said the plan would relieve traffic congestion on Oakton Street between River Road and the Soo Line R.R. tracks, and would be less costly than purchasing the land and building the parking lots.

THE PLAN TO build the parking lots calls for a total parking ban on Oakton Street. It was proposed by the city's department of planning and zoning and would cost an estimated $305,000.

BOLEK SAID the alternate plan would be less costly and appears more satisfactory to businessmen. It would not require the acquisition of land now housing homes or businesses. City officials have not prepared a cost estimate for the plan.

"I'm not going to say the plan to acquire the property for the parking lots is dead, but I don't think it would be a good solution to the problem," Bolek said.

Under the latest plan, the city would ban parking on the north side of Oakton Street and provide angle parking on several north-south side streets in the area.

Bolek said the plan would open Oakton Street to two lanes of traffic in each direction with no significant change in the amount of parking. Parking on both sides of the street leaves only one lane open to traffic in each direction.

THE MAYOR SAID the plan might require widening Oakton Street and probably would require the city to make several of the north-south side streets one-way.

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long.

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 33 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $8 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

'Unit plan may harm Dist. 214'

High School Dist. 214 would face "serious planning and morale problems" if the unit school district proposed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area is formed, Fremd Raubinger, professor of educational administration at the University of Illinois, said Wednesday.

The loss of more than one-fourth of Dist. 214 students and some 40 per cent of its assessed valuation, along with declining enrollment projections, would force a readjustment and a reappraisal of programs offered by Dist. 214, Raubinger testified at a unit district proposal hearing.

"If this policy of piecemeal destruction of the district was to spread, some parts of the remaining district would indeed be in trouble," said Raubinger, a consultant hired by Dist. 214.

THE UNIT DISTRICT proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove High schools under one school board and administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

Breaking two schools out of Dist. 214 to make them part of another district would damage the district's identity and its uniqueness, said Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert.

Dist. 214 is recognized statewide and nationwide for the scope and quality of its educational and extracurricular progams, its administrative and financial stability, its ability to meet the demands of growth, its internal harmony and its size, he said.

"WHEN OUR GRADUATES enroll in college or seek employment they certainly profit by the district's good image," Gilbert said. "This same image also is a benefit to the real estate and business developments within the villages we serve."

Calling Dist. 214 an exemplary, well-administered high school district, Raubinger said the school system is in the forefront in meeting diverse student needs. He said, however, the district offers the wide variety of courses it does partially because of its size.

Some of the individual schools in the district offer as many as 250 different courses, with each building allowed sufficient autonomy to take the needs and interests of its students into account when planning programs, Raubinger said.

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally got the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a classroom. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant superintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

Now that most of the dismissed teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 35 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Rence Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver. She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Mary Lou Knefley, who recently was hired as a third grade teacher at Poe School in Arlington Heights after working as an aide last year, had not taught in five years. Besides learning about Dist. 21, Mrs. Knefley said her year as an aide "helped me to see what's been going on in the past five years, rather than plunging right in."

Although working as an aide or a substitute may help a teaching candidate gain contacts, it also can be a big financial sacrifice, said Robert Cudney of Dist. 214.

In Dist. 214, a beginning teacher earns $10,850 annually. Substitutes are paid $30 a day and beginning aides are paid about $4 an hour, Cudney said. "The aides are getting about half of what a teacher makes," he said. "But some of them are pretty tenacious and it seems to be paying off."

Hope Burke (center) shouts her approval when a scene is done just right.

Grandma directs, success assured

by DIANE GRANAT

When the 3 o'clock bell rings at Holmes Junior High School in Wheeling, teacher Hope Burke takes on a new identity.

By day, Mrs. Burke teaches English to 162 seventh and eighth graders. But by late afternoon, she is "Grandma," the beloved drama instructor for dozens of young performers at Holmes.

Holmes principal James Johnson says he doesn't think there is another teacher in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 "who does as much as Hope." Watching her dart from her last class to the gymnasium where she spends hours coaching students for their newest production, it's not hard to understand why.

Since she began teaching at Holmes in 1966, Mrs. Burke has directed several productions each year. This fall's play, Donald Payton's "Rest Assured," will be Friday and Saturday nights at Holmes, 221 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling.

THE SILVER-HAIRED, soft-spoken teacher puts in an extra two or three hours a day with the drama club because she feels the plays are "a positive way for a child to get recognition."

For her 12-and 13-year-old proteges, Mrs. Burke said she likes comedies. "Comedy is kind of a relief for them because everything is confusing at this age," she said. "If they can learn to laugh at themselves and let others laugh with them, it makes it easier."

Because she sees kids as being "delightful" Mrs. Burke's students respond with a special kind of affection.

"She's super" and "we love her" are some of the praises delivered by her drama students.

"She makes everybody feel special in their own way," said Roger Stricker, props man for "Rest Assured." "And even if she's had an exhausting day, she doesn't show it."

SOME OF THE Holmes actors and actresses say they would never have become involved in drama if Mrs. Burke were not in charge. Eighth grader Bobbie Wauters said Mrs. Burke insists students learn their lines well, "but she doesn't get real hyper if you don't know them."

The students also show great admiration for their teacher's own acting talents, which Mrs. Burke said she only used in amateur productions in high school and in college.

"She can do every part in the play," said Bobbie Wauters. "If she was acting out the play herself, it would be perfect."

The 46-year-old teacher contributes to the sense of fun at rehearsals by helping to plot a surprise birthday party for one of the cast members, and by allowing the cast to call her by her nickname, "Grandma."

"WE CALL HER Grandma, not because she's old, but because she's everything you would want a grandma to be," Stricker said.

In addition to the fall play, Mrs. Burke produces a winter play and writes and directs a spring variety show involving about 150 students. "There is no way you can buy a script in which these students can show themselves off," Mrs. Burke said, adding that she writes in spots to highlight students' talents.

There have been so many plays in Mrs. Burke's teaching career that she says she has trouble remembering them all. "I concentrate so intently on the one I'm doing this year, I forget what I've done in the past," she said.

But she can count them on her wrist. Several years ago her students gave her a silver bracelet, and after each production they give her a charm with the play's title engraved on it.

Based on the way this year's students adore their drama teacher, you can "rest assured" she will have a new charm to add to her bracelet Saturday night.

Under the direction of Mrs. Burke, Eric Williams does a spirited acting job.

Salk urges new vaccine approach

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Swine flu and other types of influenza can be controlled with killed-virus vaccines without the infection risk posed by live-virus vaccines, according to the man who developed the first polio vaccine.

"A killed-virus approach is effective for the control of these diseases," Dr. Jonas Salk said Tuesday night in an address delayed for release 24 hours.

In his talk before the Council for the Advancement of Science Writing at the University of Texas Medical Branch, Salk said experiences with vaccination during the past 40 years have increased understanding of the immune response and of the requirements for inducing effective immunity against infectious diseases.

"MORE RECENT advances permit the selection of specific antigenic subunits (injected protein used to fight disease) of the virus for use in vaccine preparation," he said.

Salk said the study and basic requirements of effective immunization — which he calls "vaccinology" — requires an understanding of the history of the diseases.

Salk said different problems are encountered with different methods. Live virus vaccines against influenza and polio, for example, may produce the disease they are intended to prevent. The live virus vaccines against measles and mumps may produce side effects such as encephalitis.

"Both of these problems appear to be associated with the inherent difficulty in controlling living viruses," he said.

"We've come a long way to develop a science of vaccinology," Salk said. "The response of the immunization program is testimony to the need."

Cement lions can't escape from pedestal poachers

Unknown poachers bagged two lions in Elk Grove Village Tuesday.

The lions, made of cement and weighing 330 pounds each, were taken from in front of the Grove Memorial Chapel, 1199 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

"I can't understand why anyone would steal anything from a funeral home," said owner Anthony J. Maiorielio. "It's like stealing a rosary."

Elk Grove Village police said they are investigating the theft and the report that Maiorielio's mother saw a light green van leaving the funeral home parking lot between 10 and 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Maiorielio said the lions added a touch of class to the funeral home's exterior.

"They were real nice until somebody took them," he said. "I don't think it was a prank. Somebody probably always wanted one and couldn't afford it."

The 3-foot-high lions, which cost $150 each, were made by Tuscany Studio Inc., Chicago. A spokesman said they sell "a lot" of the lions — in three sizes — using their own original design and molds for construction.

Maiorielio said he will replace the lions, but will secure them to their pedestals this time.

"We relied too much on the honesty of people by just placing them out there," he said.

Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,560 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,616 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, according to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.

NEW FREEWAY plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

- A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.
- An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o'fthe existing interchange.
and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,865 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later on," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

Efforts to polish village's image working: official

by LINDA PUNCH

Wheeling's tarnished political image has hindered business in the past, but now the village is "like a pearl in an oyster" waiting to be opened, says William Alexander, president of the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce.

"Wheeling is just waiting to be opened up. It's a community that really hasn't advanced that much but I think it's just coming into being," he said.

Alexander said the village is emerging from the shadow cast by the conviction of four former officials in a 1974 zoning shakedown scandal.

"THE INDICTMENTS were a political thing. It was their corruption, not ours. That's what happens when some people have absolute power and there is no balance of power in the community," he said.

The scandal affected the village's business community because "people want to know what kind of town they're going into," Alexander said.

"It makes a difference if you can't get a permit or do normal business without making accommodations or paying someone else," he said.

Alexander said Wheeling "is surviving very well," despite its past image problems.

"People are more aware of their surroundings and the potential. The village is in the center of everything — it's a hub and things are getting better everyday," he said.

THE CHAMBER'S past run-ins with village officials also is giving way to a more tranquil relationship. Alexander cited the committee working on the village's proposed sign ordinance as an example.

The committee, consisting of local businessmen, the village beautification committee and village officials "only proves that if you get the political end, the business end and the beautification end together, we can sit and work in harmony," Alexander said.

"(Trustee Charles) Kerr (committee chairman) has done one hell of a job. There will always be disagreements but for the most part, it was an excellent job," he said.

The village board's recent hiring of an urban planner to develop a program for revitalizing the Milwaukee Avenue-Dundee Road business district will be an asset for local businesses, Alexander said.

"MILWAUKEE Avnue is one of the key streets in the community. I think the village did an excellent job in recommending the survey," he said.

Alexander said he feels local businessmen will support a central business district redevelopment plan as long as they are involved in planning the project.

"Businessmen have to have a thriving community or they're out of business. People have to know what business does for them. A good community with full employment brings more business," he said.

The chamber is planning to publish a magazine in March highlighting different aspects of the village, from history to commercial development. Alexander said he believes the magazine will show people Wheeling is "a happy community with a good base for them."

A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long.

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally get the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a class-

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 33 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $6 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

'Unit plan may harm Dist. 214'

High School Dist. 214 would face "serious planning and morale problems" if the unit school district proposed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area is formed, Fremd Raubinger, professor of educational administration at the University of Illinois, said Wednesday.

The loss of more than one-fourth of Dist. 214 students and some 40 per cent of its assessed valuation, along with declining enrollment projections, would force a readjustment and a reappraisal of programs offered by Dist. 214, Raubinger testified at a unit district proposal hearing.

"If this policy of piecemeal destruction of the district was to spread, some parts of the remaining district would indeed be in trouble," said Raubinger, a consultant hired by Dist. 214.

THE UNIT DISTRICT proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove High schools under one school board and administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

Breaking two schools out of Dist. 214 to make them part of another district would damage the district's identity and its uniqueness, said Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert.

Dist. 214 is recognized statewide and nationwide for the scope and quality of its educational and extracurricular progams, its administrative and financial stability, its ability to meet the demands of growth, its internal harmony and its size, he said.

"WHEN OUR GRADUATES enroll in college or seek employment they certainly profit by the district's good image," Gilbert said. "This same image also is a benefit to the real estate and business developments within the villages we serve."

Calling Dist. 214 an exemplary, well-administered high school district, Raubinger said the school system is in the forefront in meeting diverse student needs. He said, however, the district offers the wide variety of courses it does partially because of its size.

Some of the individual schools in the district offer as many as 250 different courses, with each building allowed sufficient autonomy to take the needs and interests of its students into account when planning programs, Raubinger said.

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

room. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant superintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

Now that most of the dismissed teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 35 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Renee Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver. She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Mary Lou Knefley, who recently was hired as a third grade teacher at Poe School in Arlington Heights after working as an aide last year, had not taught in five years. Besides learning about Dist. 21, Mrs. Knefley said her year as an aide "helped me to see what's been going on in the past five years, rather than plunging right in."

Although working as an aide or a substitute may help a teaching candidate gain contacts, it also can be a big financial sacrifice, said Robert Cudney of Dist. 214.

In Dist. 214, a beginning teacher earns $10,850 annually. Substitutes are paid $30 a day and beginning aides are paid about $4 an hour, Cudney said. "The aides are getting about half of what a teacher makes," he said. "But some of them are pretty tenacious and it seems to be paying off."

Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

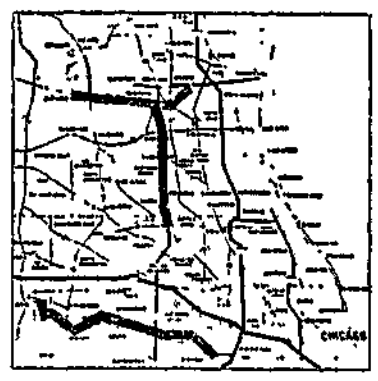
State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,560 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,616 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, according to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.



NEW FREEWAY plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

- A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.
- An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o fthe existing interchange.
and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,865 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later o~," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

Dist. 21 'farm club' pays off in teaching jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally get the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a classroom. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant superintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

Now that most of the dismissed teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 35 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus

A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

Emergency service units in red

The Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. ambulance and paramedic service probably will end the fiscal year in the red despite a new ambulance subscription plan begun this year, said Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

Winter said the department anticipates revenues of between $44,000 and $47,000 from subscriptions and regular calls. He said anticipated expenses are $49,000.

Winter said the projected deficit will not result in a reduction in services, but will be absorbed in next year's budget, which will include money from a new ambulance tax approved in a referendum late this summer by Buffalo Grove voters.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT serves only the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove. Lake County is served by the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District.

The Buffalo Grove department began a program in June in which residents can pay $20 a year for unlimited ambulance service. Fees for nonsubscribers were raised from $30 to $70 a call.

Winter previously anticipated revenues of $20,000 from nonsubscription calls. He said Wednesday that estimate has been reduced to between $12,000 and $15,000 because fewer people are using the ambulance service due to the increased price.

"Trips to the hospital have dropped significantly with the advent of this program," Winter said. "When people were getting (ambulance service) for relatively free, they tended to abuse it."

WINTER SAID nonsubscribers with less serious injuries now are driving themselves to the hospital.

Ambulance subscription plan revenues have reached nearly $30,000, Winter said, with another $2,000 expected from persons who are new to the village. Newcomers receive a prorated charge.

Winter said about 1,700 families have subscribed to the program. It will end in May when the department begins collecting ambulance service taxes.

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long.

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 35 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $6 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

Unit plan may hurt Dist. 214: expert

High School Dist. 214 would face "serious planning and morale problems" if the unit school district proposed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area is formed, Fremd Raubinger, professor of educational administration at the University of Illinois, said Wednesday.

The loss of more than one-fourth of Dist. 214 students and some 40 per cent of its assessed valuation, along with declining enrollment projections, would force a readjustment and a reappraisal of programs offered by Dist. 214, Raubinger testified at a unit district proposal hearing.

"If this policy of piecemeal destruction of the district was to spread, some parts of the remaining district would indeed be in trouble," said Raubinger, a consultant hired by Dist. 214.

THE UNIT DISTRICT proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove High schools under one school board and administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

Breaking two schools out of Dist. 214 to make them part of another district would damage the district's identity and its uniqueness, said Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert.

Dist. 214 is recognized statewide and nationwide for the scope and quality of its educational and extracurricular progams, its administrative and financial stability, its ability to meet the demands of growth, its internal harmony and its size, he said.

"WHEN OUR GRADUATES enroll in college or seek employment they certainly profit by the district's good image," Gilbert said. "This same image also is a benefit to the real estate and business developments within the villages we serve."

Calling Dist. 214 an exemplary, well-administered high school district, Raubinger said the school system is in the forefront in meeting diverse student needs. He said, however, the district offers the wide variety of courses it does partially because of its size.

Some of the individual schools in the district offer as many as 250 different courses, with each building allowed sufficient autonomy to take the needs and interests of its students into account when planning programs, Raubinger said.

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Renee Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver. She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Mary Lou Knefley, who recently was hired as a third grade teacher at Poe School in Arlington Heights after working as an aide last year, had not taught in five years. Besides learning about Dist. 21, Mrs. Knefley said her year as an aide "helped me to see what's been going on in the past five years, rather than plunging right in."

Although working as an aide or a substitute may help a teaching candidate gain contacts, it also can be a big financial sacrifice, said Robert Cudney of Dist. 214.

In Dist. 214, a beginning teacher earns $10,850 annually. Substitutes are paid $30 a day and beginning aides are paid about $4 an hour, Cudney said. "The aides are getting about half of what a teacher makes," he said. "But some of them are pretty tenacious and it seems to be paying off."

Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

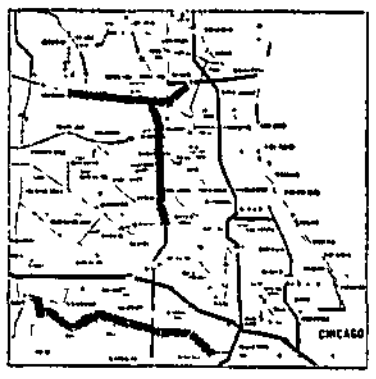
State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,560 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,616 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, according to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.



NEW FREEWAY plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

- A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.
- An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o fthe existing interchange.
and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,865 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later on," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

350 pound lions pose no threat to poachers

Unknown poachers bagged two lions in Elk Grove Village Tuesday.

The lions, made of cement and weighing 350 pounds each, were taken from in front of the Grove Memorial Chapel, 1199 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

"I can't understand why anyone would steal anything from a funeral home," said owner Anthony J. Maloriello. "It's like stealing a rosary."

Elk Grove Village police said they are investigating the theft and the report that Maloriello's mother saw a light green van leaving the funeral home parking lot between 10 and 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

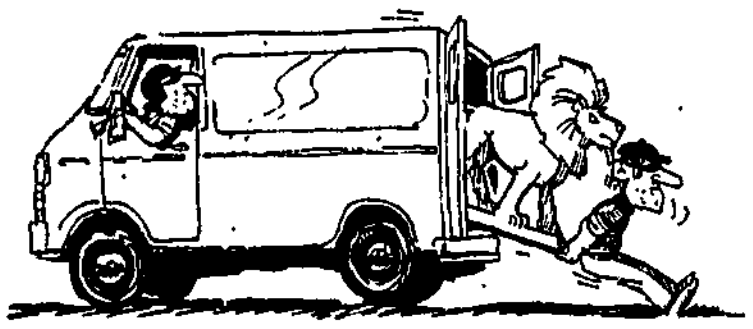
Maloriello said the lions added a touch of class to the funeral home's exterior.

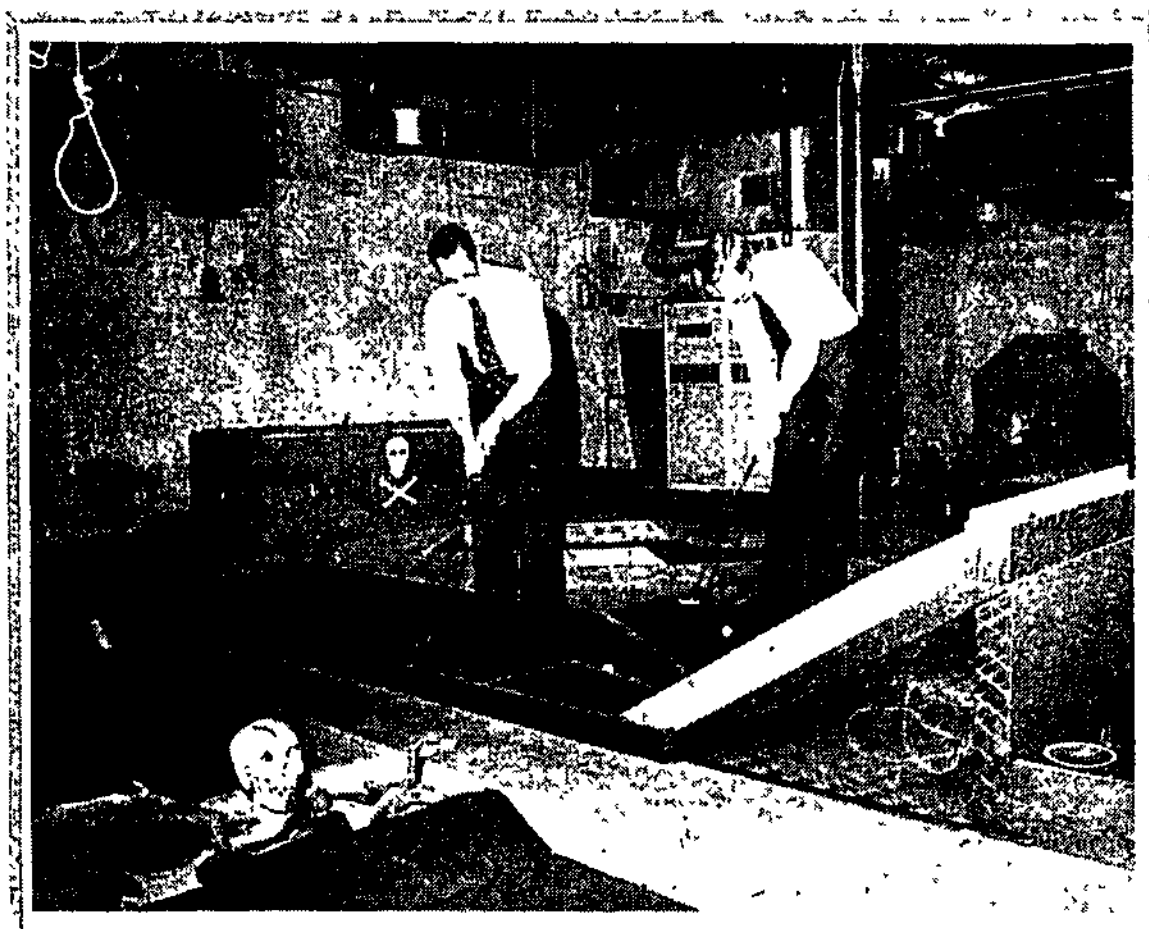
"They were real nice until somebody took them," he said. "I don't think it was a prank. Somebody probably always wanted one and couldn't afford it."

The 3-foot-high lions, which cost $150 each, were made by Tuscany Studio Inc., Chicago. A spokesman said they sell "a lot" of the lions — in three sizes — using their own original design and molds for construction.

Maloriello said he will replace the lions, but will secure them to their pedestals this time.

"We relied too much on the honesty of people by just placing them out there," he said.





A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

Dist. 21 'farm club' pays off in teaching jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally get the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a classroom. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant su-

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long.

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 35 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $6 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

Advice from 'spanking judge'

Parents have got to get into the act

by JOHN LAMPINEN

He saw the teen-ager in a Whiting, Ind., restaurant, Judge William E. Obermiller recalled.

He went up to shake hands with Dennis, and as he did, he raised the boy's arm to examine it for needle marks.

"Hey, don't embarrass me," Dennis said.

"I WANT YOU clean," Obermiller replied.

It was an example of what "The Spanking Judge" means by caring.

"You've got to know what your kids are doing, and where they are and what they've done," Obermiller said. "You've got to check their purses for marijuana seeds. You've got to check their arms."

Obermiller talked about juvenile problems to a group of about 50 Northwest suburban residents Wednesday night at Hoffman Estates High School.

HE CALLED FOR "a grassroots court," for strong families, a return to moral principles and most of all, for parents to take the time to care.

"We have time for everything, but when it involves our kids, we don't have time," he said.

Youngsters want strong leadership from their parents, Obermiller said. They want a sense of direction.

"They're constantly testing you all the time. They're crying for discipline," he said. We've got to have faith in our kids. We've got to give it to them early in life. We've got to give them moral guidelines."

HOWEVER SOCIETY is not providing those guidelines, he said, criticizing television as one of the chronic purveyors of immorality.

"The moral atmosphere today in America is unbelievable," Obermiller said. "And we're going to pay the price for it."

He attacked the courts for being out-of-touch and removed from local problems. Local, community courts that can act quickly and follow up on the problems are required, he said.

"I think your judiciary has taken such a high and mighty position on what they're doing," the judge said. "Some of these judges should get off the bench and get out on the streets and find out what's going on."

HE ENDORSED a proposal that would hold parents financially responsible for the vandalism of their children. But that shouldn't be limited to having the parents pay the youngster's fine, he said.

The parent should then be required to sign an affidavit showing that the youngster worked off the fine at home. If the parent commits perjury on the affidavit, he could be held in contempt of court, Obermiller said.

Parents must get into the act, he added.

"Take the time to care," he said. "It's not because you're checking to find anything. It's that you're praying to God when you check that you won't find anything."

Empty seats 'judge' lecturer

There was no need for the side sections in the spacious auditorium.

The center section provided the crowd with more than enough seats.

The crowd that gathered to hear "The Spanking Judge" inside Hoffman Estates High School Wednesday night was less than had been anticipated.

At 7:30 p.m., when the lecture was scheduled to begin, a count of the attendance totaled 28.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Trustee Melvin E. Timmons handed out biographical literature on Judge William E. Obermiller and recalled how village officials had figured they would need the spacious auditorium.

"We thought it would be good for community involvement," Timmons said. "He (Obermiller) is a classy guy."

A few more people filed in, raising the number to about 50, and Obermiller got up and began talking about how he'd rather be home and about how you've got to "take the time to care" and about apathy.

"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he told the audience.

Looking out to the audience, he nodded.

"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he said.

THE CROWD WAS politely silent throughout most of the evening.

It cheered twice — once when Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter said parents cannot pass the buck for what their children do and when Obermiller said judges ought to get on the streets and find out what's going on.

They had come in search of answers. Patricia Austin of Buffalo Grove came because she has known about delinquent youngsters as a school nurse. Peggy Tully of Hoffman Estates came because she is concerned about her children. Clarice Rech of Buffalo Grove came because her post as village trustee had exposed her to the problems.

"What he said about caring is very important," Ms. Austin said.

Dist. 211 wrapup

Board joins suit to stop loss of aid

The High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Wednesday agreed to join several other school districts filing a suit against the Illinois Office of Education to prevent the loss of state aid to 140 schools including those in Dist. 211.

Because of a new interpretation of the method for computing state aide payments, Dist. 211 could lose about $388,000 for 1976-77, Business Mgr. James Slater said.

"We haven't lost anything from our budget," he said, "But (the new interpretation) would give us less than we should really get."

The previous IOE interpretation would have allowed Dist. 211 to receive this year up to 125 per cent of the amount of state aid it was entitled to get in 1975-76.

However, the new interpretation limits districts to 125 per cent of the amount of aid they actually received last year, which was about 90 per cent of their entitlement.

The suit, filed last week in Lake County, asks the IOE to reverse its interpretation.

The IOE's new interpretation calls for "a reallocation of resources," Slater said. "These funds we are losing would be allocated to other districts."

Records policy move delayed

The board Wednesday delayed a decision on its revised student records policy so they can study the amount of time permanent student records should be kept.

The policy under consideration calls for retaining only permanent academic and health records for five years after a student graduates. However, detailed teacher evaluation, awards won, family background, and other college entrance information are contained in the temporary records which are destroyed after five years.

"There may be some pupils who don't go to college right out of high school," board member Gene Fisler said. "Maybe there would be some way of retaining that information so it wouldn't be destroyed after so short a time."

Board Pres. Robert Creek directed superintendent Richard Kolve to look into the number of requests for records made more than five years after the student's graduation.

"I suspect you'll find (the number of requests) is only a trickle," Creek said.

Officers elected to industry panel

New officers have been elected to the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce board of directors.

James Lancaster of the Bank of Elk Grove is the new president. Other officers are president-elect Bruce Wilson of J. E. Bernard & Co., vice presidents Robert Koop of K & K Koffee Service and Gayle Bantner of Elk Grove Drug and treasurer Ray Stenberg of Howell Tractor & Equipment Co.

All of the new officers except Wilson were elected to two-year terms.

Others elected to the board of directors were Tim Frisby of R. J. Frisby Manufacturing Co., attorney Lee Garr, Jim Scoleri of Converse Rubber Co., Harold Gallagher of DII Inc., Roy Learn of AC-Delco and Darrell Fouts of Westmont Industrial Products.

AN ART LESSON is conducted by Barbara Ayers-Best, who teaches fifth and sixth graders at Field School, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling. Mrs. Ayers-Best is a Dist. 21 teacher who was hired after working in the district as a substitute.

Unit proposal may harm Dist. 214, consultant says

High School Dist. 214 would face "serious planning and morale problems" if the unit school district proposed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area is formed, Fremd Raubinger, professor of educational administration at the University of Illinois, said Wednesday.

The loss of more than one-fourth of Dist. 214 students and some 40 per cent of its assessed valuation, along with declining enrollment projections, would force a readjustment and a reappraisal of programs offered by Dist. 214, Raubinger testified at a unit district proposal hearing.

"If this policy of piecemeal destruction of the district was to spread, some parts of the remaining district would indeed be in trouble," said Raubinger, a consultant hired by Dist. 214.

THE UNIT DISTRICT proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove High schools under one school board and administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

Breaking two schools out of Dist. 214 to make them part of another district would damage the district's identity and its uniqueness, said Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert.

Dist. 214 is recognized statewide and nationwide for the scope and quality of its educational and extracurricular progams, its administrative and financial stability, its ability to meet the demands of growth, its internal harmony and its size, he said.

"WHEN OUR GRADUATES enroll in college or seek employment they certainly profit by the district's good image," Gilbert said. "This same image also is a benefit to the real estate and business developments within the villages we serve."

Calling Dist. 214 an exemplary, well-administered high school district, Raubinger said the school system is in the forefront in meeting diverse student needs. He said, however, the district offers the wide variety of courses it does partially because of its size.

Dist. 21 'farm club' pays off in jobs

perintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

Now that most of the dismissed teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 33 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Renee Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver: She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Mary Lou Knefley, who recently was hired as a third grade teacher at Poe School in Arlington Heights after working as an aide last year, had not taught in five years. Besides learning about Dist. 21, Mrs. Knefley said her year as an aide "helped me to see what's been going on in the past five years, rather than plunging right in."

Although working as an aide or a substitute may help a teaching candidate gain contacts, it also can be a big financial sacrifice, said Robert Cudney of Dist. 214.

In Dist. 214, a beginning teacher earns $10,850 annually. Substitutes are paid $30 a day and beginning aides are paid about $4 an hour, Cudney said. "The aides are getting about half of what a teacher makes," he said. "But some of them are pretty tenacious and it seems to be paying off."

From junk to art

SCULPTOR TOM JORIS Wednesday captivated students at Grant Wood School, 225 E. Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, by welding junk metal objects into art. Donated by the students, Joris' supplies included everything from bicycle parts and pans to pipes and bolts. Composed of a variety of metals in a variety of sizes and shapes, the "junk pile" was about four feet high and four feet wide. A graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago, Joris has given his "From Junk to Art" demonstrations at a number of Northwest suburban schools. His aim is to liberate students' preconceived ideas of what things are and how they appear while creating three-dimensional works of art.

Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,500 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,616 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, accordng to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.

NEW FREEWAY plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

• A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.

• An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o fthe existing interchange.
and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,865 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later on," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

'Parents must get in the act': 'spanking judge'

by JOHN LAMPINEN

He saw the teen-ager in a Whiting, Ind., restaurant, Judge William E. Obermiller recalled.

He went up to shake hands with Dennis, and as he did, he raised the boy's arm to examine it for needle marks.

"Hey, don't embarrass me," Dennis said.

"I WANT YOU clean," Obermiller replied.

It was an example of what "The Spanking Judge" means by caring.

"You've got to know what your kids are doing, and where they are and what they've done," Obermiller said. "You've got to check their purses for marijuana seeds. You've got to check their arms."

Obermiller talked about juvenile problems to a group of about 50 Northwest suburban residents Wednesday night at Hoffman Estates High School.

HE CALLED FOR "a grassroots court," for strong families, a return to moral principles and most of all, for parents to take the time to care.

"We have time for everything, but when it involves our kids, we don't have time," he said.

Youngsters want strong leadership from their parents, Obermiller said. They want a sense of direction.

"They're constantly testing you all the time. They're crying for discipline," he said. We've got to have faith in our kids. We've got to give it to them early in life. We've got to give them moral guidelines."

HOWEVER SOCIETY is not providing those guidelines, he said, criticizing television as one of the chronic purveyors of immorality.

"The moral atmosphere today in America is unbelievable," Obermiller said. "And we're going to pay the price for it."

He attacked the courts for being out-of-touch and removed from local problems. Local, community courts that can act quickly and follow up on the problems are required, he said.

"I think your judiciary has taken such a high and mighty position on what they're doing," the judge said. "Some of these judges should get off the bench and get out on the streets

Empty seats 'judge' lecturer

There was no need for the side sections in the spacious auditorium.

The center section provided the crowd with more than enough seats.

The crowd that gathered to hear "The Spanking Judge" inside Hoffman Estates High School Wednesday night was less than had been anticipated.

At 7:30 p.m., when the lecture was scheduled to begin, a count of the attendance totaled 28.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Trustee Melvin E. Timmons handed out biographical literature on Judge William E. Obermiller and recalled how village officials had figured they would need the spacious auditorium.

"We thought it would be good for community involvement," Timmons said. "He (Obermiller) is a classy guy."

A few more people filed in, raising the number to about 50, and Obermiller got up and began talking about how he'd rather be home and about how you've got to "take the time to care" and about apathy.

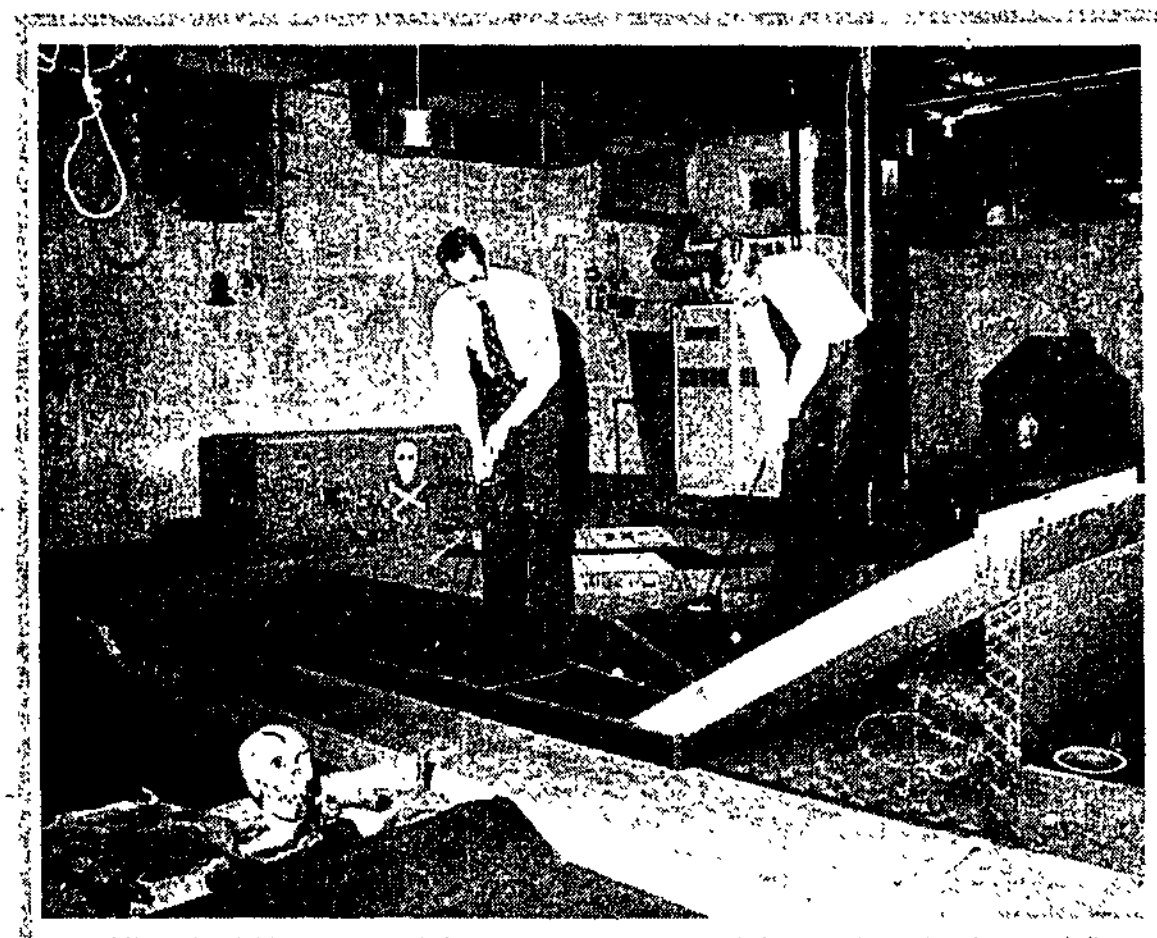
"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he told the audience.

Looking out to the audience, he nodded.

THE CROWD WAS politely silent throughout most of the evening.

It cheered twice — once when Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter said parents cannot pass the buck for what their children do and when Obermiller said judges ought to get on the streets and find out what's going on.

They had come in search of answers. Patricia Austin of Buffalo Grove came because she has known about delinquent youngsters as a school nurse. Peggy Tully of Hoffman Estates came because she is concerned about her children. Clarice Itech of Buffalo Grove came because her post as village trustee had exposed her to the problems.



A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long.

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 35 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $6 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

AN ART LESSON is conducted by Barbara Ayers-Best, who teaches fifth and sixth graders at Field School, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling. Mrs. Ayers-Best is a Dist. 21 teacher who was hired after working in the district as a substitute.

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally get the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a classroom. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant superintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

Now that most of the dismissed teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 35 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Renee Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver. She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Mary Lou Knefley, who recently was hired as a third grade teacher at Poe School in Arlington Heights after working as an aide last year, had not taught in five years. Besides learning about Dist. 21, Mrs. Knefley said her year as an aide "helped me to see what's been going on in the past five years, rather than plunging right in."

Although working as an aide or a substitute may help a teaching candidate gain contacts, it also can be a big financial sacrifice, said Robert Cudney of Dist. 214.

In Dist. 214, a beginning teacher earns $10,850 annually. Substitutes are paid $30 a day and beginning aides are paid about $4 an hour, Cudney said. "The aides are getting about half of what a teacher makes," he said. "But some of them are pretty tenacious and it seems to be paying off."

Board joins suit to stop loss of aid

The High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Wednesday agreed to join several other school districts filing a suit against the Illinois Office of Education to prevent the loss of state aid to 140 schools including those in Dist. 211.

Because of a new interpretation of the method for computing state aide payments, Dist. 211 could lose about $386,000 for 1976-77, Business Mgr. James Slater said.

"We haven't lost anything from our budget," he said, "But (the new interpretation) would give us less than we should really get."

The previous IOE interpretation would have allowed Dist. 211 to receive this year up to 125 per cent of the amount of state aid it was entitled to get in 1975-76.

However, the new interpretation limits districts to 125 per cent of the amount of aid they actually received last year, which was about 90 per cent of their entitlement.

The suit, filed last week in Lake County, asks the IOE to reverse its interpretation.

The IOE's new interpretation calls for "a reallocation of resources," Slater said. "These funds we are losing would be allocated to other districts."

Records policy move delayed

The board Wednesday delayed a decision on its revised student records policy so they can study the amount of time permanent student records should be kept.

The policy under consideration calls for retaining only permanent academic and health records for five years after a student graduates. However, detailed teacher evaluation, awards won, family background, and other college entrance information are contained in the temporary records which are destroyed after five years.

"There may be some pupils who don't go to college right out of high school," board member Gene Fisler said. "Maybe there would be some way of retaining that information so it wouldn't be destroyed after so short a time."

Board Pres. Robert Creek directed superintendent Richard Kolve to look into the number of requests for records made more than five years after the student's graduation.

"I suspect you'll find (the number of requests) is only a trickle," Creek said.

Cowin doesn't trust anyone: Hayter

Deposed finance committee chairman William W. Cowin "doesn't trust anyone else on finances," Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter says.

She was reacting to Cowin's charges that she asked the village board to remove him as chairman of the committee as a way of "getting even" with him because of disagreements on two ethics issues.

However, Mrs. Hayter refused to deny or comment directly on Cowin's charge.

"I DON'T ANSWER male chauvinist charges," she said at one point.

Referring to comments that trustees were concerned with the way Cowin handled budget hearings earlier this year, Mrs. Hayter said they complained that Cowin wanted to discuss matters of less than $10,000.

Cowin, she said, "doesn't trust" other officials on financial matters.

"I was not aware that I felt this way," Cowin responded, "but then she's a know-all, see-all that knows everything. Maybe she knows something that I don't know."

TWO WEEKS AGO, the board voted, 4 to 0, with Cowin and Trustee Bruce C. Lind abstaining, to name Trustee Ralph H. Lyerla chairman of the finance committee, effective Dec. 1. Cowin was named to take over Lyerla's chairmanship of the public health and safety committee.

"I don't vote," Mrs. Hayter said, "and I'd like to point out what the vote was. That was a statement, and it wasn't mine."

In response, Cowin renewed his contention that the board had decided how it would vote in a session with Mrs. Hayter prior to the village board meeting.

"It was a vote that she had arranged for her in her kangaroo court," he said. "They voted as she wanted."

Mrs. Hayter maintained that she was merely "appraising" trustees of her intentions.

"I didn't elicit who was going to do what," she said. "I didn't know what the vote would be."

She added that "oftentimes" she will mention what she plans to another trustee prior to village board meetings.

THE TIMING OF Lyerla's appointment she said, was to enable him to review the budget hearing procedure before hearings begin in January.

In replacing Cowin, who has chaired the committee for 7½ years, Mrs. Hayter said Lyerla had been involved in financial matters in Schaumburg Township prior to his election to the village board in 1973.

"I think that he did an excellent job," she said. "It's not (like) he's coming in brand new."

Correction

Wednesday's Herald mistakenly reported that Hoffman Estates Village Trustee Bruce Lind will succeed Trustee William Cowin as chairman of the village's finance committee. Trustee Ralph Lyerla is the new finance committee chairman. Cowin is the new chairman of the public helath and safety committee, and Lind remains chairman of the public works committee.

Cement lions can't escape from pedestal poachers

Unknown poachers bagged two lions in Elk Grove Village Tuesday.

The lions, made of cement and weighing 350 pounds each, were taken from in front of the Grove Memorial Chapel, 1199 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

"I can't understand why anyone would steal anything from a funeral home," said owner Anthony J. Maloriello. "It's like stealing a rosary."

Elk Grove Village police said they are investigating the theft and the report that Maloriello's mother saw a light green van leaving the funeral home parking lot between 10 and 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Maloriello said the lions added a touch of class to the funeral home's exterior.

"They were real nice until somebody took them," he said. "I don't think it was a prank. Somebody probably always wanted one and couldn't afford it."

The 3-foot-high lions, which cost $150 each, were made by Tuscany Studio Inc., Chicago. A spokesman said they sell "a lot" of the lions — in three sizes — using their own original design and molds for construction.

Maloriello said he will replace the lions, but will secure them to their pedestals this time.

"We relied too much on the honesty of people by just placing them out there," he said.

HE ENDORSED a proposal that would hold parents financially responsible for the vandalism of their children. But that shouldn't be limited to having the parents pay the youngster's fine, he said.

The parent should then be required to sign an affidavit showing that the youngster worked off the fine at home. If the parent commits perjury on the affidavit, he could be held in contempt of court, Obermiller said.

Parents must get into the act, he added.

"Take the time to care," he said. "It's not because you're checking to find anything. It's that you're praying to God when you check that you won't find anything."

Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

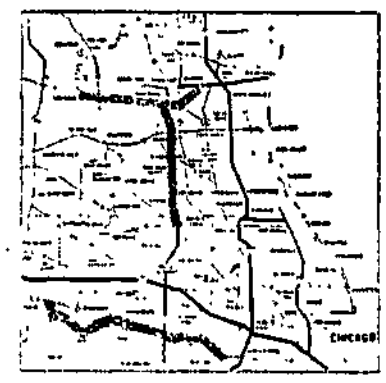
State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,560 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,816 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, according to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.



NEW FREEWAY plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

- A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.
- An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o fthe existing interchange.
and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,865 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later on," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

A touch of art at Plaza? Wall mural weighed

by PAUL GORES

Area youths hope to paint a mural on a wall at the Palatine Plaza as part of a youth development program of The Bridge, Palatine Township's youth counseling service.

About 90 youths this year are participating in a program designed to give them a first-hand look at what they might want to do after high school.

Members of one youth group are meeting and spending time with persons whose occupation the youths have shown an interest in, such as journalism or veterinary science. Others are experimenting in art and working with computers.

"IT'S A TOOL TO get them into some meaningful things," said Rick Atwater, a Bridge counselor. He and counselor Larry Thomas came up with the idea of a program to give kids an inside view of their possible occupations.

"There seemed to be a need for kids who will be graduating out of The Bridge," Atwater said. "It's to help them focus on what they might want to get into."

Atwater said the program is not an established Bridge program as yet, but it has contributed to the youth service's preventive counseling goals.

He said there has been no problem finding persons who are willing to explain their work or let the youths experiment.

"IN WHAT CONTACTS we have made, we find people to be very cooperative," Atwater said.

Atwater said an owner of Palatine Plaza, Northwest Highway near Baldwin Road, is reviewing plans from members of the group who hope to paint a wall mural at the shopping center.

Many of the youths also are interested in music careers, Atwater said, and he is trying to arrange a backstage session with musician Corky Siegel of Des Plaines.

Because the majority of members are still seniors in high school, there has been no time to gauge the effectiveness of the program as yet.

But Atwater said he thinks it has "worked out pretty nicely" and will continue. He said there's another group of youths whom he would like to try the same thing with in a couple of months.

"These are some pretty sophisticated and intelligent kids," Atwater said. "We tell them we have a program where we can maybe give some leadership and direction and even do some neat things."

A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long.

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally get the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a classroom. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant superintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 35 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $6 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

Dist. 21 'farm club' pays off in teaching jobs

teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 35 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Renee Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver. She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Mary Lou Knefley, who recently was hired as a third grade teacher at Poe School in Arlington Heights after working as an aide last year, had not taught in five years. Besides learning about Dist. 21, Mrs. Knefley said her year as an aide "helped me to see what's been going on in the past five years, rather than plunging right in."

Although working as an aide or a substitute may help a teaching candidate gain contacts, it also can be a big financial sacrifice, said Robert Cudney of Dist. 214.

In Dist. 214, a beginning teacher earns $10,850 annually. Substitutes are paid $30 a day and beginning aides are paid about $4 an hour, Cudney said. "The aides are getting about half of what a teacher makes," he said. "But some of them are pretty tenacious and it seems to be paying off."

AN ART LESSON is conducted by Barbara Ayers-Best, who teaches fifth and sixth graders at Field School, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling. Mrs. Ayers-Best is a Dist. 21 teacher who was hired after working in the district as a substitute.

Unit proposal may harm Dist. 214, consultant says

High School Dist. 214 would face "serious planning and morale problems" if the unit school district proposed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area is formed, Fremd Raubinger, professor of educational administration at the University of Illinois, said Wednesday.

The loss of more than one-fourth of Dist. 214 students and some 40 per cent of its assessed valuation, along with declining enrollment projections, would force a readjustment and a reappraisal of programs offered by Dist. 214, Raubinger testified at a unit district proposal hearing.

"If this policy of piecemeal destruction of the district was to spread, some parts of the remaining district would indeed be in trouble," said Raubinger, a consultant hired by Dist. 214.

THE UNIT DISTRICT proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove High schools under one school board and administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

Breaking two schools out of Dist. 214 to make them part of another district would damage the district's identity and its uniqueness, said Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert.

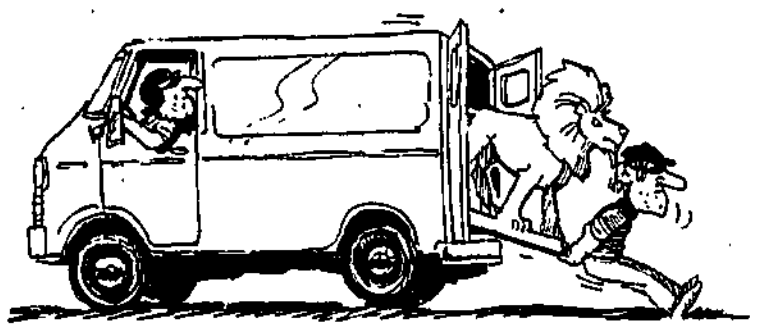
Dist. 214 is recognized statewide and nationwide for the scope and quality of its educational and extracurricular progams, its administrative and financial stability, its ability to meet the demands of growth, its internal harmony and its size, he said.

"WHEN OUR GRADUATES enroll in college or seek employment they certainly profit by the district's good image," Gilbert said. "This same image also is a benefit to the real estate and business developments within the villages we serve."

Calling Dist. 214 an exemplary, well-administered high school district, Raubinger said the school system is in the forefront in meeting diverse student needs. He said, however, the district offers the wide variety of courses it does partially because of its size.

Some of the individual schools in the district offer as many as 250 different courses, with each building allowed sufficient autonomy to take the needs and interests of its students into account when planning programs, Raubinger said.

Cement lions can't escape from pedestal poachers



Unknown poachers bagged two lions in Elk Grove Village Tuesday.

The lions, made of cement and weighing 350 pounds each, were taken from in front of the Grove Memorial Chapel, 1109 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

"I can't understand why anyone would steal anything from a funeral home," said owner Anthony J. Maloriello. "It's like stealing a rosary."

Elk Grove Village police said they are investigating the theft and the report that Maloriello's mother saw a light green van leaving the funeral home parking lot between 10 and 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Maloriello said the lions added a touch of class to the funeral home's exterior.

"They were real nice until somebody took them," he said. "I don't think it was a prank. Somebody probably always wanted one and couldn't afford it."

The 3-foot-high lions, which cost $150 each, were made by Tuscany Studio Inc., Chicago. A spokesman said they sell "a lot" of the lions — in three sizes — using their own original design and molds for construction.

Maloriello said he will replace the lions, but will secure them to their pedestals this time.

"We relied too much on the honesty of people by just placing them out there," he said.

Decision set on park board plan

Arlington Heights park commissioners will decide next month whether to increase the park board from five to seven members and decrease terms of office from six to four years.

A Herald poll of board members indicates they will vote against the seven-member board but for four-year terms.

In 1974 the Illinois General Assembly amended the park district code giving park districts the ability to change to seven-member commissions with four-year terms.

BOARD MEMBERS can, by resolution, increase the number of commissioners, and decrease the length of terms, Charles K. Bobinette, park district attorney, said in a letter dated last year.

Parks Director Thomas Thornton was unsure whether the board can legally split on the question — decide to decrease the length of terms and not increase the number of commissioners.

Parks Atty. Charles K. Bobinette was unavailable for comment on the issue.

Three of the current five board members said they probably will vote to keep the number of commissioners at five, one was for the increase and one declined to comment.

Of the four who responded, all approved decreasing length of terms of office.

"From what I've seen in a little over a year on the board, the addition of two board commissioners would not be any great advantage," said Comr. Robert P. Rohleder.

"The principle benefits would be to spread the workload and time demands so commissioners would not be overworked," he said, "but I don't think meetings have been excessive in terms of affect on personal time."

ROHLEDER WAS appointed to fill the unexpired term of Robert Smith, who was transferred to Tulsa, Okla.

Board Pres. Lloyd W. Meyer, said he is "leaning toward voting against the increase," althought his decision is not conclusive.

"I don't think we're overburdened with work now," he said, "but we have good board members now. Possibly in a year from now we could be overburdened. We could end up holding off a vote until we get to that point where we need seven members."

Comr. Robert J. Throckmorton also said board members are not overloaded with work, although he has not decided for sure how to vote about the increase.

Comr. Kathryn Graham is the only member for the increase. "It would spread out committee work, bring in more creativity and be more representative," she said.

"Seven people might have thought through some of the things this board has decided better than five did. Some of us serve on three committees and don't serve effectively," she said.

"The park district has worked very hard in the past to get this concept accepted by the legislature," Mrs. Graham said. "But it will take some reeducation of the present board to be accepted."

Comr. Jacqueline J. Gruenewald declined comment on the issue, saying, "I have a very definite opinion but saying what it is would be defying an order by the president (Meyer) not to discuss it until we meet and talk about it as a board."

Jefferson School to open Jan. 4

Classes are expected to begin in January at the new $2 million Jefferson School in the Winston Knolls subdivision of Hoffman Estates, Joseph Kiszka, Palatine Township Dist. 15 deputy superintendent, said.

The district can use the school beginning Dec. 15, Kiszka said, and current plans call for starting classes at Jefferson Jan. 4, after the winter vacation.

Students who will attend Jefferson are now attending three schools in Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

"We have a timetable to the day on what needs to be done and who is responsible for doing it," Kiszka said.

The district board members had hoped to start classes at Jefferson in November, but construction problems caused the completion date to be pushed back to December.

Work still to be done by the builders, includes electrical wiring, placing floor and ceiling tiles and laying carpet, Kiszka said.

New equipment for the school is being received by the district and stored in the Jefferson gym, Kiszka said.

Alan Hopkins, who will be principal at Jefferson, has been contacting parents of the approximately 670 students who will attend classes there to find out details such as who will need bus transportation and who will be staying for hot lunches," Kiszka said.

Officials warn of thin ice on pond

Rolling Meadows Park District officials have asked parents to instruct their children to stay off Kimball Hill pond when the yellow warning barrels are visible.

The barrels are a signal to skaters that the ice is not safe.

"Even though the pond may appear frozen over and have a good build up of ice, one 40-degree day will cause a break in some spots," said Stephen Person, superintendent of parks and recreation.

Person said most accidents on ice happen at the first signs of a freeze and during the spring thaw.

"The fascination of the first freeze and the temptation to test the ice for skating possibilities is very dangerous for children," he added.

Kimball Hill pond is approximately six feet deep with two to three feet of mud on the bottom and is "extremely dangerous" in the winter, Person added.

Person said until the ice build-up is three to four inches, the pond will not be safe for skating.

Parents have got to get into the act: 'spanking judge'

by JOHN LAMPINEN

There was no need for the side sections in the spacious auditorium.

The center section provided the crowd with more than enough seats.

The crowd that gathered to hear "The Spanking Judge" inside Hoffman Estates High School Wednesday night was less than had been anticipated.

At 7:30 p.m., when the lecture was scheduled to begin, a count of the attendance totaled 28.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Trustee Melvin E. Timmons handed out biographical literature on Judge William E. Obermiller and recalled how village officials had figured they would need the spacious auditorium.

"We thought it would be good for community involvement," Timmons said. "He (Obermiller) is a classy guy."

A few more people filed in, raising the number to about 50, and Obermiller got up and began talking about how he'd rather be home and about how you've got to "take the time to care" and about apathy.

"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he told the audience.

Looking out to the audience, he nodded.

"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he said.

THE CROWD WAS politely silent throughout most of the evening.

It cheered twice — once when Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter said parents cannot pass the buck for what their children do and when Obermiller said judges ought to get on the streets and find out what's going on.

They had come in search of answers. Patricia Austin of Buffalo Grove came because she has known about delinquent youngsters as a school nurse. Peggy Tully of Hoffman Estates came because she is concerned about her children. Clarice Rech of Buffalo Grove came because her post as village trustee had exposed her to the problems.

"What he said about caring is very important," Ms. Austin said.

He saw the teen-ager in a Whiting, Ind., restaurant, Judge William E. Obermiller recalled.

He went up to shake hands with Dennis, and as he did, he raised the boy's arm to examine it for needle marks.

"Hey, don't embarrass me," Dennis said.

"I WANT YOU clean," Obermiller replied.

It was an example of what "The Spanking Judge" means by caring.

"You've got to know what your kids are doing, and where they are and what they've done," Obermiller said. "You've got to check their purses for marijuana seeds. You've got to check their arms."

Obermiller talked about juvenile problems to a group of about 50 Northwest suburban residents Wednesday night at Hoffman Estates High School.

HE CALLED FOR "a grassroots court," for strong families, a return to moral principles and most of all, for parents to take the time to care.

"We have time for everything, but when it involves our kids, we don't have time," he said.

Youngsters want strong leadership from their parents, Obermiller said. They want a sense of direction.

"They're constantly testing you all the time. They're crying for discipline," he said. We've got to have faith in our kids. We've got to give it to them early in life. We've got to give them moral guidelines."

HOWEVER SOCIETY is not providing those guidelines, he said, criticizing television as one of the chronic purveyors of immorality.

"The moral atmosphere today in America is unbelievable," Obermiller said. "And we're going to pay the price for it."

William Obermiller

He attacked the courts for being out-of-touch and removed from local problems. Local, community courts that can act quickly and follow up on the problems are required, he said.

"I think your judiciary has taken such a high and mighty position on what they're doing," the judge said. "Some of these judges should get off the bench and get out on the streets and find out what's going on."

HE ENDORSED a proposal that would hold parents financially responsible for the vandalism of their children. But that shouldn't be limited to having the parents pay the youngster's fine, he said.

The parent should then be required to sign an affidavit showing that the youngster worked off the fine at home. If the parent commits perjury on the affidavit, he could be held in contempt of court, Obermiller said.

Parents must get into the act, he added.

"Take the time to care," he said. "It's not because you're checking to find anything. It's that you're praying to God when you check that you won't find anything."

Dist. 211 wrapup

Board joins suit to stop loss of aid

The High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Wednesday agreed to join several other school districts filing a suit against the Illinois Office of Education to prevent the loss of state aid to 140 schools including those in Dist. 211.

Because of a new interpretation of the method for computing state aide payments, Dist. 211 could lose about $386,000 for 1976-77, Business Mgr. James Slater said.

"We haven't lost anything from our budget," he said, "But (the new interpretation) would give us less than we should really get."

The previous IOE interpretation would have allowed Dist. 211 to receive this year up to 125 per cent of the amount of state aid it was entitled to get in 1975-76.

However, the new interpretation limits districts to 125 per cent of the amount of aid they actually received last year, which was about 90 per cent of their entitlement.

The suit, filed last week in Lake County, asks the IOE to reverse its interpretation.

The IOE's new interpretation calls for "a reallocation of resources," Slater said. "These funds we are losing would be allocated to other districts."

Records policy move delayed

The board Wednesday delayed a decision on its revised student records policy so they can study the amount of time permanent student records should be kept.

The policy under consideration calls for retaining only permanent academic and health records for five years after a student graduates. However, detailed teacher evaluation, awards won, family background, and other college entrance information are contained in the temporary records which are destroyed after five years.

"There may be some pupils who don't go to college right out of high school," board member Gene Fisler said. "Maybe there would be some way of retaining that information so it wouldn't be destroyed after so short a time."

Board Pres. Robert Creek directed superintendent Richard Koive to look into the number of requests for records made more than five years after the student's graduation.

"I suspect you'll find (the number of requests) is only a trickle," Creek said.

Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

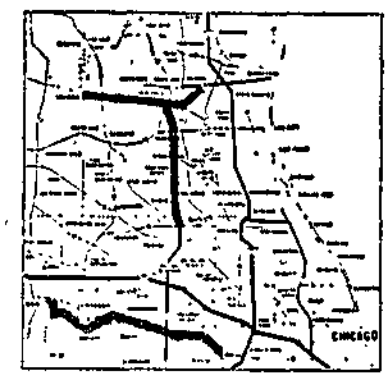
State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,560 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,616 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, according to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.



NEW FREEWAY plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

- A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.
- An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o fthe existing interchange.
and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,665 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later on," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

A touch of art at Plaza? Wall mural weighed

by PAUL GORES

Area youths hope to paint a mural on a wall at the Palatino Plaza as part of a youth development program of The Bridge, Palatine Township's youth counseling service.

About 90 youths this year are participating in a program designed to give them a first-hand look at what they might want to do after high school.

Members of one youth group are meeting and spending time with persons whose occupation the youths have shown an interest in, such as journalism or veterinary science. Others are experimenting in art and working with computers.

"IT'S A TOOL TO get them into some meaningful things," said Rick Atwater, a Bridge counselor. He and counselor Larry Thomas came up with the idea of a program to give kids an inside view of their possible occupations.

"There seemed to be a need for kids who will be graduating out of The Bridge," Atwater said. "It's to help them focus on what they might want to get into."

Atwater said the program is not an established Bridge program as yet, but it has contributed to the youth service's preventive counseling goals.

He said there has been no problem finding persons who are willing to explain their work or let the youths experiment.

"IN WHAT CONTACTS we have made, we find people to be very cooperative," Atwater said.

Atwater said an owner of Palatine Plaza, Northwest Highway near Baldwin Road, is reviewing plans from members of the group who hope to paint a wall mural at the shopping center.

Many of the youths also are interested in music careers, Atwater said, and he is trying to arrange a backstage session with musician Corky Siegel of Des Plaines.

Because the majority of members are still seniors in high school, there has been no time to gauge the effectiveness of the program as yet.

But Atwater said he thinks it has "worked out pretty nicely" and will continue. He said there's another group of youths whom he would like to try the same thing with in a couple of months.

"These are some pretty sophisticated and intelligent kids," Atwater said. "We tell them we have a program where we can maybe give some leadership and direction and even do some neat things."

A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long.

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally get the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a classroom. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant superintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 35 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $6 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

Dist. 21 'farm club' pays off in teaching jobs

teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 35 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Renee Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver. She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Mary Lou Knefley, who recently was hired as a third grade teacher at Poe School in Arlington Heights after working as an aide last year, had not taught in five years. Besides learning about Dist. 21, Mrs. Knefley said her year as an aide "helped me to see what's been going on in the past five years, rather than plunging right in."

Although working as an aide or a substitute may help a teaching candidate gain contacts, it also can be a big financial sacrifice, said Robert Cudney of Dist. 214.

In Dist. 214, a beginning teacher earns $10,850 annually. Substitutes are paid $30 a day and beginning aides are paid about $4 an hour, Cudney said. "The aides are getting about half of what a teacher makes," he said. "But some of them are pretty tenacious and it seems to be paying off."

AN ART LESSON is conducted by Barbara Ayers-Best, who teaches fifth and sixth graders at Field School, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling. Mrs. Ayers-Best is a Dist. 21 teacher who was hired after working in the district as a substitute.

Huge water improvements asked

Improvements costing nearly $1 million are immediate needs listed by village engineers for upgrading water distribution in Palatine.

The improvements are included in a five-part priority program prepared by Consoer, Townsend and Associates and Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig. The program covers ways to improve the village water system as outlined in a recent water study report.

Harwig said steps outlined in the first part should be taken "immediately" to make the system meet the distribution demands of the village.

"WE HAVE ENOUGH of a water supply to meet the needs of the village," Harwig said. "Our problem is that we don't have an adequate distribution system to get the water where we need it."

Harwig said the work outlined in the first part, which includes upsizing and installing of new water mains throughout the village, will greatly improve water distribution.

The work is estimated at $838,800 but Harwig said the cost will probably be $1 million by the time the work is begun. He said the project must be financed through the sale of bonds because the village does not have the cash on hand to pay for the improvements.

Harwig said the work should be done as soon as possible. The village board must adopt a project timetable, he said.

INCLUDED IN the first part are a new telemetry and supervisory control system costing $165,000, improvements to the Michigan Avenue pumping station costing $12,000, installation of a 16-inch main on Rohlwing Road between Cunningham and Juniper streets to service the new Palatine High School costing $123,000, new water mains in various parts of the village costing $278,700 and upsizing of several existing mains costing $154,100.

Harwig said other priorities in the report are not as urgent. The remaining priorities are installing new and upsizing existing water mains. Cost of these steps exceeds $2.75 million.

The report will be reviewed by the village board sitting as a committee-of-the-whole. No meeting date was set.

'Drilling project completion nears'

Drilling at the site of a well at Northwest Highway and Hicks Road should be completed in several weeks.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said Wednesday work crews from J. P. Miller Artesian Well Co. have drilled about 1,100 feet. The well will be about 1,600 feet deep.

Once the well hole is completed, pipes and a pump will be installed, Harwig said. Work on the well pumping station and the adjoining reservoir will begin next spring.

Harwig said the well should be completed by late next summer or early next fall. He said the reservoir probably will take longer to complete and won't be ready for service until next winter.

The well and reservoir are being built at a cost of $1.5 million. The work is financed through the sale of revenue bonds which will be paid back during 20 years from funds generated in the water account.

Harwig said the sand separator ordered for Well 9 at Countryside Drive and Northwest Highway will be installed shortly. The equipment was needed to filter out fine traces of sand still present in the water being pumped from the village's newest well.

Once the sand separator is installed, the well can be connected to the system.

Parents have got to get into the act: 'spanking judge'

Empty seats 'judge' lecturer

There was no need for the side sections in the spacious auditorium.

The center section provided the crowd with more than enough seats.

The crowd that gathered to hear "The Spanking Judge" inside Hoffman Estates High School Wednesday night was less than had been anticipated.

At 7:30 p.m., when the lecture was scheduled to begin, a count of the attendance totaled 28.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Trustee Melvin E. Timmons handed out biographical literature on Judge William E. Obermiller and recalled how village officials had figured they would need the spacious auditorium.

"We thought it would be good for community involvement," Timmons said. "He (Obermiller) is a classy guy."

A few more people filed in, raising the number to about 50, and Obermiller got up and began talking about how he'd rather be home and about how you've got to "take the time to care" and about apathy.

"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he told the audience.

Looking out to the audience, he nodded.

"The empty seats here tonight indicate your problem," he said.

THE CROWD WAS politely silent throughout most of the evening.

It cheered twice — once when Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter said parents cannot pass the buck for what their children do and when Obermiller said judges ought to get on the streets and find out what's going on.

They had come in search of answers. Patricia Austin of Buffalo Grove came because she has known about delinquent youngsters as a school nurse. Peggy Tully of Hoffman Estates came because she is concerned about her children. Clarice Reeh of Buffalo Grove came because her post as village trustee had exposed her to the problems.

"What he said about caring is very important," Ms. Austin said.

by JOHN LAMPINEN

He saw the teen-ager in a Whiting, Ind., restaurant, Judge William E. Obermiller recalled.

He went up to shake hands with Dennis, and as he did, he raised the boy's arm to examine it for needle marks.

"Hey, don't embarrass me," Dennis said.

"I WANT YOU clean," Obermiller replied.

It was an example of what "The Spanking Judge" means by caring.

"You've got to know what your kids are doing, and where they are and what they've done," Obermiller said. "You've got to check their purses for marijuana seeds. You've got to check their arms."

Obermiller talked about juvenile problems to a group of about 50 Northwest suburban residents Wednesday night at Hoffman Estates High School.

HE CALLED FOR "a grassroots court," for strong families, a return to moral principles and most of all, for parents to take the time to care.

"We have time for everything, but when it involves our kids, we don't have time," he said.

Youngsters want strong leadership from their parents, Obermiller said. They want a sense of direction.

"They're constantly testing you all the time. They're crying for discipline," he said. We've got to have faith in our kids. We've got to give it to them early in life. We've got to give them moral guidelines."

HOWEVER SOCIETY is not providing those guidelines, he said, criticizing television as one of the chronic purveyors of immorality.

"The moral atmosphere today in America is unbelievable," Obermiller said. "And we're going to pay the price for it."

William Obermiller

He attacked the courts for being out-of-touch and removed from local problems. Local, community courts that can act quickly and follow up on the problems are required, he said.

"I think your judiciary has taken such a high and mighty position on what they're doing," the judge said. "Some of these judges should get off the bench and get out on the streets and find out what's going on."

HE ENDORSED a proposal that would hold parents financially responsible for the vandalism of their children. But that shouldn't be limited to having the parents pay the youngster's fine, he said.

The parent should then be required to sign an affidavit showing that the youngster worked off the fine at home. If the parent commits perjury on the affidavit, he could be held in contempt of court, Obermiller said.

Parents must get into the act, he added.

"Take the time to care," he said. "It's not because you're checking to find anything. It's that you're praying to God when you check that you won't find anything."

Dist. 211 wrapup

Board joins suit to stop loss of aid

The High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Wednesday agreed to join several other school districts filing a suit against the Illinois Office of Education to prevent the loss of state aid to 140 schools including those in Dist. 211.

Because of a new interpretation of the method for computing state aide payments, Dist. 211 could lose about $386,000 for 1976-77, Business Mgr. James Slater said.

"We haven't lost anything from our budget," he said, "But (the new interpretation) would give us less than we should really get."

The previous IOE interpretation would have allowed Dist. 211 to receive this year up to 125 per cent of the amount of state aid it was entitled to get in 1975-76.

However, the new interpretation limits districts to 125 per cent of the amount of aid they actually received last year, which was about 90 per cent of their entitlement.

The suit, filed last week in Lake County, asks the IOE to reverse its interpretation.

The IOE's new interpretation calls for "a reallocation of resources," Slater said. "These funds we are losing would be allocated to other districts."

Records policy move delayed

The board Wednesday delayed a decision on its revised student records policy so they can study the amount of time permanent student records should be kept.

The policy under consideration calls for retaining only permanent academic and health records for five years after a student graduates. However, detailed teacher evaluation, awards won, family background, and other college entrance information are contained in the temporary records which are destroyed after five years.

"There may be some pupils who don't go to college right out of high school," board member Gene Fisler said. "Maybe there would be some way of retaining that information so it wouldn't be destroyed after so short a time."

Board Pres. Robert Creek directed superintendent Richard Kolve to look into the number of requests for records made more than five years after the student's graduation.

"I suspect you'll find (the number of requests) is only a trickle," Creek said.

Want more freeways? Then get set to pay

by KURT BAER

The proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, construction of an O'Hare to Elgin expressway and other supplemental freeway projects would lead to higher gasoline taxes and vehicle license fees for Illinois motorists, an unpublished transportation department report says.

The two area projects are among 417 miles of new freeway being reviewed by the state's Transportation Study Commission.

A 2-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase, a $7 to $10 increase in car registration fees and a 30 per cent increase in truck registration costs are cited as revenue sources for the freeway projects.

DETAILS OF the financial study were disclosed by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' watchdog group.

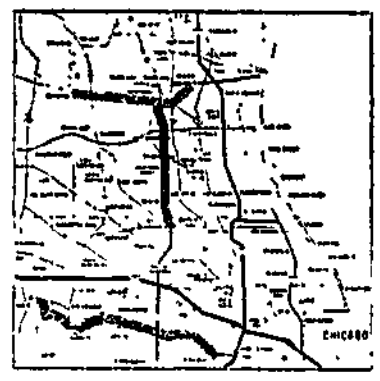
State motor fuel tax already is 7.5 cents per gallon. Annual auto registration is $18 or $30 depending on car size. Truck registration ranges between $24 and $1,560 per year.

The Transportation Study Commission finished public hearings on the supplemental freeways Wednesday and will make recommendations to the legislature in the spring of 1977.

Initially a total of 1,616 miles of freeway was planned between 1977 and 1981. But a consultant's report in April recommended that the highway program be cut back to 417 miles.

Even at the reduced level, the freeway program would cost more than $7 billion, according to the consultant's report.

THE DEPARTMENT of transportation report says there will not be enough money to build the new freeways and maintain needed road and bridge repairs on existing highways unless additional revenue measures are enacted.



NEW FREEWAY plans in the Northwest suburban area include an extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north to Libertyville, and an expressway between O'Hare Airport and Elgin.

Most of the new freeways studied are in the Chicago metropolitan area. Two directly would affect the Northwest suburbs, including:

- A 14-mile extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road in Arlington Heights to Libertyville.
- An Elgin to O'Hare Expressway through Schaumburg and just south of Elk Grove Village that would run parallel to the Northwest Tollway.

Other Chicago area projects considered are a freeway from Richmond to Waukegan through McHenry and Lake counties; a Fox River Valley freeway that would connect Aurora and Elgin and provide a bypass around Chicago; a lakefront expressway in northeast Lake County through Waukegan south to I-94 and Highland Park; and a south suburban expressway that would connect I-57 and I-80 southwest o fthe existing interchange.
and I-80 southwest of the existing interchange.

Bob Heineman of the Illinois Public Action Council said Wednesday the department's own report shows the state cannot afford to build the new freeways and to maintain existing roads and bridges.

"It is our position that they are going to need increased funding just to do the maintenance work," Heineman said.

THE REPORT says 1,710 bridges in Illinois need safety improvements and that 2,865 miles of roads will be unsafe for use by 1981, Heineman said.

A department of transportation spokesman said Wednesday there would be no immediate comment on te financial figures disclosed by the Public Action Council.

"We are looking over the figures in conjunction with that report and may have something to say later on," the spokesman said.

The department of transportation did not testify at any of the hearings. Department Sec. Langhorne Bond, in a Nov. 16 letter to the commission, said it would be "unfair for the department to make proposals which could tie the hands of the governor-elect."

About 100 persons came to a Sept. 23 freeway hearing in Palatine. Most of those who testified spoke against the proposed freeways in the north and Northwest suburbs. The plans are supported by Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell and Stanley Klyber, president of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

County approves training veterans for dispatching

A program in which Mount Prospect would train disabled veterans to be radio dispatchers in communications centers throughout the Northwest suburbs received preliminary approval Wednesday from Cook County.

The 20-week training session, called the Communications Operators Training Program will be the first of its kind in Illinois and is scheduled to begin Jan. 3 at the Mount Prospect Fire Dept. Communications Center. Assistant Village Mgr. Edward A. Geick said the program will cost an estimated $14,000 to be funded by the county. Geick said applicant screening will begin Dec. 6 if the Cook County Board at its next meeting gives the plan final approval.

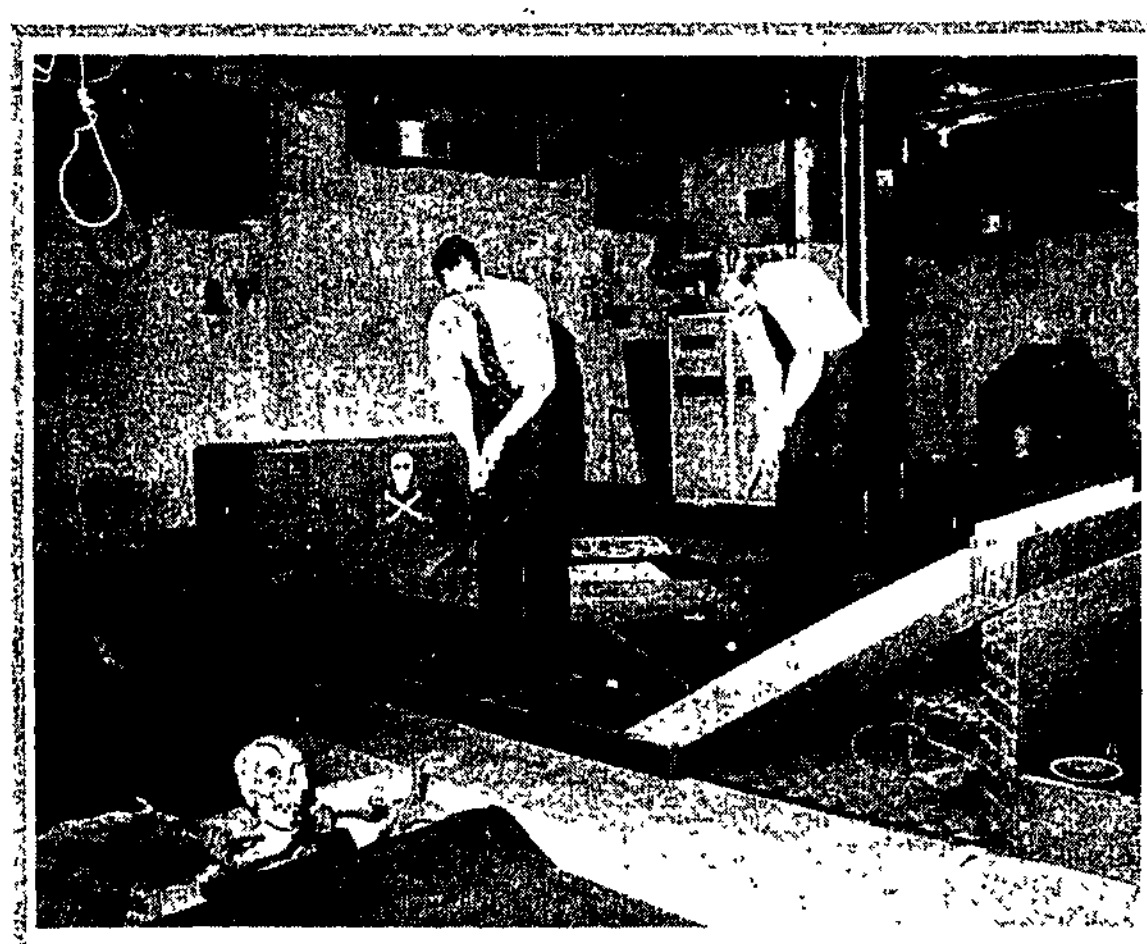
"We would prefer Vietnam War veterans," Geick said, "because they are the primary underprivileged unemployment group. But we will open it to other disabled veterans, too."

THE PROGRAM is designed to educate disabled veterans in radio operations and eventually place them in positions in different communications networks in the Northwest suburbs. Geick said the Northwest Central Dispatch, Northwest Community Hospital and several local fire departments including Mount Prospect's will participate in the project's placement program.

"There is a definite need for solid communications operators in dispatching units in the Northwest suburbs," Geick said. "Now there is quite a bit of turnover in radio operators and we're looking for people who would be more stable in the job itself. There are an awful lot of disabled veterans that are unemployed and would like to be employed."

The Mount Prospect Fire Dept. communications center is manned by full-time firefighters serving as radio operators. Geick said the village is working with the Veterans Administration and the Illinois State Employment Service to locate disabled veterans for program screening.

Participants will be responsible for obtaining transportation to the village training site once the program begins. Geick said, however, transportation to other communications centers from Mount Prospect will be provided for the veterans.



A ROUND OF GOLF on a nine-hole miniature course in the basement of Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Palatine livens up the day for Roger Ahlgrim and Tom Lyons. Hazards on the course include a replica of a human skull, a haunted house and a box once used for shipping corpses.

No deadbeats here! They just like to putter around

by PAUL GORES

Putting greens have turned brown and most area golf courses are closed for the season, but golf lives on at Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

A miniature golf course in the basement of the funeral home lets Ahlgrim employes and friends keep their putting eye sharp all year long..

The nine-hole course features putts through a haunted house, a guillotine and a ramp marked with gravestone-shaped bumpers. The golfer also is challenged by a shot over a human skull replica and a putt through a box once used to ship corpses.

"WE TRIED TO MAKE it a little weird," Roger Ahlgrim said. "Being in a funeral home, it has to be weird."

Ahlgrim and two employes built "Ahlgrim Acres" eight years ago. Ahlgrim said it gave them something to do in the afternoons when they weren't busy.

"I love playing miniature golf," Ahlgrim said. "Every time I would go out to play I would take notes on what they (other courses) had."

When he had acquired enough ideas on how to put the course together, Ahlgrim bought the lumber and carpeting and went to work.

"MOSTLY IT'S USED by employes and my children. We've had the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge over, too," Ahlgrim said. He said the golf course has been used for Halloween parties.

Ahlgrim said a lot of people were surprised when it was announced after a Masonic Lodge meeting that there would be a party at the funeral home.

"People are astonished, surprised — they can't believe it when they hear there's a pee wee course here," Ahlgrim said.

Ahlgrim said because of an increase in business he has less time to use the golf course now than when it was built eight years ago. But some afternoons he still finds time to go through the par-23 course.

"Never when something's going on, though," Ahlgrim said. "It's too noisy. We never let anyone play when there's a wake on."

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

by DIANE GRANAT

Barbara Ayers-Best knew the job market for teachers was tight when she moved to Illinois last year. But this year she got a full-time teaching job in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 because she had "connections."

Mrs. Ayers-Best's "connection" was a year of experience as a substitute teacher in Dist. 21. As a substitute, she became a member of the Dist. 21 "farm club," a group of teachers' aides and substitutes who generally get the first chance at job openings in the district.

The scarcity of teaching jobs — a result of budget cutbacks and a declining number of students — has allowed many school districts the luxury of being choosy when hiring new teachers.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN administrators say they like to be able to employ teachers who have worked as aides and substitutes in the district because they already have a good idea of how they perform in a classroom. But Dist. 21 appears to be making the most concentrated effort to hire from within its own ranks.

Dist. 21 last year sent out about 2,000 job applications — for no openings, said Larry Weaver, assistant superintendent for administration. The district actually fired 60 teachers, and the released teachers were the first to be hired back when vacancies occurred.

$10 to $20 higher gas heat bills expected

by STEVE BROWN

Northwest suburban homeowners face between $10 and $20 per month higher bills this winter for natural gas home heating because of colder weather and increased gas production costs.

Heating bills will increase by about 35 to 40 per cent, C.J. Gauthier, Northern Illinois Gas Co. chairman said Wednesday.

Charges for the heating season, October through April are showing the effect of this fall's cold weather and increases in gas costs.

"THE IMPACT OF weather, coupled with about a 15 per cent increase in bills due to higher gas costs, has resulted in current bills anywhere from $10 to $20 per month higher than last year with its record warm October," Gauthier said. Individual accounts will vary according to size, type of use, local weather conditions and any conservation measures undertaken by the customer.

The utility serves 1.2 million homes in Northern Illinois counties.

As of Nov. 15, the heating season was about 50 per cent colder than normal, and about 80 per cent colder than the similar period last year, he said.

Beginning Dec. 1, Gauthier said, heating bills also will reflect the federal power commission ruling raising the field price of newly discovered gas. The commission's ruling almost tripled the cost from 52 cents per thousand cubic feet to $1.42 the amount pipeline companies can charge gas companies which are allowed to pass cost increases along to consumers.

"WE DON'T WANT customers to be unduly alarmed by these early increases in their bills because we expect the per cent increase for the full winter to be somewhat lower. But we want to try to help customers know what to expect as they budget."

The power commission order on new field prices will account for about $6 to $12 of the predicted monthly increase to NI-Gas residential customers, he said. About half the new price will go to government as taxes, Gauthier said.

"While the higher bills are not welcomed by most customers, we can assure full gas supplies this winter, no matter how cold," Gauthier said.

'Unit plan may harm Dist. 214'

High School Dist. 214 would face "serious planning and morale problems" if the unit school district proposed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area is formed, Fremd Raubinger, professor of educational administration at the University of Illinois, said Wednesday.

The loss of more than one-fourth of Dist. 214 students and some 40 per cent of its assessed valuation, along with declining enrollment projections, would force a readjustment and a reappraisal of programs offered by Dist. 214, Raubinger testified at a unit district proposal hearing.

"If this policy of piecemeal destruction of the district was to spread, some parts of the remaining district would indeed be in trouble," said Raubinger, a consultant hired by Dist. 214.

THE UNIT DISTRICT proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove High schools under one school board and administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

Breaking two schools out of Dist. 214 to make them part of another district would damage the district's identity and its uniqueness, said Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert.

Dist. 214 is recognized statewide and nationwide for the scope and quality of its educational and extracurricular progams, its administrative and financial stability, its ability to meet the demands of growth, its internal harmony and its size, he said.

"WHEN OUR GRADUATES enroll in college or seek employment they certainly profit by the district's good image," Gilbert said. "This same image also is a benefit to the real estate and business developments within the villages we serve."

Calling Dist. 214 an exemplary, well-administered high school district, Raubinger said the school system is in the forefront in meeting diverse student needs. He said, however, the district offers the wide variety of courses it does partially because of its size.

Some of the individual schools in the district offer as many as 250 different courses, with each building allowed sufficient autonomy to take the needs and interests of its students into account when planning programs, Raubinger said.

Dist. 21 farm club pays off in jobs

teachers have been rehired or have found jobs elsewhere, Weaver can look at other applicants for positions which open. But he doesn't have to look too far.

Weaver has about 100 substitutes and 35 aides in his "farm club," an official title for his hiring procedure, which takes advantage of the surplus of teachers looking for jobs.

"If you have all those people available and you can look at them as a substitute or an aide first, you're not taking any chances when hiring," Weaver said.

ALL OF THE district's substitutes and most of the aides are certified teachers. Many of them wanted to be hired as teachers, but because of the scarcity of jobs, Weaver said he asks if they would consider being an aide or a substitute.

"We say on the application that it greatly enhances your opportunity for getting a teaching job" by being an aide or substitute, Weaver said. "A lot of them view it as having a foot in the door."

Other local school districts follow this practice, but not as closely as Dist. 21. In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where 83 new teachers were hired this year, Assistant Supt. Ronald Ruble said the chances are better for a substitute or an aide to be hired than for someone completely new to the district.

"A person who is subbing or is an aid becomes known by the principals and the chances are better than they will be remembered when an opening occurs," Ruble said.

Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services in High School Dist. 214, which hired 60 new teachers this year, said Dist. 214 does not have a standing rule to hire people who have substituted or worked as an aide in the district.

EMPLOYING those people, however, does allow a better prediction of the teacher's success or failure, Cudney said.

For Dist. 21, this process has allowed closer screening and evaluation of teacher candidates. Weaver and individual school principals can see how a teacher performs in a classroom and how well he or she fits into the district.

"Basically in today's job market everyone looks good on paper," Weaver said. His process of choosing teachers from those with experience in the district avoids the problems of "hiring an unknown quantity."

"Dr. Weaver has an excellent chance of looking at the merchandise before he buys," agreed Renee Moeller, a math teacher at Cooper Junior High School, who was hired after two years of "subbing."

The process also is useful for the substitutes and aides themselves. The substitutes receive an excellent orientation to the district and the aides become well-acquainted with one school, Weaver said.

MRS. MOELLER, who said she "hit" all of the 17 schools in Dist. 21 at least once in her substitute days, agreed with Weaver. She said her substitute experience was helpful because she familiarized herself with the people in the district and learned about its policies and procedures before she was hired full-time.

For teachers who are straight out of college, working as an aide gives them a fifth year of on-the-job training, Weaver said. Serving as an aide and substituting also helps someone who has been away from teaching, perhaps to raise a family, to ease back into it, he said.

Mary Lou Knefley, who recently was hired as a third grade teacher at Poe School in Arlington Heights after working as an aide last year, had not taught in five years. Besides learning about Dist. 21, Mrs. Knefley said her year as an aide "helped me to see what's been going on in the past five years, rather than plunging right in."

Although working as an aide or a substitute may help a teaching candidate gain contacts, it also can be a big financial sacrifice, said Robert Cudney of Dist. 214.

In Dist. 214, a beginning teacher earns $10,850 annually. Substitutes are paid $30 a day and beginning aides are paid about $4 an hour, Cudney said. "The aides are getting about half of what a teacher makes," he said. "But some of them are pretty tenacious and it seems to be paying off."

Booster Club raffle winner is named

A Mount Prospect man has been named the winner of a $250 first prize in the village fire department's Booster Club raffle.

Joseph T. Enzenbacker, 208 N. Louis St., was named the recipient of the prize Wednesday by Booster Club Pres. Sue Jenkins at a public drawing held at Fire Station No. 1, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

The Booster Club, a voluntary organization which sponsors fire department-related activities, made a small profit on the raffle to be used to purchase audio-visual aids for public education.
